One subdivision of the city attorney's office is the night prosecutor which operates from 4:30-10:30 p.m. The purpose of this office is to try and settle cases before they go to court. A mediation process is set up with lawyers, law professors and law students.

Mrs. Odella Welch Williams, community relations director for the city, was also scheduled to speak at this last of a three part series explaining city government and trying to get citizen involvement in the decision-making process.

Those who have been coming to the meetings were upset that Mrs. Williams did not stay to talk with them.

She left because she was upset with a local television station which would not cover the meeting as they had been invited to do, but singled out Mrs. Henninger for a news story.

Schools Provide Classes For Special Children

West Columbus—The Columbus Public School System has one of the largest programs in the state for special education with approximately 6,000 children receiving help.

Director Dr. Floyd F. Heil said 124 schools out of 150 have one special class and some have several.

Heil said most of the children have been found, that they're not hidden away anymore; but the problem now is with children who have not been identified or with parents who won't accept the fact that their child needs special help.

"These parents are more concerned and uptight than others and they have a right to be. They want to help but they are sometimes frustrated in getting help."

"WHEN THEY first learn of the problem they blame others and they want to fight somebody. Later parents are cooperative and appreciative," Heil said.

Columbus also provides services to 31 other school districts 25-30 miles in all directions from Columbus. These students are accepted on a tuition basis.

One third of the deaf and hard of hearing come from outside the Columbus District. The system, however, does not accept those with learning disabilities or the educably mentally retarded (EMR).

The system also provides extensive transportation help to special education students.

The board owns 65 vans. The system also uses city cabs, COTA and private cars.

In the program for children with learning disabilities the student is in a regular program and then taken out to be tutored and to give support.

"WE TRY TO keep the child in the regular program and return them to a regular program as soon as possible," Heil said.

All children with special problems are integrated into regular programs where they can be. An example is the three classes of deaf at Central High School. "They receive supportive help but most of the time they're out in home ec or industrial arts or at work just as the other children," he said.

Classes for crippled children who need therapy or a sheltered environment are provided at Ned Avenue School. The academic program follows the curriculum of the elementary grades with the textbooks, learning materials and audio-visual experiences used according to the child's needs. Classes are organized on a non-graded continuous progress plan.

Instruction is provided for regular, EMR and hard-of-hearing crippled children. Special services include physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy, services to partially sighted, half time nurse and a day and one-half of psychology and work study.

Most crippled children who have completed the elementary program and who no longer need therapy may be enrolled in any of the regular junior high schools in which the facilities are suited to the students' special needs.

For those junior high students in need of a program which includes the services of a resource teacher and an attendant, a unit has been established at Westmoor Junior High School, a one-floor facility where wheel-chair ramps have been constructed.

A PROGRAM FOR high school students has been made available within the limit of the physical facilities at Marion-Franklin High School, where crippled students are integrated into the regular school program. Some students are placed on the home tutor program.

Adolescent severely handicapped EMR students are assigned to a class at North Linden Elementary School.

Classes for emotionally disturbed children are held at Fairfax School. Those children are accepted who would otherwise, because of serious emotional and social problems, not be able to attend a public school.

The Columbus Public Schools program for the auditorially handicapped is divided into two areas depending upon the degree of hearing loss of the child. Those that have a moderate to severe hearing loss are considered hard-of-hearing and the program is located at Kingswood Elementary School.

Children whose hearing loss is in the severe to profound range, considered deaf, are educated in the Alexander Graham Bell School, which is located between an elementary school and a junior high school, and in special classes in regular school buildings. These locations enable the children to integrate with regular class students whenever it is educationally and socially possible to do so.

THE DEAF AND hard-of-hearing program consists of 46 classes with a total enrollment of 271 students.

Columbus Public Schools teachers are assigned full time to the following five centers: Children's Hospital; Juvenile Center; Deaf-Mute House; Upham Hall; and Florence Crittenton Home.

Elementary school teachers serve the first two centers, with secondary school teachers assigned in all. Instruction and use of facilities at each center are authorized by the respective officials.

STUDENTS WITH physical disabilities, and those with emotional disturbance of such severity that they are unable to attend regular school, receive individual instruction at home. One hour of tutoring is provided for each day of absence from school at no cost to the parent.

Service is also provided to children within the school, if they are designated as sufficiently disturbed to require individual support daily.

There are 28 full-time speech and hearing therapists in the Columbus system servicing 100 elementary schools and 12 junior and senior high schools.

Eighteen therapists are in 76 schools on the intensive program for speech and hearing therapy.

The case load for each therapist ranges from 75 to 100 children per week. Group and individual therapy are offered with a maximum of five children per group. Screening for speech and hearing problems begins in September. All second grade children are screened and others are seen on a referral basis.

Education for the 140 visually handicapped students is divided into three areas: pre-school, classroom units and the itinerant plan. Three classes for pre-school children are provided at Broadleigh. Other classes for blind and partially seeing children are also located at Broadleigh in grades one through six. Students are integrated into the regular classes whenever it is feasible.

On the itinerant program, 30 teachers certified in the area of the visually handicapped provide for the special educational needs of blind and partially seeing students enrolled in the regular program of various elementary and secondary schools throughout the city.

TWO CERTIFIED brailleists at Braille Center located in the Starling Street Annex prepare Braille and large print textbooks and other educational materials for the use of visually impaired students in the Columbus Public Schools.

Patrol Will Enforce New 'Bumper' Law

GALLOWAY The driver education teachers of Westland High School would like to make people aware of the new law requiring stiff penalties for elevated rear bumpers on cars.

The law goes into effect Oct. 31.

Amended House Bill 173: The Act prohibits the operation on a street or highway of motor vehicles that have been modified in either of two ways:

(1) vehicles that have had their suspension or body changed so the height of any bumper varies more than three inches from the height of the bumper as originally manufactured and

(2) vehicles that were originally equipped with bumpers as standard equipment, but from which the bumpers have been removed and not replaced with bumpers equal to the original equipment.

The provisions of this Act would not apply to motor vehicles with raised or lowered bumpers, or no bumpers, that were operated elsewhere than on a street or highway (as defined in Ohio Revised Code).

Thus persons could operate such vehicles on race tracks or drag strips, or other property that did not qualify as a street or highway without being in violation of this Act.

Neither would the provisions of this bill affect vehicles used to tow trailers, etc., and equipped with loadleveling devices as long as the bumper remained within the specified degree of variation while the vehicle was being operated on the highway.

The Act provides for a penalty fine of not more than $25 for the first offense and a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $500 or imprisonment for 60 days or both for each subsequent offense.

The purpose of this Act is to preclude the highway operation of so called "high cars" and cars that have had their bumpers removed.

Research findings indicate that motor vehicles modified in these ways tend to be unstable and that rear-end collisions involving both high cars and cars without bumpers are more likely to result in fires.

Highway Patrolmen who have spoken to the classes of Rollin Mrazek and E. E. Shipley have said they will "push" for enforcement.

DISCUSSING plans for the October 27 Balloon Day for crippled children are, left to right: Steven Fisher, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fisher, 4643 Dundee Rd.; Cheri Henry, "Miss Wheelchair Ohio," and chairlady for Balloon Day; Tonia Boyak, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Boyak, Westerville; and Audrey Woodward, 5, granddaughter of Mrs. Agnes Thomas, 3147 Kenney Dr.

Balloon Day Is Saturday

Cheri Henry, Miss Wheelchair Ohio, has been named as the chairlady of the 1973 Halloween Balloon Day, planned for Saturday, October 27, by the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children.

Miss Henry, paralyzed from a sledding accident several years ago and now a resident of McCampbell Hall, Ohio State University, will direct the efforts of hundreds of local young people during this "action" day.

The teenagers, representing school and church youth groups, will distribute brightly colored balloons in business and shopping areas throughout the city and county and accept contributions for crippled children.

They will be identified by "Teen Volunteer" tags and dressed in Halloween garb.

The theme for the event is "Together We Can Make It Happen." The specific goal for the 1973 Balloon Day will be to furnish a new classroom at the Society's treatment center, 565 Children's Drive where over 130 orthopedically handicapped children, ages 1 through 7, are now enrolled.

Headquarters for Balloon Day will be at the Society's center. Charles Hoffing of the Society's staff will serve as Balloon Day coordinator.

Young people interested in helping during Balloon Day may call 253-5523.

Halloween Trick And Treater Should Have Evening Of Fun

APPLES, cookies, candy, cider, and donuts seem to go right along with the witches, ghosts, ghouls, and goblins of Halloween. The goodies are treats - payments in lieu of tricks. Or are they?

Next week the annual pilgrimage begins for the long anticipated treasures. Will it be "trick or treat?" or, trick or treatment? For many children it is an evening of great fun and adventure, but for some it can turn into a night of tragedy and sorrow.

EACH YEAR, far too many children are injured and killed Halloween Eve by motorists unable to see them darting unexpectedly into the street. Others are badly burned as their costumes are ignited by flames from lighted candles and lanterns. These tragic situations could be avoided if parents would observe rules of good sense and safety, such as the following suggested by Liberty Mutual Insurance Companies.

Use only bright costumes. A white-sheeted ghost is more easily seen by a passing motorist than a black-clad witch. But even brightly clothed children may be hard to distinguish as the evening darkens so fluorescent strips which would make them even more visible, is suggested.

Do not allow children to carry lighted candles, or lanterns, or any type of open flame. Many children have been burned in past years when their costumes, often made of extremely flammable material, caught fire. A flash-light would be easier to carry, and would also make crossing the street safer.

BE SURE to chaperone all children who would not normally be allowed outside alone at night. Younger children should be out only in the early evenings. The discreet presence of an adult can stop a problem situation from developing.

Keep a light on in front of your house so that there is no danger of children being injured by walking into objects or holes they cannot see in the dark. If there is a pet in the household, keep it away from the door.

CHILDREN enjoy putting on make-up as part of their costume but be careful of what they use. Cheap make-up can in many instances cause complexion problems for youngsters - or hurt their eyes.

Finally, when your child goes out for the evening, make sure you know where he or she is going and what time he or she should return.

Halloween can be a real treat for everyone. One way to ensure it is to follow these simple rules of safety.

Halloween Movies On Tap

Free movies marking Halloween will be shown at 2 p.m. Oct. 27 as part of Columbus Public Library's weekly "Saturday at the Movies" program in the library's auditorium, 96 S. Grant Ave.

The following films will be shown Oct. 27: "Laurel and Hardy Murder Case," where Stan and Ollie find themselves in a haunted house; "Tall Tale Heart," Edgar Allan Poe's chilling classic and "Live Ghost," where Stan and Ollie (Laurel and Hardy) help a sea captain in shanghaiing a crew for a ghost ship.

You're Telling Us

The Spectator Newspapers welcome letters from readers, expressing their views on subjects of interest to them - whether initiated by news stories or editorial expression in this newspaper or not. Because of space limitations, we prefer letters which do not exceed 300 words. All letters submitted for publication must be signed with the writer's name and address, although - upon request - the name of the writer can be withheld. Letters should be marked: "To the Editor, Spectator Newspapers, 3121 South Boulevard, Columbus, Ohio 43201" and must be received by Friday noon prior to publication date for possible publication in that week's edition.

B'nai B'rith Women Appreciate Support

To the Editor:

Our clothing drive for Operation Stork has just drawn to a close. The results of both the drive and our B'nai B'rith Women's Operation Stork Shower have been most gratifying.

It is through people like yourself, Mrs. Elsie Weaver, Eastern Editor, that we are able to attain such success.

Many thanks to you and The Spectator for the lovely picture and article you carried on Mayor Moody's signing of the proclamation declaring B'nai B'rith Women's Operation Stork Day.

May I also take this opportunity to thank you for your coverage on the puppet show teach-a-tot project at Blackburn Day Care Center of Central Community House.

We appreciate your continued support and coverage of the projects of B'nai B'rith Women in Columbus.

On behalf of our many members, I thank you.

Sincerely,
Carole Schwartz

Superintendent Speaks About Current Rumors

To The Editor:

Inaccurate rumors regarding salary increases for central office personnel in the Worthington School System continue to be mentioned in our community.

I would like to react to these rumors. Specifically, I hear that an increase of $6,000 has been approved for the superintendent, effective 1974.

Also, we hear that increases from 20-30 percent will be granted central office personnel with the passage of the operating levy.

None of this is true. I cannot imagine an annual increase as large as that mentioned in this letter.

The Board of Education determines salaries, but I am sure I would recommend increases for all central office personnel except for the superintendent.

I will not recommend an annual increase as high as 30 percent for anyone in the central office nor would I expect a salary increase that approaches either 10 percent or $6,000.

This letter has been written in an attempt to correct erroneous and very misleading rumors.

Sincerely yours
Dana F. Swick
Superintendent

A Plane? Bird? UFO? No-The Good Ship Marriott!

NOTWITHSTANDING the fact that to send any strange object airborne these days is tantamount to getting it pitchforked by stout natives upon landing - a few daredevils managed to pull off an unparalleled stunt last Sunday morning before the wondering (most of them squinted) eyes of a host of newsmen looking skyward from the parking lot of the Marriott Inn on South Hamilton Road. The occasion was the grand opening celebration of the Marriott's 51 room addition and the hosts red-carpeted as many newsmen and their spouses as cared to attend the weekend that started at 6:30 p.m. Friday and ended about noon Sunday. The climax of the weekend that had many activities building up to it was the launching of a balloon piloted by noted Aeronaut Capt. Dan Stone, a Columbus balloonist who is the first of a new breed in this area who have taken to the up-and-away bit with serious thought that culminates in ecstatic pleasure. Stone went aloft with the gold balloon that will be used to break ground for the new addition to the Cleveland Marriott Inn in a month or so. Although the original intent was to go to Cleveland the winds kept his course away from that northern mecca and the shovel will go by another means later this week. In three exclusive newspaper photos of the launching (shown in though ALL the other media were cameraless) we'll go from left to right then up. (1) Spectator Entertainment Editor Roland Sunker, right, gives some last minute advice to Dan Stone based on his years of flying high in the entertainment world. It was later reported that this was Sunker's (and other media's) first view of a Sunday morning in years since he, like most of the entertainment editors around town, seldom see the crack of dawn or any portion of Sunday morning. (2) A host of media watch hot air (and add their own) being forced into the balloon by Stone, at right. (3) The balloon starts its inflation process as shown in this photo from a three story fire-escape. (4) That's part of the Marriott addition in the background as the balloon gets ready to go aloft. (5) It's up and soaring as Dan Stone looks down at the crowd. (6) The good ship Marriott soars away from the Inn and the three-day extravaganza comes to a close after the lavish breakfast-brunch.

One major thing they agreed on was that European students take more subjects and attend school longer, but have more time to socialize during the day.

Petra is staying with Dr. E. G. Keyser and family, while Raija is staying with the H.W. Davies family.

Chasers Fore Are For Real

With some of the best arrangements I've heard of a group cut, charts that almost blow your mind, The Chasers Fore are knocking them dead at the Ramada Inn-North. It's not just charts alone that makes them so darn good. There are other elements, such as very funny comedy, plus five extremely talented performers. And that's just what they are, performers, not just plain top notch musicians, but showmen, all the way.

Rich Lauenstein is the leader. He is also the comedian. Using strong, original gags, jokes, mappy one liners and hilarious characters, Rich has them rolling in the aisles. His comedy is created to perfection. Wait until you hear his routine of a medical doctor. It's wild. To finish off the routine, Rich plays the doctor's gown. Pure talent, that's for sure.

Turning about face, Rich picks up the banjo, and he and the group tear up the place with some rip-roarin' tunes. Rich is equally as talented on the vibes, flute, organ, piano, trumpet and bass. Not like many performers, Rich plays all of these instruments several times a set. Rich is as much a musical technician as he is a comic.

Winston Highham comes across with some fine funny work also. He turns in an excellent performance as straight man for Rich. Also,

It Happened At The Marriott Inn

A UNIQUE climax to the grand opening last weekend of the 11-room addition to the Marriott Inn, South Hamilton Road, Columbus, was the ascent of a balloon piloted by Aeronaut Capt. Dan Stone from the parking lot of the new addition. On board was the gold shovel used in the ground breaking of the new addition last spring. The shovel will travel to the Cleveland Marriott Inn for the groundbreaking there in Winston shows sensational abilities as a bass man, guitarist as well as being the main male vocalist. What a voice. Winston sings with a big, full voice that has exceptional tonal qualities.

Another fellow who is a triple treat man is Steve Barryman. While his main job is drummer, he also handles most of the trombone work, frequently while playing the drums. Without any, question in my mind, Steve is one of the finest tub thumpers in the business. He handles the sticks and brushes smoothly with lightning speed. His patterns and riffs are beyond reproach. When Steve does his drum solo under black lights with color sticks, you witness something truly amazing. It's a sight to see and hear.

The man on organ, piano and guitar is Howard Gold. This man is strong, providing plenty of solid back up work for the rest of the outfit.

The next member of The Chasers Fore is a petite thing, who by looking at her would never believe the talent this gal possesses. Her name is Kathy Russo. Her game is singing and doing a host of exciting things on stage. Owning a crystal clear voice, Kathy wails the devil out of a song, be it ballad or jump.

Her amazing feats transpire at the drums. This girl can and does play better than most men. The Chasers Fore are a hard working show group. They are definitely a fun group, loaded with showmanship providing an exciting, tight, fast moving show. With all of this going for them, it is no wonder the audience stays for hours listening and laughing. After all, that's show biz, and that's The Chasers Fore.

Marriott Open With Bang

This past weekend the Marriott Inn Motel celebrated the opening of the marvelous new addition, which includes 51 new guest rooms, a large ballroom and many other facilities to make your stay at the Marriott seem like fantasy weekend.

That's exactly what my past weekend seemed to yours truly. The Marriott invited the press for an entire weekend as part of their celebration and to let the press understand precisely what they have to offer.

Many times in the past, I have told you about the great food at the Marriott Inn. But, never having spent the night there, I never realized what a grandiose experience lie in wait for me, or any of their guests for that matter.

The rooms are luxurious. The service besides being efficient, is the friendliest and the Marriott Inn offers more and better lodging than most of the so-called resort motels.

And I can think of no better way to spend a weekend, than to spend it at the Marriott Inn. Why drive some place a hundred miles or so?

While the staff and management work hard to make sure the important parts of their operation are top drawer, they also concentrate on all of the little things.

It would take several columns to tell you about all the food served to the press this past weekend. We dined on everything from shrimp cocktail to scrambled eggs in the coffee shop. No matter what was served, or where, in the dining room, the coffee shop, or one of the beautiful new banquet rooms, you could not ask for any better. Everything was simply delicious.

Besides making it a gourmet weekend, without gourmet prices, there is plenty for you to do. You can spend time in their marvelous indoor swimming pool, relax in their whirlpool or take a nice sauna. There is also a game room at your disposal, plus a staff of people to wait on you hand and foot, treating you as royalty.

Now, don't get me wrong, I am not trying to promote business for the Marriott Inn. But, I know from talking with many of you readers who I meet Around Town, that many of you ask me where to spend a relaxing, fulfilled weekend. Believe me, you won't go wrong here. If you are like me, I dig spending some of the winter weekends in plush surroundings, where I can swim, eat and drink, as well as listening to a group called the Duke Jenkins Trio, without ever having to step outside from Friday night to Sunday afternoon.

It's all there at the Marriott Inn Motel.

Paul Lipson To Appear

Here is something I'm sure you won't want to miss. This is true, if you like me, consider "Fiddler On The Roof," your favorite show.

October 28, the Ohio State Hillier Foundation will welcome its most illustrious alumnus, Broadway star Paul Lipson. "An Evening with Paul Lipson" will be presented as part of the year-long 50th anniversary celebration of the national B'nai B'rith Hillier Foundations, the campus Jewish community organization.

Lipson played the lead role of Tevye in the musical "Fiddler on the Roof" longer than any other actor. He was associated with "Fiddler's" eight year run both as a member of the national touring company and on Broadway. Television viewers will also remember him as Patsy, the bookmaker, in the old "Sgt. Bilko" show.

Lipson will appear on Sunday, October 28 at the OSU Hillier Foundation, 46 E. 18th Avenue at 7:30 p.m. There will be a general admission charge of $2. For further information call 294-4797; 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. weekdays. Lipson's appearance is open to everyone.

The Gazebo At Theatre

The Worthington Community Theatre is presenting, "The Gazebo," by Alec Coppel, the next two weekends, beginning this Friday night.

It is under the direction of Curt Meeks, who has an extensive experience in the United States, both as an actor and a director.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. all four nights. The play will be held at the Josephinum Auditorium, 7625 N. High St., Worthington.

Eastmoor-Walnut Ridge Clash Seen As City North Titleholder

By Sandy Schwartz
Special Sports Writer

Eastmoor bounced West and Walnut Ridge trounced Mohawk to highlight City League South action last week while Northland belted Linden in the CI North feature. Provided Walnut Ridge emerges victorious against South next week, the winner of the Eastmoor-Walnut clash of November 2 will host the City North victor in the coveted 1973 City League Championship game.

IT WAS a supreme effort by Eastmoor's QB Brian Johnson that led the Warriors to a 34-6 decision over West and gave the Bob Stuart coached gang at least a share of the City South crown. But the Warriors will still need a win over Ridge to land a berth in the CL champ of champs match as a league tie would send the winner of head on competition to the "City League Super Bowl".

Johnson passed for two Warrior scores—one to Paul Lias and another to Duncan Griffin and he also ran for another TD. Walnut Ridge used a 66 yard jaunt by George Snyder and a pair of short dashes by Gary Gola in its 44-0 taut of punchless Mohawk.

In the Ohio Capital Conference Gahanna kept on with its winning ways by bombing Whitehall 40-0. Westerville put the hurting to Reynoldsburg 26-6 to remain one game back of the Lions. Mike Cronin's fifth OCC TD toss, provided the lone Raider score.

Elsewhere in the OCC Worthington displayed a dynamic performance in demolishing Westland 27-0. The Cards looked strong in mounting 378 total yards as Guy Collison raced for a pair of scores and QB Tim Crandall threw one TD pass to Gary Chambers and dashed for another.

In Triune Central Catholic League action Waterson came from behind to clip DeSales 27-12 in a game that could go a long way in deciding a champ in the annual CCL dogfight and Hartley thumped Ready 22-12 in the other league affair.

Blockbusting fullback Jim Grimm blasted for two TD's on short bursts for the Eagle victory margin and Ed Golden carried an intercepted pass 43 yards to paydirt for Eagle insurance. Ray Kuss hauled in a short ariel spray by Dean Dixon for Waterson's other score.

In Mid-Eight League action Bentley goes into next week's playoffs having finished one game behind the leaders as it romped to a 28-0 shelling of London. Jeff Edelstein sprinted twice for scores. In Metro-League highlights Franklin Heights punched Olentangy 33-6. Gary Jones ripped his way for three TD's, one on a 66 yard scamper.

In the Mid-Buckeye picture Jim Case came into his own as he ran for a pair of TD's and threw for another in leading Academy to a 22-8 notch over Denville.

Area Non-League action saw St. Charles tap Cincinnati McNicholas 13-6 via two scores by Dave Hailman.

Thursday night's action will find Central at West and Walnut Ridge at South in City North action while East will maintain Linden in the third. Friday night's slate has Westerville at Delaware, Gahanna at Reynoldsburg and Westland at Mt. Vernon in the Ohio Capital Conference. Worthington at Whitehall is Thursday.

In the Metro League Grandview will visit Franklin Heights and in the Mid-Eight playoffs Bentley's much improved young Lions will play host to Urbana.

Mid-Buckeye playtime sees Academy at Centerburg while St. Charles will be at Mohawk High School Stadium to face East Know in a non-leaguer.

A huge East Side rivalry will be renewed when Eastmoor travels to Hartley to visit the Hawks of Jack Ryan in a Friday night, 8 p.m., non-leaguer.

OCC action performs Saturday night with Waterson and Wehrle squaring off at Hartley and Ready and DeSales dueling at Brookhaven.

Golden Adds To Diamond

Mighty Eastmoor leader of baseball, Ron Golden, is the proud father of a six pound twelve ounce baby boy. It was reported that new arrival Steven Mitchell will be ready for spring training.

Baseball Film Set At Center

"Fifty Years of Baseball Memories," showing plays from past World Series games including those of Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb and Lou Gehrig, is the weekend's free film offering at the Ohio Historical Center under sponsorship of The Ohio Historical Society.

The film is scheduled at 2 and 3 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, October 27-28. Admission is free.

Bishop Ready vs Bishop Hartley

FAST AND FURIOUS was the line play in the CCL game won by Hartley and here's a good example of the sometimes too ferocious play that went on. Hartley's Scott Williams (22) got a stout forearm here from Ready's Steve James (91).

Bishop Ready vs Bishop Hartley

READY'S offense was geared around its running game and in the tilt against Hartley it was Tom Prentice (44) who carried the ball on this play that gained six yards against the Hawks.

Bishop Ready vs Bishop Hartley

HARTLEY'S QB Mark DiSabato (12) gets ready to let a pass fly goalward in the Hawks win over Ready. DiSabato was his usual accurate self in the Hawks CCL win.

West vs Eastmoor

Eastmoor vs West

EASTMOOR contained West's dazzling sophomore half back Roosevelt Williams (42) most of the game in its league win over the Cowboys and here's an example of the aggressive line play that found the Warriors waiting for Williams (42).

Eastmoor vs West

THE BALL CARRIER and tackler are unidentified but this bit of action was typical of that during the entire game won by the Warriors (with the ball at right) over the Cowboys.

Westland vs Worthington

WESTLAND'S Mike Pritchard (46) swept the Cardinals' left end for 17 yards on this second period play to give the Cougars a first down and a scoring chance. Worthington's Mike Fallon (88) has a hold on Pritchard but had to have assistance from Terry Jones (75) and Doug Barkhart (74) to bring him down.

Boxing Bouts Scheduled

The second in a series of Golden Gloves Tune-up boxing matches will be held Thursday, at 7 p.m., October 25 at Sawyer Recreation Center, 1046 Atchison Ave.

Twenty-five bouts are on tap. Boxers from Cleveland and Indianapolis will engage Columbus batters.

The show is hosted by the Ed Williams led Sawyer Recreation Center Boxing Club.

There is no admission charge. Bouts are sanctioned by the Central Ohio AAU Commission.

Eleven Ohio Dominican College students from the Franklin County area have been named to the Concert Choir of the liberal arts college. They will appear with the choir during its first Fall concert, 8:15 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 28, in the Little Theatre of Erskine Hall, 1216 Sunbury Rd., Columbus.

Fly Rod And Stream

When I was a boy and graduated from the old canepole, my father gave me a new fly rod, I used it a lot to catch fish in shallow streams softly tossing crayfish and worms so I wouldn't lose them on my back cast; dad always told me to wade quietly and cast towards the undercut banks and to fish the pools below ripples, he was right.

I caught fish where he told me they would be. You know a fly rod and stream is a hard to beat combination; to catch bass and trout.

It's true there are places and likely looking spots you can't reach, but properly handled a fly rod and small lures will catch fish in streams when larger lures fail.

Darn, there's no greater thrill when you can see a fish rise to the surface and smack your lure, then jump a foot or two in the air trying to shake it.

I've had smallmouth bass come up and out of the water to take a bass bug before it even hit the surface. If you've never used a fly rod and top water lures, you may be missing a special way to enjoy the great sport of angling.

Where To Fish, Up Or Down Stream

One of the most frequent questions I'm asked is, is it better to wade up or down stream.

I've fished both ways, but I like to wade up stream. I've found I have a better chance not to scare any fish by wading up stream.

The cloud of mud and sand I stir up wading down stream can scare them off and send them to deep water and out of reach. I've also found if you use your fly, spinners or live bait in a more natural way, although it wasn't attached to a line, in other words, let your bait float and sink freely.

I'll bet you'll catch more fish.

If it isn't necessary to wade out to reach a likely spot, don't. Remember, every movement you make in the water sends vibrations and sounds to that big one you're trying to catch.

Just remember, to use your bait as though it was unattached to a line and don't make a lot of noise when fishing any where.

Here's another tip to remember, never wade in a farm pond, the soft mud and sand bottom is too darn dangerous for any one to wade in especially with boots on.

1973 Ohio Waterfowl Season Opens

The 1973 Ohio waterfowl season opened at sunrise October 19. Ohio duck hunters are reminded that a point system is in effect this year in determining the daily bag limit of ducks. The daily bag limit for ducks is determined by the point value according to species or sex of ducks taken. Each duck has a point value.

Qualified Serviceman Can Make Your Home Safer

The 90 degree temperatures of last summer may be still fresh in your mind, but cold weather is just around the corner.

It's time to make sure your home heating equipment will operate safely and trouble-free this winter.

EVERY winter too many unnecessary deaths can be attributed to faulty appliances and heating equipment.

Whenever combustion takes place without sufficient oxygen, dangerous and deadly carbon monoxide gas is produced.

Carbon monoxide is colorless and odorless and because it gives no warning it's often referred to as the "silent killer". Sometimes installation and adjustments are the only symptoms.

Making certain that all appliances and heating equipment are in proper working order could save your life.

THE FEW DOLLARS you spend for a qualified serviceman may not only save you money in lower fuel costs; they'll also help assure your family's safety.

When inspecting existing heating equipment, here are some "do's and don'ts":

DO:

See that heating equipment is vented to a clean chimney.

Make sure that the chimney is clean. Blow smoke into the chimney opening to see if it is drawing well.

Be sure the vent pipe goes up hill from heating equipment to chimney.

Use a safety chimney to keep the vent pipe from going too far into chimney with cement.

Be sure the chimney has a cleanout opening under the vent pipe and be sure the opening is covered with a cap.

allow some outside fresh air into the space where the heating equipment is located.

try to get more heat out of your heating equipment than it is built to produce. If your rooms don't heat properly, you may need a larger heater.

seal furnace room windows and doors with tape and rags. Your heating equipment needs fresh air to burn properly without creating flames.

waste a second on getting everyone out of the house if you smell fumes or awaken with a headache and suspect your heating equipment.

put off calling a serviceman or other qualified person if your heating equipment is not working properly.

use your cooking range top or oven for heating your home.

If you are buying new heating equipment, suggested the following four-point checklist:

- 1) Be sure it has a place for a vent connection.
- 2) Arrange installation by a qualified installer.
- 3) Be sure it is inspected and approved.
- 4) Get clear and complete instructions for safe operation of the unit.

Gymnasts have been busy getting into shape while having fun. They have been working hard at various warm-ups to aid in developing their agility, endurance strength, flexibility and coordination.

The beginner classes are finding that each piece of apparatus (bars, beam, trampoline, mats) offers a new challenge and plenty of excitement. These classes are not only learning basic skills on the equipment, but are also learning the importance of safety and working together.

Many girls offer their talent and their time, by assisting in the beginner classes. Thanks go to Roseanna Nickoloff and Julie Wilson.

Teens participating in this program are Marion Ameling, Margie Emery, Jodi Ellemann, Cathy Emmons, Terri Garrard, Lisa Kelling, Patti Miller and Carol Smith.

The Junior Girls Gymnastics Team have been working hard reviewing their basic skills. They are now ready to combine their skills into routines. Their only problems seem to be deciding which piece of apparatus they like best to begin their first routine.

Elementary girls meeting the required skills to participate in the program are Sue Colopy, Doreen Burke, Sheila Burke, Brenda Pence, Shelly Rhodes, Becky Reed, Michelle Wood, Jeanne Nickoloff, Roseanna Nickoloff and Julie Wilson.

Teens participating in this program are Marion Ameling, Margie Emery, Jodi Ellemann, Cathy Emmons, Terri Garrard, Lisa Kelling, Patti Miller and Carol Smith.

Participants in the boys teenage classes are now working on tumbling, trampoline and mini trampoline stunts. Soon instruction will be given on still rings, horizontal and parallel bars and vaulting.

The boys teenage class meets Thursday evening 7-10 p.m. and Wednesday evenings 7-10 with a co-ed advanced class.

Success, Success ???

WEST COLUMBUS—Even little witches seem to be successful in turning pumpkins into people for one night—Halloween. The little witches are kindergartners at Blume Elementary, Michelle Deroy and Beth Leiman. The pumpkin, Kelly Munn, is also a kindergartner in Miss Dolan's class. These three children and all their classmates at Blume had a parade through the neighborhood to share the fun of the day.

Hilltop Church Council Special Services Sunday

West Columbus—Hilltop Church Council Sunday is being observed by all member churches Sunday, Nov. 4.

Strengthen Mental Health By Strengthening People

By KATHY DEVANEY

West Columbus—"There is no way a community mental health center can provide enough services to all the people. The only way is to strengthen the people who are already in the community," according to James O. Gibson, executive director of the Southwest Mental Health Center, who spoke at the annual meeting of the Franklin County Mental Health and Retardation Board (64th Board).

In the southwest area of the county the Center is doing this through pastoral counseling, school consultation and educating volunteers or community workers.

The Center tries to help area residents in counseling others, being aware of mental health needs and providing services.

IN THE PAST fiscal year Southwest has developed out-patient services in five locations; consultation and education programs from each location; 24 hour emergency service; and day treatment programs for pre-schoolers, early school age children and adults.

"We are moving out into the community to work in a natural setting. We're trying to work out problems where they are happening," Gibson said.

The Center is also trying to tie in to other agencies.

"Crisis hospitalization at Children's Hospital tries to identify related problems in the home and then link back to the catchment area so one agency isn't doing one thing and another something else," he said. The aim is toward a coordinated response.

THE PROGRAM is called PLEIP (Program for Linkage, Early Intervention and Prevention) and it tries to bring to bear in a cooperative manner all available community services and to provide these services when the first signs of a problem appear.

The program links Children's Hospital, Columbus Public Schools, Franklin County, Madison County and Southwestern Schools, Southwest Mental Health and Retardation Center, Columbus Area Community Mental Health Center, Diocesan Child Guidance Center, CMAAO Day Care Centers and other cooperative agencies.

The program includes therapeutic tutoring, evaluation and screening, parent training and delinquency evaluation and referral.

DAY TREATMENT started at the Diocesan Child Guidance Center and has been expanded to there is a linkage out of the state hospital, which provides in-patient care, to the community. It is a cooperative effort to provide service to the client, Gibson said.

The Center staff works with the hospital staff to arrange for release including housing, employment and necessary treatment services.

Drug Education Program Explained

By Sandy Schwartz
Special Staff Writer

Columbus—A stimulating review of the Pilot Drug Education Program was presented to the Columbus School Board Members at the Oct. 23 Committee of the Whole Meeting. The program in its initial year of operation was unanimously approved by the Board of Education last Feb. 26.

Ann James, the program's coordinator, presented an outline explaining objectives of the program and means of incorporating these goals into the program. The emphasis Ms. James stressed was that taking drugs is a form of behavior and teaching the students about behavior is the theme of the program.

The schools that are involved in the Drug Abuse Prevention Program are Champion, Hilltop and Yorktown Junior Highs and Beatty Park, Burroughs, Easthaven, Eastwood, Highland, Lindbergh, Maybury, Oakmont, Old Orchard, Pilgrim, Wayne, West Mount and Woodcrest Elementary Schools. This totals 16 schools with the total teacher involvement being 254 and the student involvement tabbed at $300.

The four stepped objectives of this state funded project are:
Acquire Knowledge of Human Behavior;
Produce and Maintain Positive Behavioral Change;
Increase in Positive Self Concept;
Increase in Drug Knowledge.

Ms. James explained the program, informed board members of its immediate acceptance and also carefully outlined what her duties have entailed to date. Ms. James announced that Linda Bodick was assigned to the project to conduct surveys and evaluations and that when these results are finalized "We'll really be able to see just how the program is being accepted."

The text being used in the kindergarten through sixth grade is entitled "A World To Grow In" and Ms. James said, "This takes us away from the use of something labeled Drug Prevention." Ms. James did indicate that she was quite pleased with the material being used.

Board Vice-President Virginia Prentice, a member of the group which reviewed the books before their use, agreed that the material was interesting and she lauded the approach that the material used.

Ms. James was accompanied at the meeting by Alan Trotman, Principal of Easthaven Elementary School, and Sandra Flanagan, a kindergarten teacher at that same school. Both are active in the program and had favorable comments about the text being used and also about the program in general.

During the question and answer period that followed Ms. James' presentation Mr. Trotman said, "It is still too early to weigh the results of the program." Ms. Flanagan labeled the books as "versatile" and added, "It was just something different at first, but now the kids are accepting and applying the work to everyday life."

School Superintendent Dr. John Ellis explained that the board would be informed of further developments in this program and more precisely said, "A written report will hopefully be submitted to the Board by mid-year."

Board Members indicated that they were extremely pleased with the initial impact of the program and at the work being done by Ms. James.

Work For Teachers

Columbus—Even though Friday, Oct. 26, was a holiday for students in the Columbus schools, it was a day of study for their teachers.

Until recently, COTA day (Central Ohio Teachers Association) meant a mass meeting for teachers, then discussion groups held in a central location.

According to Dr. William Staats, special assistant to the superintendent for staff development and human relations, this year, in addition to the meeting designed by COTA, Columbus teachers have been given the option to participate in a variety of enrichment programs being offered throughout the school system.

With emphasis on human development, many schools are focusing on human relations unique to their area of the city.

THE STAFF AT Marion-Franklin High School, for example, invited staff members from junior highs and elementaries in the Marion-Franklin area to a morning session concerning background and lifestyle of Appalachian heritage. Two professors from Capital University, Dr. Alice Schenck and Dr. David Helms, spoke, then led

County Children's Services Levy Deserves Support

WORKING IN A clothing store with beautiful merchandise and luxurious surroundings may be the desire of some women, but two Bexley residents find satisfaction from running a used clothing shop located in a one-time school building shared with a police sub-station.

Mrs. Clyde (Nancy) England, 686 Pleasant Ridge Ave., and Mrs. Charles (Florence) Turner, 606 College Ave., are volunteers for Franklin County Children's Services (FCCS) and operate the free clothing shop three days a week for needy clients and their families.

"The work is so worthwhile," Mrs. England said. "I've learned a lot and I hope that maybe I've given a little something of myself in return."

INVOLVEMENT in Children's Services began six years ago for Mrs. Turner when the youngest of her five children started school. "I wanted to get involved," she explained, "and volunteer work is such a rewarding experience."

Originally located at Franklin Village, the shop was forced to move when the Village became overcrowded about five years ago. Mrs. Turner's husband, administrator of St. Anthony Hospital, offered the use of vacant Kilgallen Hall, 1389 Hawthorne Ave.

Most clothing for the store is donated by individuals, with some damaged items obtained from discount and department stores. All sizes and styles are needed at the shop, as it clothes entire families. Over 500 people received free clothing last year.

"WE ALWAYS need clothing," Mrs. England said, "and especially now during the school year." She emphasized a need for boys' trousers, sizes 8-12 and for girls dresses. Donated clothing may be brought to Franklin Village.

Mrs. England recalled one little boy who couldn't attend school because he had no clothes.

"When he came into the shop," she said, "he only had on a pajama top, old shorts, no shoes, and his sister's coat pinned together because it had no buttons."

THE VOLUNTEER activities performed by hundreds of people like Mrs. England and Mrs. Turner are only an example of FCCS' services.

Committed to strengthening the home life of troubled families, Children's Services offers family counseling, assistance to unmarried parents, foster home care, homemaker services, and adoption.

In addition, FCCS operates Franklin Village which serves as a temporary home for up to 200 youths.

Over 81 per cent of the funds for these services come from real estate and personal property tax levies. A 1.5 mill levy is up for RENEWAL by county voters November 6. NO INCREASE IN TAXES is involved, and the levy will provide funds for the next 10 years.

CHILDREN'S SERVICES belongs to the community. Any troubled family, regardless of income, can be served.

Unlike Mrs. Turner and Mrs. England you may not be able to devote your time to volunteering, but there is a way you can contribute to the well-being of over 8,000 children helped every year by FCCS. You can show your support for these services by voting for the renewal of the 1.5 mill levy. You can share with these women the enjoyment of helping others.

Volunteer Action Center Takes On A Brand New Look

VOLUNTEER service is taking on a new look and Franklin County's Volunteer Action Center (VAC) is largely responsible.

Since 1970 the Center-financed by local United Way and federal program funds-has functioned as an information clearing house bringing volunteer workers and agencies searching for volunteer help together.

According to Glenn Esh, VAC's new Executive Director, volunteer recruitment and placement will still be the Center's primary function, but training will be given more emphasis in the future.

"OUR TRAINING goal is threefold," Esh said. "First we want to educate the public about volunteerism and service opportunities open to everyone in Franklin County. We plan to do this through a revamped public information program that will focus on publicizing the volunteer service work of the ordinary citizens who make volunteer programs work."

"Secondly," Esh continued, "we want to train the volunteer, once he has come to us, to fully appreciate his service role. We want to orient volunteers to get as much as possible out of their experience so they will be as effective as possible on the job."

Esh said that the volunteer experience is important not only for the service rendered to the community, but also as a source of personal fulfillment for the individual.

"Our training program will help the volunteer interpret his personal experience as well as the broader spectrum of community needs," Esh explained.

ESH SAID that eventually VAC would extend its training program and become involved in giving some volunteers the actual skills required by their volunteer jobs.

"Right now most agencies do their own training and this will undoubtedly continue," Esh explained. "But VAC will try to develop its own in-service training resources to the point where we can advise agencies on how to improve their training program. Perhaps, we will actually help them do the training one day."

What happens to the potential volunteer who walks in or calls VAC?

"First, we ask some questions," Esh said. "We want to know the person's background, interests, special skills—anything that will tell us what kind of work he or she wants to do and where that work will be the most good."

"From that information, we select a service category which best matches the person's interests. Then the volunteer chooses a number of agencies from the category he might like to work with. Then we make the initial contact and get the volunteer and the agency together."

Esh noted that many times the process works in reverse with VAC getting requests for particular kinds or numbers of volunteers from a service agency. Either way, he said, VAC gets the job done saving volunteer and agency a lot of time and cutting through a lot of red tape.

VAC CURRENTLY services some 200 agencies and programs in Franklin County, funneling volunteers each year to where they can best utilize their skills and enthusiasm and get the most out of their service experience. VAC's motto is "ask what you can do." You need only call 638-7200 or visit 137 East State Street. VAC has the answer.

TUESDAY IS ELECTION DAY

Your vote in Tuesday's election could be more significant than your vote in the national election a year ago.

There are always fewer votes cast in off-year elections, so each vote cast is more important mathematically. Second, most of us are affected more directly by the actions of local officials. Third, the federal government has not proved itself very effective in dealing with local concerns.

State and local governments should, separately or in cooperation with each other, find the means to carry greater responsibility for the planning, support and performance of public services. And where federal funds are involved, they should be handled responsibly for constructive programs and not relegated to the maintenance of unproductive overhead at the state or local level.

Support should be given to candidates who support programs which contribute to more effective and self-sufficient state and local government without encroaching on activities which should be left to the private initiative.

The choice is yours. You can help assure good government here at home with your vote!

Multiple Sclerosis Society Helps 'Home Train'

A NEW PROGRAM of group therapy sessions is helping to "home train" many area citizens who are victims of multiple sclerosis.

According to Larry Rhodes, executive director of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, 137 E. State St., multiple sclerosis is a non-contagious disease of the central nervous system which usually attacks persons between 20 and 40 years old.

These sessions meet at Jaycee Arms on the fourth Wednesday of each month to develop specialized jobs or crafts that the disabled persons may do at home.

"DEADLINES and standards are the most serious problems a multiple sclerosis victim faces in keeping his job with a company," Rhodes said.

He explained that the multiple sclerosis patient can have a relapse at any time and therefore may not be able to maintain a steady work schedule.

The group therapy sessions give patients a chance to earn money for their families.

"We had 8 or 9 patients at first, but now there are about 40 attending the sessions," Rhodes said.

WHENEVER possible, multiple sclerosis patients handle their own transportation. Neighborhood car pools also are available in many instances.

Rhodes said that one of the greatest benefits of the sessions is providing an opportunity for patients to talk with each other and discuss common problems and solutions.

Trained personnel and volunteers also attend the therapy sessions.

Rhodes described this program as "more than the stringing beads-type of therapy. It also offers patients a feeling of being in contact with the world."

Further information about the program may be obtained from the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, 228-0849.

THE SOCIETY is a United Way (UW) agency and received $44,450 in supportive UW funds during 1972.

Naval Admiral To Speak

Rear Admiral Samuel L. Gravelly Jr., USN, will be in central Ohio for two speaking engagements, Thursday, Nov. 1.

The first Black naval officer to be promoted to flag rank, Admiral Gravelly will speak at the Defense Construction Supply Center in Columbus during a luncheon in his honor. The function will be hosted by the Navy Recruiting District, Columbus.

He will speak again as guest of honor, at the Annual Faculty Dinner at Central State University, Wilberforce, Ohio.

The admiral began his naval career in 1943 as an enlisted man, and by 1944 had attended both Navy and civilian schools and commissioned an Ensign, USN.

Since then he has served in numerous jobs throughout the world both ashore and at sea, and has had command of four combatant ships, including USS Jouett (DLG-29), one of the Navy's most modern guided missile frigates.

He has been a two star admiral since 1971 and is presently serving as Commander, Cruiser Destroyer Group TWO, which is in the process of changing headquarters from Newport, R.I., to Charleston, S.C.

Admiral Gravelly is married to the former Alma Clark of Christiansburg, Va., and they have three children.

Service Guild Has Open House

The Columbus Community is invited to attend the 2nd Youth Service Guild, Inc. Open House Sunday, November 4 at the Group Living Home, 70 Auburn St. Visitation will begin at 3 p.m. and extend until 4 p.m.

This will be an opportunity for all citizens to tour the home, and fellowship with the club members.

Refreshments will be served.

Mrs. John White, Chairman, and her committee are actively engaged in making plans for the Open House.

Youth Service Guild, Inc. has served the Columbus Community for the past 13 years. The organization now has the Group Living Home as its major project.

You're Telling Us!

The Spectator Newspapers welcome letters from readers, expressing their views on subjects of interest to them—whether initiated by news stories or editorial expression in this newspaper or not. Because of space limitations, we prefer letters which do not exceed 300 words. All letters submitted for publication must be signed with the writer's name and address, although—upon request—the name of the writer can be withheld. Letters should be marked: "To the Editor, Spectator Newspapers, 3421 South Boulevard, Columbus, Ohio 43204" and must be received by Friday noon prior to publication date for possible publication in that week's edition.

No Vote Asked On Issue Rezoning

To the Editor:

An important issue that will affect the entire Worthington community will appear on the November 6 ballot.

We should like to bring this issue to the attention of all Worthington voters.

On July 24, 1972, over the strenuous objection of a large number of citizens, the Worthington City Council voted to change the zoning of the tract of land bounded by Shrock Road, Worthington Galena Road and the railroad tracks from R-10, Single Family Dwellings, to AR-45, Low Density Apartments.

A grass roots campaign began immediately to place this issue on the ballot. Over 1,000 signatures—twice the number required—were quickly obtained from all parts of Worthington.

This referendum will be on the ballot on November 6th. It will allow the voters of Worthington to directly determine the orderly development of our community.

We urge all Worthington voters to vote NO on this issue. A NO vote on the rezoning referendum on Ord. 16-72 and Ord. 17-72 will: Continue the balanced residential character of Worthington;

Avoid creating additional danger at an already treacherous street crossing for school children;

Avoid further overloading city services and facilities—sewers, water, etc.

The need for more apartments in Worthington—especially in the northeast quadrant—is questionable.

Within the Worthington city limits, there are 443 apartment units now with zoning approved to bring this total to about 700. Just outside of Worthington on Shrock Road, Burch Boulevard, and East Granville Road, a total of 2,400 apartment units will soon be available.

A NO vote on this rezoning will prevent the construction of another high density complex of apartments and duplexes and will permit the construction of a housing development compatible with the surrounding area.

Ex-Football Coach Asks Whitehall Levy Support

To the Editor:

Attention: Whitehall Tax Payers and Voters

As a parent, teacher, voter, and double tax payer (homeowner and rental property), I ask you to forget about the audit for now. Please think about the children of the Whitehall City Schools. We must pass the School Levy. By doing this we will maintain the good educational programs we have now and need in the future to keep a good community.

Some of the programs are: kindergarten; elementary art, music, and physical education; tutoring; N.H. classes; EMR classes; remedial reading; speech therapy; vocal and instrumental music; Distributive Education; Cooperative Education; boys' and girls' athletics; Ramettes; Cheerleading; Marching Band; dramatics; debate; summer school; and night school.

Other services that are good for the children and community are: bus service, school nurses, school psychologists, library assistants, guidance counselors, cafeteria service, educational field trips, and the use of the schools by churches, Scouts, city recreation, and civic groups.

Another message I would like to pass on to you—I have been going to the same barber (Bill Goldsmith) for my 18 years in Whitehall, and I will never forget what he told me a long time ago. Bill came from behind the Iron Curtain, and he told me he is glad he is alive and able to pay taxes just to be able to live in this great country. When, at times, we all take our privilege to vote and pay taxes for granted, we can learn from this man. In some countries we would not be asked to vote for what we want—we would be told!

A special thanks should go to all school P.T.A.'s and volunteer workers we have in the community.

Thanks for your vote, Jim Blime, Ex-Football Coach

Senators, Congressmen Have Local Addresses

Spectator area residents who wish to contact their representatives and congressmen don't have to write to Washington for that purpose.

The four have local offices and mail sent to them locally will let them know it is from this area.

Their addresses are:

U.S. Senator Robert Taft Jr., 111 E. State St., Columbus, Ohio 43215.

Congressman Samuel J. Devine, 55 Marwood Blvd., Columbus, Ohio 43215.

Congressman Chambers P. Wylie, 55 Marwood Blvd., Columbus, Ohio 43215.

Crucial Corner

NOBODY SAID PARENTING WAS EASY

"I discipline him, but it never does any good...I've always told him: if he's good, he can have a bicycle at Christmas...She gets an allowance, and still won't do her chores...When he whines at me, I could just scream!...That child thinks he's in control of this house...my husband and me end up fighting with each other over how to handle him."

These are comments of parents attempting to cope constructively with their children's behavior. It seems that every parent at one time or other finds his child intractable and unmanageable—in short, "he's driving me to drink!" Reasonable plans and strict discipline seem to backfire.

Parents who find themselves in this predicament might ask themselves the following questions:

-Do I find myself punishing the kids all the time? I've had to take away all privileges—now they might as well disobey. They've got nothing to lose!

-Do I give any attention to the good things they do? Maybe I have to really pick out those things—like playing together quietly—and praise them for that.

-Am I giving too much attention to the squabbles and other behavior I don't like?

-The kids enjoy my attention—even if the only way they can get it is to get "a rise" out of me. Am I "rewarding" their poor behavior with this?

-Wouldn't it be easier to ignore some of the poor behavior? After all, it's no fun to have a tantrum if no one pays any attention.

-If I let it go on, will my child soon get tired of it? If I let him go ahead and do it, even my son is going to get tired of hearing marbles!

-Maybe if I took a few steps, that would prevent the poor behavior from happening in the first place. It takes less out of me to put my back in the bank, than to punish John for stealing.

-If the kids do act up, do I make EVERYBODY worse by getting so upset myself? Perhaps some "time-out" in their room is better than my scolding.

-Do I expect good behavior from the kids just because that's what they SHOULD do? Maybe they're more like me: I need an incentive (paycheck!) to go to work.

-Without it I wouldn't work hard every day, even though a good father SHOULD.

-If the kids and I make "a contract," are they clear on what they have to do to earn what?

-Am I expecting them to work too long before earning their "reward"? Even I would have trouble working if I only got a day off every three months!

-Am I expecting them to work for something they don't really care about?

-Do I expect perfect behavior too soon? Maybe at first I should give them credit for just TRYING to make their beds.

"United we stand. Divided we fall." Are we no parents letting the kids play us against each other?

-Do I expect the KIDS to do all the changing? Maybe I might compromise a little too.

Police Say FARE Working

Columbus-FARE the Fatal Accident Reduction Enforcement program in Columbus is now beyond the half-way point and local police are pointing to a significant decrease in traffic fatalities as evidence FARE is a success.

FARE works to reduce fatalities by assigning additional police to high-accident areas, particularly dangerous intersections, expressway ramps and similar hazardous areas.

Figures released by the Columbus Division of Police show that from May 25, when FARE was launched, through Oct. 8, there were five fatalities in FARE-patrolled areas compared with 11 during the same period in 1971, a reduction of 54.5 per cent.

FARE will continue in operation locally through the end of the year and police are anticipating continuing impressive results.

Sergeant Carl Clark of the Accident and Investigation Squad, who administers FARE, believes the public is growing increasingly aware of the extra police on traffic duty.

"People see our cruisers out in force and become more cautious in their driving," Clark observed.

FARE is funded by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

A FARE public information program is also being conducted to make motorists, pedestrians and motorcycle and bicycle riders aware of the stepped-up effort to reduce fatalities. The FARE public information program includes bumper stickers, paste-down footprints, posters, public service radio and television messages by Actor Paul Lynde, and frequent police reports on FARE to the news

In addition to Columbus, FARE also operates in Youngstown, Canton, Akron, Cincinnati and Toledo.

Scouts Have New Office, Uniforms

WEST COLUMBUS-The Seal of Ohio Girl Scout Council held an open house recently for the general public at the new council office, 1236 Hubbard Rd., Galloway. The cost of the new building was approximately $100,000. The new office building was necessary because of the difficulty of finding an office and the high rents in a downtown location. It was decided that the Girl Scouts would use their own land at Camp Ken Jockey. The Girl Scout sported new uniforms as well as a new building. Shown here (left to right) are Linda Shaffer, a Senior; Susan Brand, a Cadette; Lori Baker, a Junior; and Michelle Chera, a Brownie.

Assigned To Norton AFB

East Columbus-Airman Victor G. Everett Jr., son of Victor G. Everett Sr., 3378 York Lane S., has been assigned to Norton AFB, Calif., after completing Air Force basic training.

During his six weeks at Lackland AFB, Tex., he studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

Airman Everett has been assigned to a unit of the Air Force Communications Service for further training and duty as a communications specialist.

The airman attended Walnut Ridge High School. His wife, Deborah, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerald Nelwanger of 8078 Justin Rd.

VFW Scholarship Program Opens Soon

West Columbus-"Students win more than awards and scholarships when they participate in the V.F.W. Voice of Democracy Scholarship Program," said Commander Ralph Arms of V.F.W. Post 486, in discussing the script writing program conducted annually by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Some of the fringe benefits, according to Commander Arms, are increased self-confidence and poise, experience in communicating with others and valuable training in self expression.

For the state winners there is also the broadening experience of a five-day tour of Washington, D.C., and the opportunity to make friendships with the other state winners.

In the 13 years that the Veterans of Foreign Wars have been sole sponsor of the Voice of Democracy Program, more than 3,000,000 high school students have participated.

Participants write and then tape-record a three-to-five minute broadcast script expressing their personal views on their "Responsibility as a Citizen."

From among the state winners, five national winners are chosen to receive a total of $22,500 in scholarships.

"One of the greatest benefits to young people who take part in the program is that by thinking, writing and speaking on their responsibility as a citizen, they gain a better appreciation of their obligation to maintain our freedom heritage," Commander Arms said.

The program will be getting underway in the next few weeks.

Begin Judo Registration

West Columbus-The Hilltop Y.M.C.A. Judo Club will be accepting registrations for beginning junior and advanced junior students Thursday, Nov. 1, and Tuesday, Nov. 6. Registrations will be accepted at the front desk.

grades improve after a few sessions.

The Y staff would like to invite the family to join them Thursday, Nov. 1, to have questions answered.

The Okay Sweaters

'IN' fashion
with Tess Stern

FOR DAYTIME, two wonderful Italian knit sweater looks designed by Bianca for Gino Paoli. New longer sweater in fine ribbed camel knit over sleeveless cable-knit accented waist sweater. Combination of brown and tan knit for a cardigan jacket worn over a V neck jacquard sleeveless vest... wool plaid jacquard pants.

LOTS OF WOMEN, who can pick out the right dinner dress or ballgown without any trouble, fall flat on their faces when it comes to picking out the right sweater. The world is more sweater crazy than ever this fall and winter... stores are already crammed and jammed with bulky wools, flat wools, cashmeres and synthetics. You might think that sweater shopping would be a cinch, but the truth is, out of all the knitted sweaters around, there are just a few absolutely okay sweaters sanctioned unanimously by all the girls with taste. Picking the right one is like a status symbol... everybody spots it at a glance.

Historically speaking, sweaters have come a long way

HAZEL HAIRE for Friedricks Sport likes the shawl-collar cardigan in heather tweed cable knit, belted at the waist in natural leather... matching skirt.

VICTOR COSTA believes in the sweater for all hours, day or night... like this white acrylic knit cardigan over white crepe sleeveless dinner pajama.

ROSANNA SHOWS the new look in a fisherman knit... a big sweater with shawl collar and snail belt.

since the days when Lana Turner was a sweater girl. Sweaters are no longer designed to show off a girl's figure... although there are manufacturers and spectators who keep hoping.

ON THE CONTRARY, today's most okay sweaters are big, bulky and shapeless... many of them like the Irish fisherman's sweater. That's why the girls of the best dressed list keep looking in men's sweater departments and specialty shops, where the sweaters are the biggest, bulkiest and most shapeless.

Still, one of the most okay sweaters that a woman can own is the cable knit sweater... only this year it's longer, bulkier, often cut like a jacket, belted at the waist and with deep shawl collar. This sweater was so darn right that it was shown by every designer in the American fall fashion shows in New York. Other okay looks are the wrapped cardigan, the blazer, single and double breasted sweaters, big top terry looks and chanel type cardigans, in everything from heathery tweed knits to ribbed weaves.

THERE ARE sweaters that achieve fame and fortune just by covering the right backs. A couple of these are the long, sloppy, low-buttoning cardigans synonymous with Rex Harrison and Dean Martin... the success sweaters they call them in Hollywood.

FOR LATE DAY and evening, the most okay sweater goes to the ankle or floor. You may call it a long knit dress or coat, if you like... however to the okay designers it's still a sweater, anyway you look at it!

CWU Join In Prayer

Friday Nov. 3, Church Women United of Columbus and Franklin County will join 2,000 other communities over the nation in the celebration of World Community Day. Services will be held in 10 neighborhood areas of the city.

The women will express their concern tangibly through gifts of material aid such as sewed pre-cut garments for children in disaster or refugee situations, good, clean usable clothing packed, labelled ready for shipping, gift certificates for use as needed for blankets, clothing, shoes in crisis

Proceeds from the sacrificial luncheons will be used locally for the Family Court Worker and for the layette fund used by CWU for needy mothers.

The World Community day offerings along with World Day of Prayer offerings become part of the Intercontinental Mission Fund used around the globe for scholarships for women in developing countries such as Zambia, for education and self-help among the American Indians, for victims of wars in Vietnam, Indonesia, Nigeria, for medical services among children, for hospitality and scholarships among overseas students in the USA.

May & Company At Ramada East

As far as I'm concerned, the greatest musical sounds this week can be heard at the beautiful Ramada Inn-East. The May Company is responsible for it all. No, not the same May Company that has been selling furniture for many, many years. This May Company sells music that will have you climbing the walls. This quintet, is without a doubt, one of the finest musical show groups to set foot on a Columbus stage.

There are four fellows and one gal in the group. Three of the men play a variety of instruments. When they all pick up their horns at the same time, it sounds like a section of the Stan Kenton Band.

That is due to the fact, that Charlie May, sax, clarinet, and bass, Jim Davis on trumpet and trombone and Eddie Ambrose on trumpet, trombone all sound like Stan Kenton Grade.

Charlie May plays gobs of tenor sax. His riffs and runs are something to hear. The same has to be said for Jim Davis. He hits more high notes on the trumpet than a soprano auditioning for the Met. Not only is Jim able to reach the highest of highs of the musical scale, he produces fantastic sounds in the process. His trombone work is equally fascinating. Eddie Ambrose is literally a genius at the organ, electric piano and horns. His work at the keyboards is sure and definite. Some of his solo work at the organ would make you think he has four hands.

Both Jim and Eddie, by the way, are former Columbus performers. Both have worked with Joe Lavenger's Time Timers, many years ago.

But, back to Charlie May for a minute. Take my word for it, this is one of the finest horn players you will hear in a long time. While Charlie shows you his musical abilities and the fact that he can play far out jazz, he keeps the lid on it all by keeping to a rather heavy melody line. You might say that he just takes a tune and dresses it up fit to kill. And, kill it he does with his strong stylings.

Paul Keielling is the drummer and arranger for the outfit. The man is solid and shows a variety of creative approaches, both at the drums and with his charts.

Last, but certainly not least, is Catherine Chase. In my opinion, this gal is a singers singer. It is a treat to hear a girl like Catherine grab hold of a mike and belt you with some mighty fine vocal works. Just wait until you hear her attack, be it a ballad or a jump number. She has plenty of control, along with a wide range that permits her to reach high or low. Catherine is a real powerhouse of a singer.

Any one of the members of the group are worth a trip to the Ramada Inn-East. Put them all together, and your trip turns into a safari.

As you may imagine by now, The May Company is strictly a musical company. While some of the boys do some vocal solo work, and all join in are some fine vocal harmonies, it is instrumentation that makes this group cook. No matter what type of music they play, they play it well with a touch of modern jazz. This is true for the standard tunes, country and western numbers and the best of today's market.

I stopped in with the intention of catching one show because of a tight schedule, yet I ended up staying for two complete shows. This review was not work for me, it was pure enjoyment all the way. This is what's in store for you when you catch The May Company at the Ramada Inn-East.

Petty's Has Home Flavor

Petty's Restaurant, as I told you about a year ago, is one of the finest, if not the finest Italian restaurant in the Columbus area. Owned and operated by Wayne and Maria Petty, who do all of the cooking and planning, make this place a delight for

Between the two of them, they cook and prepare every item from "scratch." That is something you just don't find in the restaurant business today. Be it the dough for the spaghetti, ravioli or rigatoni, or the dough for pie, it is all homemade.

TALK ABOUT a tasty treat, you won't experience any better anywhere. For example, the spaghetti sauce is all made by Wayne and Maria. Nothing is pre-packaged.

Besides eating the best Italian food Around Town, you will also enjoy the beautiful, intimate decor of Petty's. The interior is simply designed for cozy quiet dining. It is so relaxing, that if you are like me, you'll want an extra cocktail or two, just so you can stay a little longer and enjoy the surroundings.

PETTY'S also have a nice lounge, that is as intimate and cozy as the dining room. Believe me, it is rather difficult to visit the lounge for just one drink, because everyone, including the help and customers, are so friendly, that you so find yourself involved in a pleasant circle of new found friends. I think of Petty's Restaurant as a home away from home.

One visit, and you'll agree. The food is as good, as at home. The atmosphere is warm and congenial.

But, most of all, it is the food that you will come back for again and again. Besides serving all types of Italian food that makes you think you are in the old country, Petty's also have a full menu of American food, including steaks, chops and seafood.

By the way, most of their Italian dishes includes an antipasto salad that has everything with which a real antipasto should be prepared.

Petty's restaurant is a dining treat of good, old fashioned Italian cooking. Yet, you only have to drive south to Harrisburg Pike. Take my advice, don't close your eyes, or you'll swear that you made the wrong turn and ended up in Rome.

Skipping Around Town

Business has been so good, that "The Cheerleaders," and "Fritz the Cat," have been held over at the Holiday Drive-In and North High Drive-In theatres. These are two great pics. See them this week.... Dropped in at the Charleston Club a few nights ago. Owner Hal Case has done some redecorating, added some sexy new gals, and the place is certainly a fun spot to go. Wait until you see Rose Blackie do her thing on stage. What a gal, and what a body. Very interesting and charming personality, too... For some nice, soft music for dancing or easy listening, make the Holiday

Country Style

SUPER SHOWMAN Mel Tillis and The Statekidders will headline an all-star Country Music show at Vets Memorial Auditorium, Saturday, Nov. 3, at 8:30 p.m. Appearing with Tillis will be country stars George Wallace Jr., above, and Melba Montgomery.

Ann-North a must on your entertainment schedule. These two fellows play music that is easy to talk by, Jerry and Nick are on organ - drum duo playing in a style that includes a heavy melody line and simple rhythms. Most of their music is from the oldies era. Yet they play a lot of the better songs of today. The room is softly lit, and it is truly a great place to spend a relaxing evening... Another spot I have not mentioned for a while is the Kingswood Inn Motel. Their restaurant is tops. The food is fit for a king. They have several different menus each week at prices you wouldn't believe. Very reasonable. I think you will enjoy the nice, pleasant atmosphere, also. You'll never go wrong at the Kingswood Inn Motel. It is one of my favorite dining spots. One of my favorite gal entertainers is back in town. Her name is Jo Kiser. Besides being one of the most talented performers to come down the pike with her singing and fine piano stylings, Jo is also one of the prettiest. You can see and hear her nightly at the Lincoln Lodge. This gal is solid gold. She is really an entertainer...For something deliciously different, stop in at the Ramada Inn South this Friday and try their Canoe of Seafood Buffet. All types of delicious seafood. This has to be a must for you lovers of good seafood.... Several new acts Around Town next week, watch for their reviews and enjoy yourself. See you Around Town.

West-Ready Hartley-Watterson Top Weekend

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Special Sports Writer

Oh, it'll be some weekend, these last two regularly scheduled nights of schoolboy gridiron action coming upon us. It should be so intense, so rugged, that you will probably even find the cheerleader watching the game instead of those lovely young rah rah ladies. (Don't worry girls we'll still be peeking at you).

AND WHAT else could we refer to here than that Friday night Eastmoor at Walnut Ridge showdown matchup that looks as huge a rivalry as the entire east side. That matchup will merely send the winner waltzing as the South representative into the City Championship game one week later.

Enter in stage left the guttiest Central Catholic League helmet crashing that you want to find when Hartley and Watterson tangle in a Saturday night affair at Whetstone and don't think some PRIDE won't be at stake in that hard-bitter.

TOP THOSE two daring dandys off with a backyard scuffle between neighborhood buddies West and Ready in a Friday non-leaguer and the featured pigskin parties are complete.

BOB STUART's wonderful Warriors carry a clean 8-0 slate (8-0 in City League play) into Scot territory while Vince Cahill's once beaten slippery Scots need a win for a share of this 1973 City Crown.

All anxious viewers must be sure not to forget that 28-27 licking the Warriors took at the hands of the Scots last year that earned Walnut Ridge the City South Crown, because you can be sure its been fresh in the minds of the Warriors since its happening.

It will have to be some classic confrontation, Ray Griffin and the wall of these Scots. Marty Reid and Carl Turner at the defensive ends with four meanies at linebacker slots in Kevin and Mark Glenn, Steve Winslow and Mike Woodburn. Jack Stephenson, Bob Cole and Mike Nichols will police the deep secondary as usual guarding against such UFO's as Eastmoor thrown bombs.

"Execution, will determine a winner in this one," added Cahill. "We know what they have and they know what we have, the personnel is just great, the team that expects will win."

Central vs West

CENTRAL'S fine tailback, Ty Redmond (88) got plenty of yardage on this scamper against West in the Friday tilt won by West.

NOW FOCUS the spotlight on the brilliance of Ron Shay and his Watterson Eagles. The Eagles with steady junior Dean Dixon at the QB helm have strutted through their eight game schedule with only one spill, that against a Cincinnati AAA toughie.

After ground gathering its way over Wehrle 33-0 Watterson faces the tough charges of Jack Ryan and his Hartley Kids, a group that is as upset-minded as they come.

Tight and Scott Bringardner has been much thrown to in this Eagle offensive unit and he and fullback Jim Grimm who collected 123 running yards in that Wehrle shutout balance the steady attack. And Bringardner is also the hub of this Eagle defense that will have its hands full chasing Hartley's passing ace Mark DiSabato.

DiSabato picked up a secondary apart last week in connecting on 9 of 13 throws for 110 yards and two TD's to speedy Ed Radcliff. You can bet that the aerial forces of Hartley will be in full swing at Saturday night's spectacle.

West enters its clash with a 5-3 season record much better than Ready 1-6 mark, but in a rivalry like this West Side one, records might just be ignored.

In other Friday key grid games Northland tries to rap up the City North Crown at Brookhaven. In the OCC Reynoldsburg is at Worthington, Whitehall travels to Westland and Gahanna vies for its second straight undisputed OCC championship in front of its home roosters against hapless Delaware.

London is at Bexley in the Mid-Eight and Franklin Heights buses to Marysville in the Metro League. Dayton Dunbar hosts East in an area non-leaguer.

SATURDAY's field finds Lucas at Academy in an afternoon tilt.

Other High action last week saw Linden down East 17-6 despite another Bill Anderson to Darrell Fields TD passing combo in the CL North.

In the City South, West blasted Central 28-12 behind sophomore QB Scootie Patrick. Emmett Scott rushed for 130 yards and handed off to the Williams men-Roosevelt and Ron-for three TC's.

Bexley dropped a 28-6 decision to Urbana in the Mid-Eight playoffs while Gary Jones paced Franklin Heights to a 40-20 romp over Grandview.

DeSales stayed in CCL contention with a 34-12 bumping of Ready. Ready accounted for its scoring with an 80 yard pass from Kevin Elgin to Keith Hill and a 60 yard scoot with a fumble by Tim Radish.

JIM CASE figured in both TD's in Academy's 14-12 Mid-Buckeye loss to Centerburg and an herculean effort by St. Charles' Dave Hellman-250 yards on the ground five TD's included-helped St. Charles another East Knox 33-0 in a non-leaguer.

OCC action had Gahanna smashing Reynoldsburg 40-4 and Worthington using a last minute 40 yard halfback pass from Gary Chambers to Tom Alts for a 19-14 margin over determined Whitehall.

Whitehall had surged ahead early in the game as strong throwing QB Jerry Montgomery fired a pair of TD shots-Rick Robinson and Mark Hunter on the receiving ends-with Vladi Anakievski connecting on the conversion boots.

Gary Coates, a tough Cardinal lineman, fell on a Ram fumble for an early Worthington score.

Knox Lake Bass Fishing

Angler harvest records recently received from Swank's Bait Shop at Knox Lake reflect some of the excellent largemouth bass fishing taking place at the lake. Morning fishing with artificial lures has been very productive for Ted Bullock of Mansfield. One outing produced 7 bass from 13 to 15 inches in size while his next produced a 21 inch, 6 pounder.

Other successful bass fishermen include: Ray Davino of Newark who caught 6 bass from 13 to 17 inches. Walter Backholt of Fredericktown caught a 20 inch weighing 5.5 lbs.

Be Sure Of A Place To Hunt

Don't be caught without a place to hunt this season. If you plan to hunt on private land, be sure to ask the landowner's permission and don't wait until the last minute. The wise sportsman has already made his farmer contact for an opening day hunt.

If you don't have a spot picked out, try a Co-Op farm. Under the Division of Wildlife's Co-operative Hunting Program, private landowners permit hunting on their farms free of charge. These areas are located by the yellow and black "Hunting With Permission Only" signs.

Over 179,000 acres of land are signed up in this program throughout Central Ohio. There are also public hunting areas in District One. Some of these include: Delaware Wildlife Area in Marion, Morrow and Delaware counties; Big Island Wildlife Area in Marion County; Urbana Wildlife Area in Champaign County; Deer Creek Reservoir Wildlife Area located in Pickaway, Madison and Fayette counties; Highway research Center, located in Logan and Union counties; and the Kokosing Wildlife Area, located in northwestern Knox County.

Late Fall Fishing In The Olentangy River

The Riffle Pool area of the Olentangy River is expected to produce many fine catches of both Smallmouth and Rock Bass this fall. Located between the Old Wilson Road Bridge and the intersection of Route 315 and Snouffer Road, this series of six pools is the subject of a study being completed with the assistance of the Division of Wildlife, by Mr. Ed Perry, a masters degree candidate at the Ohio State University.

Recent stream survey efforts have indicated large numbers of Smallmouth and Rock Bass to be present in the area.

Many Smallmouth Bass measuring from 10 to 16 inches have been captured and released during this survey, along with good numbers of Rock Bass up to 10 inches. Interviews with local fishermen have revealed that the best catches are being made along the eastern bank of the River with the best baits being small spinners, shallow-diving plugs and live nightcrawlers.

Access points to this area are located on Route 315 just south of the Snouffer Road intersection and off of Old Wilson Road adjacent to I-270.

Efficient Courts Mean Progress...

VOTE YES ON ISSUE 3

Issue Three is a constitutional amendment that makes possible the continued modernization of Ohio's courts. It authorizes administrative changes and permits further reorganization of the courts.

Issue Three can place Ohio among the leaders for court modernization. It picks up where Ohio's 1968 Modern Courts Amendment left off.

Issue Three does not involve an increase in taxes.

The Ohio State Bar Association—made up of lawyers who are intimately familiar with the operation of our courts—has endorsed voter approval of Issue Three. OSBA urges all Ohioans to vote "Yes" on this needed constitutional amendment.

Westland Artists To Have Exhibit At Neil House

GALLOWAY—AN EXHIBITION of art work created by Westland High School art students will be assembled at the Neil House Nov. 8, 9 and 10 for the convention of the Ohio Art Education Association. Shown here are Sheila Ambrogio with instructors Dee Toney and Wes Blizard. Westland was singled out for this honor because of their participation in and honors received from the 1972-73 Ohio Youth Art Exhibition. Blizard is also section chairman for the OAEA section to be held Thursday from 5:30-7:30 in the Neil House Ballroom. The art has been contributed by teachers and students from all over the state. The artists will receive 30 per cent and the OAEA 70 per cent of the bid. The money will go to support the National Art Education Association in raising funds to build a new National Center for Art Education near Washington, D.C. Blizard is chairman for the auction to be conducted by Carl Walker.

Special Ed Works With Parents

BY EATHY DEYANEY

Grove City—"For the parents of the learning disabled and EMR (educable mentally retarded) children we have conducted for the last three years a short (six-week) course in behavior management techniques. We coordinate the strategies of the teacher in the classroom and the way parents handle the children at home," Faye E. Alban, director of special education for the South-Western City School District, said.

The district has 400 slow learners or EMR; 190 children with learning disabilities; 100 severely emotionally handicapped; and 90 in the enrichment program.

The enrichment program is for the academically gifted in the third, fourth and fifth grades. They have such subjects as art and music appreciation, creative art and drama. It is enrichment rather than acceleration, Miss Alban said.

EMR STUDENTS have a complete program for grades 1-12. The last year in school they have a work experience and receive four credits.

"The district is trying to identify the learning disabled in the first three grades and help them overcome their learning problem or to help them compensate for it and then return them to the regular classes," she said.

The special children are integrated into the school to the degree they can handle the academic areas; they are not isolated, Miss Alban said.

There are tutors for the learning disabled within the school during the day and tutored home instruction is also provided for children who can't come to school.

PARENTS CAN'T just request that their child be put in a program, Miss Alban said.

"There is a long waiting list for special classes so we rarely accept those from outside the system. We have five psychologists and four interns who are continually testing children. They work in all the schools and counsel parents, teachers, guidance counselors and outside agencies working with the children," she said.

Special education is a state reimbursed program operated under state standards with set requirements of age range, ability levels and class size, she said.

Miss Alban is happy to see parents organizing on a local and state level to get legislation through to help their children. "Two years ago was the first time special education had a lobbyist in the legislature."

THE MATERIALS needed to teach special children are becoming more readily available. There is now an instructional resource center which provides service to a seven county area.

Teachers can go to the center on Ninth St. and examine materials designed for special class programs. The center also provides in-service training so that teachers can keep up with current strategies on methods and materials.

REAL Experience Related By Students

BY KATHY DEYANEY

Galloway—Approximately 100 parents, teachers, students and administrators attended a meeting at Westland High School at which students participating in Project REAL (Realistic Educational Approach to Learning) told of their experiences in the program.

REAL is a federally funded program which gives students entering professions an opportunity to see and experience what awaits them after their after-high school training.

"The careers came from the students. It was what they wanted to do," Ed Hantel said.

According to Hantel, director of the program, there are 20 students in education, six with the city police, two with the military, two in TV-broadcast, two in restaurant management, one in journalism, one in commercial photography, three in law, one in medicine, one with an oral surgeon, two in social work and two in scientific research.

DURING THE SLIDE program the students described the work they were doing and what they expected to be doing throughout the year.

Joan Osendott is not only gaining work experience she may have her realtors license by April. She is working for Rucker Realty learning office procedure.

Because of the new law giving 18-year-olds full legal rights she will be able to attend pre-licensing school and have her license to sell real estate before she graduates.

James Ford, who is working for Top's Photographers, was surprised at the difference between commercial and artistic photography. "You just suit the purpose and don't worry about the artistic quality,"

Urtas Hughes and William Harrison are learning restaurant management while working at Lazarus West and family owned, Todd's Pizza, respectively.

"THE RESTAURANT manager has to learn the whole place. He has to learn all there is to do so if someone doesn't know something he can tell them," Hughes said.

The manager is also responsible for hiring and supervising employees, making up schedules of working hours, making sure the place is clean before closing and keeping the customers happy, he said.

Paul Sidlo and Lorn Mullenix are working at a local television station as assistant directors.

"We keep the talent informed about time, cue the audience to applaud and set up props. We are the only communication between the control room and the talent. The audience is very important because they set the tempo of the show; they must participate," Sidlo said.

Lorn said, "We are like apprentices to the director. We do what he doesn't like to do like. We also move and build props."

JOHN KELLY is working in Municipal Court; James Picklesimer is in the Attorney General's office and Fred Downin is in the Court of Domestic Relations.

Kelly is working as a bailiff and he hopes after the election to get into the courtroom and see how it works and to get into traffic court and visit the city prison.

Picklesimer is working in the consumer fraud section of the Attorney General's office tracing companies who have been unethical to see if they've ever been in trouble before.

Downin works in juvenile court as a bailiff. "The bailiff tells the judge which case is coming up next, talks to probation officers about kids, etc."

"CONFIDENTIALITY is important in all these positions," Hantel said. "This puts a pretty heavy load on their shoulders. Each has placed his honor on the line."

The six students with the Columbus Police Department—Richard Courter, Mike Davis, Mark South, Tom Turner, George Hakes and Matt Smith—will be rotated through four sections through February.

In February they will specialize in one of the four which they choose.

The 20 students in education—Renee Bostick, Debbie Brown, Christine Huddy, Lisa Green, Andrew Burns, Shelly Dye, Richard McMahon, Richard Morris, Michael Riggs, Paula Foresta, Brenda Hag, Roger Schwaigert, Jon Sibole, Debbie Hedrick Janice Smith, Pamela Spurlock, Karen Basil, Shirley Stroble, Leslie Walker, and Laurel Keyser—are working at all grade levels, pre-school and special education.

HANTEL HAS THREE goals: that they work as teacher aids, student teachers and as teachers during the year. Each is different and he wants them to experience each.

Other professions include: David Brackens, Lisa Metcalf and Ken Case in research; Michael Daum is a team trainer at OSU; Tim Carver is working with an oral surgeon; Martha Toelle is working with a physician; Carol Hidy is working at Southwest Mental Health Center; Rebecca Wills is working at Franklin Village; Debbie Meyers is working at the Spectator; and Steve Leaman and John Wade are working for the Lockbourne Air Force Police.

Hantel hopes that through this experience these future professionals will identify where they want to go and what they want to do.

For New Centers, Existing Schools

Voc Ed Future Plans Outlined

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Special Staff Writer

Columbus—Future plans for career and vocational education in the Columbus Public Schools were outlined in a report to the Columbus School Board at its Oct. 30 Committee-of-the-Whole meeting. The report was presented by Fred Ricketts, director of Practical Education for the Columbus School System.

Ricketts' report included plans for programs to be offered in the new high schools which are to be built as part of the recent bond issue passage and the four career-vocational centers that are also included in the school construction plan. Also included in the presentation were plans covering programs to be offered in existing high schools.

Ricketts pointed out that the biggest class and enrollment increase from the 1972-73 school year to the 1973-74 school year was the increase in Business Office Education which increased 10 classes and 175 students.

THE FOUR PROPOSED Vocational Centers are the South-East Career Center which will accommodate 1,000 students, North-East Career Center 1,300 students, North-West Career Center 1,200 and the Metropolitan Career Center which is to be completed first and house the most students, 1,800.

According to Ricketts 180 different vocational course programs will be offered and not only will this effect students attending the school or center, but, "We hope to have this open to every student in the entire city for not only enrollment but also for inspection." Ricketts added that 75 courses that were not offered before will be available to students.

Ricketts explained that each Vocational Center would have its own different specialties. Jack Gibbs, executive director of the soon to be completed Metropolitan Career Center added that he hoped more money could be allocated so that new programs such as child care and the performing arts could also be added under this program.

Ricketts also explained the procedure used for picking these career programs saying, "We choose them by the labor forecasts, recommendations of advisory committees and student interest surveys."

SPEAKING OF PLACEMENT Ricketts said, "We want every door of education open as long as employment exists in the field. If employment in the field dries up, we will have to close that particular department."

But Ricketts also emphasized, "We want the seniors of these schools to have early placement and have a realistic work situation while they are still in high school."

Flexibility in programs and services was tabbed as the major objective of each center and the board outlined what each Career-Center will provide. These provisions are:

Competent instructors with rich backgrounds of successful work experience.

Facilities and equipment for approximately 25 specialized vocational programs not available in the comprehensive high school or in other career centers.

VOCATIONAL PROGRAMS during school hours for students 16 years of age and older, and in the evening for adults.

Time blocks for programming based on the amount of time required for the development of entry level skills and competencies necessary for vertical mobility.

Advisory committees for all programs to insure up-to-date curriculum, equipment and programming.

Flexible scheduling service so that students may attend a center on a half day basis and return to a comprehensive high school for required general courses and other elective programs.

SPECIALIZED GUIDANCE services related to student needs and career development.

A program of career motivation, orientation and exploration available for students, grades kindergarten through tenth.

Services in job placement as employment readiness is developed.

Specialized services dealing with weakness in basic reading and mathematics skills as they relate to career development.

Ricketts and his associates that have worked on the project with him were lauded by school Superintendent Dr. John Ellis for their fine work and also by the Board itself. Board Vice-President Mrs. Virginia Prentice said, "These offerings are just tremendous, diversified and individualized."

Board President Thomas Moyer congratulated the men saying, "I'm very pleased with this report; this represents the promise of the forefront of vocational education."

Dr. Ellis concluded by informing the board that future refinements of this program would be presented to the board when available.

Seminar To Explain Early Detection

Columbus—A seminar to explain the methods of early identification of the developmental disabilities of mental retardation, epilepsy, cerebral palsy and educational delay, will be held Monday, Nov. 19, at the Gladden Community House.

The panel includes Dr. Antoinette Easton, Director of the Birth Defects Clinic at Children's Hospital; Connie Nelson, home trainer with the Franklin County Program for the Mentally Retarded; and Marian Chase, Chief of Physical Therapy at the Ohio State University's Nisonger Center.

The seminar is designed to acquaint out-reach workers, para-professionals and professionals from mental health clinics, day care centers and other groups who daily have contact with children in the community or in homes in the Southwest area of Columbus and

Franklin County. Mrs. Susanne Berry, Child Development Specialist with ADD, will explain the agency's role in the community during the seminar scheduled from 2 p.m. until 4:30 p.m.

Information Officer Ashley Resigns

Columbus—Joseph A. Ashley, supervisor of public information for the Columbus Public Schools, has resigned to accept another position, Dr. John Ellis, superintendent of schools, announced Tuesday.

Ellis said Ashley's resignation would be effective Nov. 2.

Ashley joined the school system in August, 1971, after a nine-year career in radio news in West Virginia, Indiana and Ohio. He had been an award-winning newsman with WTVN-Radio for two and one-half years at the time he was employed by the schools.

Ellis said Ashley's resignation was received "with deep regret." He commended Ashley for "making a solid contribution to the communications program of the Columbus Public Schools" during his tenure.

"Joe Ashley leaves the school system with the respect of the Board of Education, administrators and everyone who had an opportunity to become acquainted with his integrity, friendliness and ready wit. We wish him well in his new endeavor," Ellis said.

Ashley had major responsibility for the school system's media relations and editing INTERCOM, the staff newsletter.

Ellis said he hoped to be able to appoint a successor to Ashley on an interim basis next week.

"The communication specialist's position is an important post at the Columbus Education Center," Ellis said. "The person with the character, competence and commitment required by this position may be under contract elsewhere at the present time and might not be available until next summer. We will conduct a thorough search for the permanent successor to Mr. Ashley," Ellis said.

WEST COLUMBUS—Haynes Reddick may be the last Hilltop Kiwanis Club member to keep Herman the lamb for a week. If the club reaches its goal of selling 30,000 of ads for the Christmas newspaper, Herman will be allowed to rest on his laurel of being "super incentive for sales." The club reached a total of $5,150 for the 27th Annual Christmas Newspaper Sale Dec. 6. Last week the eight teams turned in $1,156 in ads. This is the highest total the club has reached.

Crucial Corner

Implied in the notion of identifying and dealing with early childhood problems is that we have a definition and a description for "normal" development. Available to parents are many guidelines by which they might judge their child's development as normal, advanced or delayed. Many parents are aware of developmental time-tables putting into place the major accomplishments of a child, such as walking, talking, toilet training, and so on. When they try to assess whether their child is "on schedule."

For example, it is expected that walking is normally accomplished between the ages of 9-13 months. Toilet training is expected to be accomplished between the ages of 2 1/2-3 1/2 years. And by the age of 2 years, a child should have acquired an expressive vocabulary of about 25 words and by age 3 have doubled that capacity and developed the use of prepositional or simple sentences.

But what is confusing to parents is when even the experts disagree among themselves, as they sometimes do, on defining what is "normal." One thing to remember is that "normal" is a range and not a definitive point.

So, when an expert says that the average age for walking is 10-11 months, what this means is that approximately half of all children walk at that age and not necessarily that a child is delayed if he is not walking at 10 months.

"Normal" has to be discussed in terms of the individual child in addition to a definition and a description for "normal" development.

The same can be said for behavior. Behavior grows. It has patterns and shapes as do other areas of a child's development. All children go through stages in behavior. This is the idea behind the story of the "Terrible Twos" for example.

Often at the age of two years a child is experiencing a smooth period. He is sure of his motor abilities, can use some language effectively and can be warmly responsive to others. Compared to just a few months earlier, he is having relatively little difficulty with himself or with his world.

Around the age of 2 1/2 years, however, the smoothness begins to give way. He can become domineering and demanding. He wants what he wants when he wants it. And he can be very persistent! The situation for most children again begins to quiet down around the age of 3 years.

It is important to remember, however, that a child goes through stages in his own individual way. The "difficult period" attributed to the average 2 1/2 year old child may appear somewhat sooner or later than this time. Or a child may be of such a mild nature that even at his worst he does not present the negative behavior to any really significant degree.

On the other hand, he may be of such a nature that this "difficult period" is ever present in varying degrees. And finally, it is important to recognize that behavior can be strongly influenced by the home environment and other surroundings he experiences.

When you look at your child with the question "Is he developing normally," don't hold him exactly to a timetable. Timetables are valuable and important guides, but they are also averages.

Secondly, because some behavior may be described as "typical" for a given age, don't be shocked if your child doesn't fit the bill. There can be many explanations. On the other hand, don't ignore the difficult "typical" behavior. Knowing that it is "just a stage" can help you to be more relaxed about it, and it is important to face the matter to deal with it more effectively and with understanding for your child's needs.

Lastly, if you have some concern or questions about your child's development or behavior, a good person to consult is your physician. He can help you determine what is normal for your child.

Also, regular and periodic check-ups for your child with a physician is important. This provides the opportunity to detect any deviations from "normal" development at the earliest time possible and gives assurance for greater ease and success in dealing with any developmental problems.

Walnut Ridge-Northland Replay 1972 Title Match

HERE'S the second Ridge TD of the night against Eastmoor and it made the score 13-0. That's Matt Gutman on the ground over the goal line.

AFTER AN Eastmoor goal line stand - they stopped the Scots on a 4th down and goal situation - the Eastmoor offense took over and here, Ray Griffin (44) scampered for four yards.

PLAIN TALK About The FUEL SHORTAGE!

When I first introduced Flex-O-Glass in 1952, I could never imagine that 20 years later America would be faced with a serious fuel shortage - a problem which Flex-O-Glass would be such an economical way of helping millions of homes stay warm this winter. Flex-O-Glass saves both fuel and money. Homes protected against winter wind and zero weather with Warp's Flex-O-Glass actually save up to 40% on fuel costs.

Warp's CRYSTAL-CLEAR FLEXIBLE PLASTIC FLEX-O-GLASS

EASY TO INSTALL
Just Cut FLEX-O-GLASS to Size and Tack Over Screens

More heat is lost through windows than from any other part of the house. In fact a 1/8" crack around a standard size 3 ft. by 6 ft. window equals a 5 inch square hole in the glass. That's why it pays to seal drafty windows by covering them with Warp's Flex-O-Glass.

FLEX-O-GLASS is the ONLY Plastic Window Material GUARANTEED FOR 2 FULL YEARS!

Gahanna Repeats In OCC Watterson Is CCL Champ

By Sandy Schwartz
Spectator Sports Writer

IT WAS A rainy day in November last year when Northland outlugged Walnut Ridge for the City League Football Championship. And it was a hot muggy day in August when Walnut Ridge grid mentor Vince Cahill told the SPECTATOR, "The conditions that we played Northland under last year in the City Championship game were just awful, mud everywhere, but we aren't making excuses, we'd just like to get back there this year."

Well the Scotsmen did just that last week in popping Eastmoor 27-0 in earning the berth via a co-championship with Eastmoor in Saturday's 10 a.m. showdown at Walnut Ridge.

And even better than getting a return ticket to the "City League Super Bowl" the defense-oriented Scots meet that same foe of a year ago, Northland.

DON'T THINK some revenge won't be on the line there.

It should be some incentive playing the team that shutout these tough Scots who have now matured into the tightest defense in town under defensive coach Jack Stephenson.

Twenty two points the tough Scot defense has limited their luckless opponents as Eastmoor found out last week.

AND FEW probably realize that there is more dimension to this Walnut Ridge eleven than all-state linebacker candidate Steve Winslow and his defending dandys. Gary Gioia commands this smooth Scot wishbone which charged Eastmoor for 251 yards.

Matt Gutman has led with power for this wishboning success while Gioia likes to find wide receiver Bob Bardelang open to break the ground-gathering monotony. Terry Logan, Pete Bickel, George Snyder and Jeff Stace compliment Gutman admirably in the backfield.

AND WHILE all you Ridge Rooters are marveling over those offensive fireworks don't forget strong-toed Bickel and his accurate field goaling ability.

Yes, it should be some matchup for Coach Cahill and his successful footballers whose primary nemesis could conceivably be Viking fullback John Giroux. Giroux blends his power running with some fine option passing not to mention his punting strength.

And you really never know what Northland veteran coach Frank Howe has up his razzle-dazzle sleeve.

IN ANOTHER headline that could possibly surprise a few people St. Charles Cardinals challenge Watterson Saturday night at Whetstone. The Cardinals feature backfield ace Dave Heilmann who scored five times in one game while Watterson will try to counter with defensive end meanie Scott Brindgardner and passing wonder Dean Dixon.

Other action dotting the calendar this weekend has Reynoldsburg at Hartley and Grove City at Westland while St. Paris Graham and Ready tangle at West and DeSales travels to Franklin Heights all in non-leaguers.

IN OTHER action last week Gahanna tackled Delaware 27-3 to earn its second straight Ohio Capital Conference Championship.

Other OCC action saw the second place Worthington Cardinals thump Reynoldsburg 33-8 behind TD power of John Madry, Tom Atha, Dave Alban, Gary Chambers and Guy Colison. Two Tim Grandell TD passes included.

In the other OCC affair Rick Robinson romped for three scores to lead Whitehall to a 27-0 thrashing of Westland. Mt. Vernon surprised Westerville, 28-6. Watterson clinched the Central Catholic League Crown one more time with a 28-6 decision of Hartley. Jim Grimm sprinted three times to paydirt to lead the barrage.

IN A PAIR of non-leaguers involving City League teams East and Dayton Dunbar battled to a scoreless tie and West bombed Ready 23-6 behind a couple of Ron Williams six-pointers.

Senior halfback John Bernier bolted for two TDs in Bexley's 18-6 whumping of London and Franklin Heights running star Gary Jones took over the county's scoring lead with three scores in a 26-0 Heights blanking of Marysville.

Jim Case ran for three TDs in closing out his Academy career in a 30-20 win over Lucas.

Weather Halts Coverage

Incident weather last Friday and Saturday played havoc with The Spectator's photo coverage of the high school grid scene.

It's next to impossible to get in the photo swing of things in the rain and drizzle and dewy damp weather.

Sorry if your team wasn't covered.

Note-Able At Ramada North

The Note-Ables are the current attraction at the always swinging Ramada Inn-North. I can't think of a better name for these four men. Wait until you hear their music, you won't forget it. The quartet is comprised of talented musicians, who double on several instruments. Several of their arrangements consists of three trumpet parts. What a brass section that's offered to you. It has been a few days since I reviewed the act, and I can still hear those tremendous trumpets. All three men produce some mighty fine sounds.

To give you a change, the group may select an arrangement consisting of two trombones and one trumpet, two trumpets and one trombone, or two horns along with organ and piano.

There is always a different sound. You just don't get tired of hearing the Note-Ables.

Even if they never sang a note, this would be true. But, believe it or not, they come across with some really good vocal renditions, both in the solo department as well as in the harmony area.

Leader of the Note-Ables is Blaine O'Bray. Blaine plays trumpet, trombone, bass and sings all of which he does with plenty of command and assurance. He, like all the rest, are as much entertainers as they are musicians.

Another young man in the outfit is Don Buchanan. Don is playing some sweet sounds on the various brass horns. Don keeps your attention with his vocal works. Owing a well modulated voice, Don is able to keep up the excitement and enchantment offered by the Note-Ables. No question, he is a fine singer.

Keyboard man, plus being a fine trumpet is Tommy Hiett. Tommy handles both the organ and electric piano. He seldom plays just one instrument. Most of the time is playing at least two, and sometimes he may play the bass pedals on the organ, the black and whites on the electric piano, and join in some trumpet harmonies with the other members of the group.

Keeping the rhythm department strong and solid is Jai Allen. In addition to his duties with the sticks and brushes, Jai does a rather fine job in the singing area. Listening to the Note-Ables is more like listening to a full orchestra, rather than a quartet. They are very sure footed in their presentations. After hearing them for an hour or so, you will realize that you are hearing four men who are out to entertain you in the highest fashion by offering you pure talent.

Their musical library runs the gamut of today's and yesterday's music. If you are in your twenties, or in your fifties, you will enjoy their musical selections and their treatment is the same. They have achieved a sensible blend of the old and new, both in style and selections.

You'll find the Note-Ables at the Ramada Inn-North, Tuesday through Sunday. Take my advice and don't miss this one.

Funtastic Family At Holiday-OSU

The Funtastic Family is the new group that opened this past Monday night in the University Lounge, on the eleventh floor of the new Holiday Inn-OSU. The trio is made up of Father, Bud Mercer, his son, Russ and his daughter, Linda. So you see it is actually a family organization. The Funtastic part of their name is derived from the fact, that they are a FUN group.

Bud plays bass and sings. He also dips back into his younger days of show biz when he was a song-and-dance-man with his brother. Known as the Mercer Brothers, Bud is continuing to give his audiences dancing impressions of Ray Bolger, Fred Astaire and other famous dancers.

Actually, besides a fine musical group, you are presented a mini night review in the University Lounge of the Holiday Inn-OSU.

Son Russ plays guitar, sings and sends out some exciting banjo renditions in the true Eddie Peabody Pretty daughter, Linda provides the rhythm section with her rhythmic beats that sets your toe to tappin', along with turning in some nice work in the vocal department.

While I have not yet seen this group in person, they have been highly touted to me by several people in the business. No, not by the management of the Holiday Inn. So, come along with me, and let's catch the Funtastic Family one night this week. It does sound like a darn good, entertaining, show group.

Ohio Employment Services Open New Regional Offices

Jobs for people and people for jobs.

This phrase is what the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services (OBES) is all about. And, to better serve people looking for jobs, OBES is opening Job Service offices in several Columbus communities.

Three new Job Service offices are now available in the North, East and West areas of Columbus, according to OBES Administrator William E. Barnes.

Job Service offices - all conveniently located in shopping centers offer free, complete and efficient employment service assistance to job seekers.

These services include exposure to all listed job openings throughout the Columbus area and referral to selected job orders.

Job Service interviewers will also develop jobs for applicants when no suitable positions are listed. Job development involves marketing an applicant's skills and talents to appropriate employers.

Applicants using the Job Service offices will benefit from the entire array of employment service resources available at the main office downtown; but, without the time-consuming inconvenience of parking problems, traffic congestion and waiting to see an interviewer.

Job Service is the new Employment Service.

OBES has streamlined its organization into a dynamic service geared to the needs of the future... an organization with ready and available means of providing jobs which match any applicant's capabilities and people for any employer's job requirements.

Jack Warner, Manager of the Northside Office at the Village Center, 2007 East Dublin-Granville Rd., invites job seekers to take advantage of the free placement service available through his office. Stop in or call 888-7112.

New Job Service Offices provide pleasant surroundings for unemployed workers and people looking for different employment. Employers can place job orders with the Job Service by calling 495-2050.

Manager Robert Ward opens the door for job seekers at 887 South Hamilton Road, phone 237-2550.

Al Baranowski, Manager of the Job Service Office at 3215 West Broad St., stands ready with his staff to assist individuals in securing employment. Office personnel include Thomas O'Day, Betty Scales, Fern Parry, Gladys Rozelle, and Baranowski. Stop in from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. or call 276-2804.

classes have been experiencing the elements involved in tap and ballet. They have been listening to music and discovered the difference between moving "on the beat" and "off the beat," "with accent" and "off the accent." By learning to keep time by means of clapping and dance steps these youngsters are developing their rhythmic perception and performance. Through the medium of ballet they have been stretching and toning the many muscles of their bodies. The center would like to thank Jenny Valko for her outstanding help in dance class.

En Garde At Norton Middle

West Columbus—Another activity has been added to the physical education program at Norton Middle School. The new activity is fencing. Fencing is a very formal, courteous sport and is unlike any physical activity the Middle School students have been exposed to. A rigid code of ethics prevails. However, in spite of its formality, Mrs. Debbie Abbott and Mr. Jim Zamberian, both physical educators at Norton, explain that fencing is a form of exercise which owes apologies to no sport. Muscles must be trained through continual practice to respond to the rapid-fire commands of the brain. Of course this development of good reaction time carries over to other athletic activities. Students in the co-educational classes at Norton will verify that fencing can provide a great deal of exercise in a very short time. The national trend in physical education during the past few years has leaned toward "life-time" sports. Mrs. Abbott and Mr. Zamberian stress to their students that fencing is a "life-time" sport, and can be continued in their lives long after their school days are over. Shown here practicing are eighth graders Dirk Nafziger and Elaine Rousch. The class is shown practicing the lunge (below).

Nine Churches Celebrate Thanksgiving At Lincoln Baptist

A community Thanksgiving Eve worship service will be co-sponsored by nine congregations in the Lincoln Village area Wednesday, Nov. 21 at 7:30 p.m. in Lincoln Baptist Church, 200 Old Village Rd.

Lincoln Baptist, St. Cecilia's Catholic, West Broad Nazarene, St. Paul's Lutheran, Concordia Lutheran, Galloway Presbyterian, Westminster Presbyterian, Columbia Heights United Methodist and St. Mark's United Methodist churches will share in this service.

The Rev. Wesley Frederick, minister of West Broad Church of the Nazarene, will give the Thanksgiving message and the Rev. Keith Kilvin of Galloway Presbyterian Church will be worship leader.

A combined choir of people from all nine churches will provide special music, under the leadership of Robert Petty, director and Mrs. Eileen Huston, organist.

Someone from each church will have a special part in the service.

To express thanksgiving and to aid the hungry, special offerings will be received. An offering of groceries will be given to stock a community-wide food pantry to help the needy of the area. An offering of money will be received and then sent to CARE to assist them in their aid to needy, starving people all over the world.

Following the worship time, a period of fellowship will be held, and cider and home-made bread will be served.

S-W School Board Dismisses Drivers

BY KATHY DEVANEY

Greve City-Bus drivers Mrs. Harriett Blackburn and Mrs. Linda Grimm were dismissed by the South-Western City School Board Monday night because they crossed a railroad crossing when the gates were down.

Attorneys for the two said dismissal was too severe a penalty, that a 30 day suspension without pay would be sufficient.

Peter Gee, general counsel for the Ohio Association of Public School Employees (OAPSE) and Mrs. Grimm's attorney, said "In view of the records of the drivers and the extenuating circumstances dismissal is too gross a penalty. As sponsors of the annual bus drivers' rodeo, we are aware of the seriousness of the problem. We agree that the gates were down and that two buses crossed the railroad tracks but the lights were not working when the gates were down," he said.

"THE DRIVERS pulled up to the gate, opened the door and window, looked and listened for a train as they are supposed to. This is a technical violation of the statute," Gee said.

"Your original action was a reprimand entered on their record. We have made an appeal to the Civil Service Commission. Two disciplines for the same infraction is invalid.

"There won't be two more safer drivers. They reported what they had done to the administration. We agree the written reprimand was not enough so we suggest a 30 day suspension without pay and that they be put on probation," he said.

Mrs. Blackburn's attorney Jerry Riesling added, "Mrs. Blackburn has been a driver for four years and has received a safety award each of those years. She also received commendation from the police chief of Darbydale for her safe driving. Initially a disciplinary action letter was put in their files. Later they were suspended through the twelfth. Now they are being dismissed. The reprimand was not sufficient, but a suspension would be justified and is warranted," Riesling said.

BOARD PRESIDENT John C. Farnsworth said, "The codes have been violated and I see only one avenue of action to be taken. There is no other alternative." Members of the board voted for dismissal except Dr. Roland Long who passed.

In other action the board approved 25 building and grounds use requests. Those approved will be notified that contingency plans to meet the energy crisis may limit such use. The district's plan for energy conservation is expected this month.

Kenneth Reyses asked the administration to work with the parochial schools to parallel the calendars of the two systems in order to conserve energy.

Roy Grossman, transportation supervisor, said the system was allowed 20,000 gallons of fuel a month and last month 25,000 was used.

"WITH WINTER COMING buses will be running longer to warm them up. There are field trips and intramurals after school which require transportation. Fuel use is on the increase."

The board approved advertising for bids for one school bus to replace one totaled in an accident.

Final payment of $600 to Sterling Electric Company was approved for construction of the administrative building.

The district will apply for funds to provide auxiliary services to parochial schools in the area. This money will provide for audio visual equipment and material, testing materials and auxiliary personnel for Our Lady of Perpetual Help, St. Cecilia and St. Stephens.

Southwest Center Utilizes People In Community

BY KATHY DEVANEY

West Columbus—"Southwest Mental Health is trying to help people find their solution to problems quicker," Richard Hardy, director of the Hilltop-Lincoln office, said at the regular meeting of the Hilltop Community Council.

John Kennedy was the first president to give an address to Congress in the area of mental health. Mental illness was becoming epidemic and there were not enough professionals to tend to the mental health needs of the people and colleges could not turn out enough, he said.

The president asked each state to respond with a comprehensive plan of action so in 1967 Ohio passed the 948 Mental Health and Retardation Act.

THE LEGISLATION provided that each county's residents form a board, hire an executive director and then assess and design a mental health plan for that county, Hardy said.

"They were to design a program, fund it and see that the plan was implemented. Franklin County was divided into seven geographical catchment areas," he said.

The money raised by the .75 mill levy was matched with state and federal money in order to start the first center in the east central area. As that need was met the money was moved to the next area of priority.

In the southwest catchment area it took a year to go through the process. "Instead of having a building in the middle of the community and asking people to come there, it was decided services would be taken into the community," Hardy said. Southwest now has five satellite centers throughout the area.

"During the war when men were removed from battle because of shell shock and battle fatigue they didn't recover. Another approach which kept men functioning was to tell his buddies to stick with him, support him. The man was strengthened with the help of his friends so he could go on," he said.

The center is trying to cut traffic into Columbus State Hospital in the same way. "If we send them to the hospital they adjust to a sick environment instead of adjusting to the community."

A MAIN THRUST of the program is crisis intervention.

In one study it was found that 80 per cent of those treated by a psychiatrist for a crisis recovered and 60 per cent of those who did not see a psychiatrist recovered from the crisis.

"BY DEFINITION a crisis will pass whether it's treated or not. Crisis, whether it is a death, change in occupation or trouble with a child, will last six to eight weeks. By intervening in a crisis the length of the crisis is less. A person is surrounded with support," he said.

Another person may see things more clearly and help define options so the troubled person can make choices which overcome the crisis and allow the person to move beyond the problems.

A professional is not always needed for this, Hardy said.

"A person in trouble will turn to a friend, spouse, neighbor, bartender or barber—sources of help that hadn't been considered as such. Through the use of community workers we can utilize the knowledge of professionals and maximize the number and quality of people in the community who can help," he said.

SOUTHWEST PROVIDES more hours than any other in Ohio to consultation and education services, he said.

"Teachers used to call up and say Johnny is causing a problem. He would be sent to a mental health center with his parents and that teacher never knew what happened to him."

Now staff members go to the school and work with the teacher. "That teacher can do more in the eight hours with the child than a staff member can in one hour once a week and the consultation will affect many other children."

Ministers used to do the same thing. As an alternative the center is providing pastoral counseling so the minister who has established rapport with a person or couple can help. "The minister gets educated and the person gets treated," Hardy said.

THE CENTER HAS not had a waiting list in two years. People who need help are seen within a week after they call in, he said.

"The community has been responsive. The professionals are getting others in the community to help them."

Columbus Board Affirms Medical Transfer Policy

By RANDY SCHWARTZ
Special Staff Writer

Columbus—The Columbus School Board unanimously reaffirmed its support of a policy which will require the school administration to decline all requests of students for transfers on medical grounds except when extraordinary circumstances exist.

This decision was reached by the Board at its Nov. 6 regular meeting.

This policy has been in effect since November of 1972 and the Board feels this is necessary to prevent unwarranted transfers in the Columbus Public Schools.

Columbus Public Schools Superintendent Dr. John Ellis explained that the school system honored transfer requests for medical reasons for many years prior to November, 1972, but he added, "At that time it became necessary to terminate the practice because it was leading to greater racial isolation in Columbus Schools."

In other action the Board voted to instruct the City Attorney to appeal a federal court decision concerning the school's suspension policy.

The court had ruled in September that students may not be suspended without a hearing concerning charges against them. The school system has already adopted a policy to require hearings and the policy will be continued but the appeal will be directed towards the language used in the court's decision. The Board termed the language used as too "broad." The appeal stems from the case of Lopez vs. Williams.

Other action in the board's agenda included seeing preliminary drawings for the proposed Refugee-Non-Binary Elementary School approved. This 6½ acre tract 600 pupil school is to be located on a tract of land already owned by the board near Refugee and Fleet Roads.

The theme of the school was labeled as "an atmosphere of learning more than teaching." "Flexibility" was also labeled as a very instrumental tool for the design of the building.

Questions were brought up concerning the proposed school by Board Members Dr. Watson Walker and Dr. David Hamlar.

Walker was concerned about the energy conservation aspect of the school and Hamlar with the location since it will be close to the proposed junior-senior high. After discussion both agreed pleased with that both issues had been thought about and properly planned out while the school was being designed.

The board also approved three amendments to its current contract with the Columbus Education Association representing the school system's teachers and their certified employees.

The amendments will enable the school system to assign pupils to tutors of the neurologically handicapped in accordance with new state standards, allow retiring teachers to collect severance pay and place school nurses on the current teacher's pay schedule.

Other board action included routine personnel changes and appointments.

S-W School Board Dismisses Drivers

BY KATHY DEVANEY

Greve City-Bus drivers Mrs. Harriett Blackburn and Mrs. Linde Grimm were dismissed by the South-Western City School Board Monday night because they crossed a railroad crossing when the gates were down.

Attorneys for the two said dismissal was too severe a penalty, that a 30 day suspension without pay would be sufficient.

Peter Gee, general counsel for the Ohio Association of Public School Employees (OAPSE) and Mrs. Grimm's attorney, said "In view of the records of the drivers and the extenuating circumstances dismissal is too gross a penalty. As sponsors of the annual bus drivers' rodeo, we are aware of the seriousness of the problem. We agree that the gates were down and that two buses crossed the railroad tracks but the lights were not working when the gate was down," he said.

"THE DRIVERS pulled up to the gate, opened the door and window, looked and listened for a train as they are supposed to. This is a technical violation of the statute," Gee said. "Your original action was a reprimand entered on their record. We have made an appeal to the Civil Service Commission. Two disciplines for the same infraction is invalid."

same infraction is invalid.

"There won't be two more safer drivers. They reported what they had done to the administration. We agree the written reprimand was not enough so we suggest a 30 day suspension without pay and that they be put on probation," he said.

Mrs. Blackburn's attorney Jerry Riesling added, "Mrs. Blackburn has been a driver for four years and has received a safety award each of those years. She also received commendation from the police chief of Darbydale for her safe driving. Initially a disciplinary action letter was put in their files. Later they were suspended through the twelfth. Now they are being dismissed. The reprimand was not sufficient, but a suspension would be justified and is warranted," Riesling said.

BOARD PRESIDENT John C. Farnsworth said, "The codes have been violated and I see only one avenue of action to be taken. There is no other alternative." Members of the board voted for dismissal except Dr. Roland Long who passed.

In other action the board approved 25 building and grounds use requests. Those approved will be notified that contingency plans to meet the energy crisis may limit such use. The district's plan for energy conservation is expected this month.

Kenneth Reiley asked the administration to work with the parochial schools to parallel the calendars of the two systems in order to conserve energy.

Roy Grossman, transportation supervisor, said the system was allotted 30,000 gallons of fuel a month and last month 26,000 was used.

"WITH WINTER COMING buses will be running longer to warm them up. There are field trips and intramurals after school which require transportation. Fuel use is on the increase."

The board approved advertising for bids for one school bus to replace one totaled in an accident.

Final payment of $600 to Sterling Electric Company was approved for construction of the administrative building.

The district will apply for funds to provide auxiliary services to parochial schools in the area. This money will provide for audio visual equipment and material, testing materials and auxiliary personnel for Our Lady of Perpetual Help, St. Cecilia and St. Stephens.

En Garde At Norton Middle

West Columbus—Another activity has been added to the physical education program at Norton Middle School. The new activity is fencing. Fencing is a very formal, courteous sport and is unlike any physical activity the Middle School students have been exposed to. A rigid code of ethics prevails. However, in spite of its formality, Mrs. Debbie Abbott and Mr. Jim Zamberian, both physical educators at Norton, explain that fencing is a form of exercise which owes apologies to no sport. Muscles must be trained through continual practice to respond to the rapid-fire commands of the brain. Of course this development of good reaction time carries over to other athletic activities. Students in the co-educational classes at Norton will verify that fencing can provide a great deal of exercise in a very short time. The national trend in physical education during the past few years has leaned toward "life-time" sports. Mrs. Abbott and Mr. Zamberian stress to their students that fencing is a "life-time" sport, and can be continued in their lives long after their school days are over. Shown here practicing are eighth graders Dirk Nafziger and Elaine Rensch. The class is shown practicing the lunge (below).

Southwest Center Utilizes People In Community

BY KATHY DEVANEY

West Columbus—"Southwest Mental Health is trying to help people find their solution to problems quicker," Richard Hardy, director of the Hilltop-Lincoln office, said at the regular meeting of the Hilltop Community Council.

John Kennedy was the first president to give an address to Congress in the area of mental health. Mental illness was becoming epidemic and there were not enough professionals to tend to the mental health needs of the people and colleges could not turn out enough, he said.

The president asked each state to respond with a comprehensive plan of action so in 1967 Ohio passed the 646 Mental Health and Retardation Act.

THE LEGISLATION provided that each county's residents form a board, hire an executive director and then assess and design a mental health plan for that county, Hardy said.

"They were to design a program, fund it and see that the plan was implemented. Franklin County was divided into seven geographical catchment areas," he said.

The money raised by the .75 mill levy was matched with state and federal money in order to start the first center in the east central area. As that need was met the money was moved to the next area of priority.

The center is trying to cut traffic into Columbus State Hospital in the same way. "If we send them to the hospital they adjust to a sick environment instead of adjusting to the community."

A MAIN THRUST of the program is crisis intervention.

In one study it was found that 80 per cent of those treated by a psychiatrist for a crisis recovered and 80 per cent of those who did not see a psychiatrist recovered from the crisis.

"BY DEFINITION a crisis will pass whether it's treated or not. Crisis, whether it is a death, change in occupation or trouble with a child, will last six to eight weeks. By intervening in a crisis the length of the crisis is less. A person is surrounded with support," he said.

Another person may see things more clearly and help define options so the troubled person can make choices which overcome the crisis and allow the person to move beyond the problems.

Now staff members go to the school and work with the teacher. "That teacher can do more in the eight hours with the child than a staff member can in one hour once a week and the consultation will affect many other children."

Ministers used to do the same thing. As an alternative the center is providing pastoral counseling so the minister who has established rapport with a person or couple can help. "The minister gets educated and the person gets treated," Hardy said.

THE CENTER HAS not had a waiting list in two years. People who need help are seen within a week after they call in, he said.

"The community has been responsive. The professionals can get others in the community to help them."

leader. A combined choir of people from all nine churches will provide special music, under the leadership of Robert Petty, director and Mrs. Ellen Huston, organist.

Someone from each church will have a special part in the service.

To express thanksgiving and to aid the hungry, special offerings will be received. An offering of groceries will be given to stock a community-wide food pantry to help the needy of the area. An offering of money will be received and then sent to CARE to assist them in their aid to needy, starving people all over the world.

Following the worship time, a period of fellowship will be held, and cider and home-made bread will be served.

Columbus Board Affirms Medical Transfer Policy

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Special Staff Writer

Columbus—The Columbus School Board unanimously reaffirmed its support of a policy which will require the school administration to decline all requests of students for transfers on medical grounds except when extraordinary circumstances exist. This decision was reached by the Board at its Nov. 6 regular meeting.

This policy has been in effect since November of 1972 and the Board feels this is necessary to prevent unwarranted transfers in the Columbus Public Schools.

Columbus Public Schools Superintendent Dr. John Ellis explained that the school system honored transfer requests for medical reasons for many years prior to November, 1972, but he added, "At that time it became necessary to terminate the practice because it was leading to greater racial isolation in Columbus Schools."

In other action the Board voted to instruct the City Attorney to appeal a federal court decision concerning the school's suspension policy.

The court had ruled in September that students may not be suspended without a hearing concerning charges against them. The school system has already adopted a policy to require hearings and the policy will be continued but the appeal will be directed towards the language used in the court's decision. The Board termed the language used as too "broad." The appeal stems from the case of Lopez vs. Williams.

Other action in the board's agenda included seeing preliminary drawings for the proposed Refugee-Nee Bixby Elementary School approved. This 6 1/2 acre tract 600 pupil school is to be located on a tract of land already owned by the board near Refugee and Fleet Roads.

The theme of the school was labeled as "an atmosphere of learning more than teaching." "Flexibility" was also labeled as a very instrumental tool for the design of the building.

Questions were brought up concerning the proposed school by Board Members Dr. Watson Walker and Dr. David Hamlar.

Walker was concerned about the energy conservation aspect of the school and Hamlar with the location since it will be close to the proposed junior-senior high. After discussion both appeared pleased with assurances that both issues had been thought about and properly planned out while the school was being designed.

The board also approved three amendments to its current contract with the Columbus Education Association representing the school system's teachers and their certified employees.

The amendments will enable the school system to assign pupils to tutors of the neurologically handicapped in accordance with new state standards, allow retiring teachers to collect severance pay and place school nurses on the current teacher's pay schedule.

Other board action included routine personnel changes and appointments.

Doctor To Speak

About Clinic

West Columbus-Dr. Eldred B. Heisel will be speaking at two services 8:30 and 10:45 a.m. Sunday at Glenwood United Methodist Church about the establishment of a clinic on an island off the coast of South Carolina.

Dr. Heisel is a member of the Board of Missions. The board received a request in 1969 from a missionary to make a study of the medical needs of the island.

Dr. Watson Walker and he went there and established a need for the 35,000 residents. They found the closest doctor was in Charleston 10-40 miles.

Dr. Heisel renovated a Sunday school wing in a church to create a medical facility. For six months in 1971 he would fly down Thursday night and practice Friday and Saturday.

"At the instigation of the people in the community and with the cooperation of the governor and senator a grant was given to study the need of the people and based on that study a grant for $700,000 was given last spring for a clinic.

The clinic is now being built. There is a staff now of two full time doctors, one a former missionary from Africa and a young doctor from the University of Indiana who has a mission interest.

Riverside Hospital donated equipment when they renovated the emergency room so the clinic was equipped without spending money.

Non-Grads Can

Enlist In Army

About Clinic

A greater number of non-high school graduates will be permitted to enlist in the Army during fiscal year 1974.

The new program will provide the non-high school graduate an opportunity to prove himself in training. Announcing the program, Secretary of the Army Howard H. Callaway, said that experience has shown that "four out of five non-high school graduates make good soldiers."

Concurrently the Army is initiating a program to identify early those enlistees who indicate by their performance or attitude that they will not make good soldiers. These enlistees will be separated from the service as soon as they are identified.

New screening procedures in the training units will measure the volunteer's motivation and self-discipline in the Army environment. Men who indicate by lack of achievement or adverse behavior that they are not of the quality needed by the Army will be released prior to completing 180 days of service.

Honorable discharges will be issued to those men released under this special separation procedure unless circumstances exist which warrant discharge under other regulations.

Last year approximately 30 per cent of the Army enlistees were non-high school graduates.

Further information can be obtained by contacting the local representative-SFC

Henry Caudill, at 3070 W. Broad St. or by calling 276-7268.

24,691 Needed For Streets

How much paint does it take to paint a line five inches wide and 1,853 miles long? Well, 24,691 gallons, if anyone really wants to know. This is what the City's Division of Traffic Engineering used last year to line city streets to make driving safer and easier.

With this amount of area to cover, work is done in several areas of the city at the same time. Painting will continue as long as weather permits. Motorists are asked to be on the alert for these slow-moving vehicles (they travel about 12 miles an hour). A small vehicle with flashing lights follows the line as a warning to motorists. The follow-truck also eliminates the need for cones and flags. The paint is applied at about 180 degrees and dries in 30 seconds. Cones and flags are still used at crosswalks and other lines which are painted by hand-operated machines. When approaching these units, motorists are asked to remain in their own lane and reduce speed. In addition to the paint, approximately 100 tons of beads are applied to make the lines reflective.

DON'T PLAY THERMOSTAT ROULETTE

The energy crisis is one of America's most serious problems. Columbia Gas is doing everything it can to develop new and additional sources of gas to help solve the problem.

Right now, you can help by conserving the natural gas you use in your home. Simply set your thermostat at the lowest comfortable temperature.

Remember, set your thermostat at the lowest comfortable temperature. Heating costs increase 3% for every degree your thermostat is moved above 70°. A few degrees will save a lot of gas.

And the gas you don't use, you don't have to pay for. That means even more, as prices rise.

COLUMBIA GAS
Gas is precious... pure energy... use it wisely.

PASS THE WOMEN OF THE GREATEST NAVY ON EARTH

THE WOMEN'S story is told here like it is with the Naval Women escorts gathered with the women of the Ohio travelling group.

ONE OF THE highlights of the trip was the opportunity to break bread and ideas with some of the Navy personnel who delve into the personal lives of recruits. Such a person is David A. Skrobot, YN2, second from left, who is a remedial reading instructor for the recruits. He is a Capital University graduate and hopes to come back to the area to teach. At left is E NC Norman Andrews, one of the race relations experts. Center is Wave recruiter from Columbus SK2 Mary Kaiser. Others from left are Groveport-Madison High School vice principal Robert Carter and EMI Terry Ford, attached to the Columbus recruiting district.

THREE MEN who added much to the education of the high school counselors and the only member of the media on the trip (Executive Editor Ray Adams) talked over their views while observing an anchor on a Spanish ship that was grounded by a hurricane off the Florida coast in July 1715. A Winter Park resident located two of the ships of the Spanish fleet and recovered more than $2 million in gold. Some of the relics from the ship are on display at the Langford Resort Hotel in Winter Park, a delightful place to spend a Florida vacation. From left are John Chatman, Brother Gerald Warner and John Maloney.

Counselors, Navy One Educational Team

By Ray Adams
Executive Editor

THE DAYS OF rose-colored glasses for media and other professional visitors to Naval installations is passé. The Naval Training Center at Orlando, Florida was on limits to a group of high school counselors, principals and service agencies for three days last week.

We know what they saw. We were in the group.

THEY CALL it cultural shock - the first nine weeks (or at least the first two or three weeks) of a recruit training period. That goes for the Waves as well as the sailor-boys.

The name goes off and the number goes on - and that's just what it is: a fantastic by-the-numbers game that makes stout-hearted men out of boys and beautiful girls out of the raw beauty that they had in the first place.

THE NAVY wants men and women of high calibre. The Navy has the tools to precision-grind the human being into a machine that still has human emotions but has added dignity, pride, emotional maturity and just plain brains to the entire system.

What the counselors saw left them gaping and they all came out of the sojourn with a better understanding of the opportunities the Navy has to offer.

WE CAME back gifted - gifted with the priceless treasures of learning a little about a lot of educational systems - and the Navy in the mix.

If there was one thing lacking about the three day adventure into the Navy wilderness that is the Navy Recruiting Command it was that we didn't have the George Plimpton opportunity of sleeping, eating, marching, drilling, schooling and doing everything 100 percent Navy for the three days we looked at things from as close to the inside as we could get.

THAT UNWELCOME course even looked inviting and we hope we have the opportunity to test its strength on another visit next year.

The Navy is "Don't Give Up The Ship". "Damn The Torpedoes, Full Speed Ahead". "You May Fire When Ready, Gridley", and a host of other famous orders all rolled up into one.

Now that we have arrived at this point I want to make it clear that what you have just read is a brief summary of comments from the guidance counselors - and not particularly just my own thoughts.

THE LOCAL area contingent included: Dennis Blaney, counselor, Marion Franklin High School; Robert Carter, vice principal, Groveport-Madison High School; John Chatman, Office of Guidance and Testing, State Department of Education; Mrs. Dolores Drenning, counselor, North High School; John Maloney, Director, St. Stephens Community House; Mrs. Leslie Sims, counselor, Hamilton Township High School and Brother Gerald Warner, Executive Director, Salesian Boys Club.

Our official escorts were: LCdr. David Hafford

Executive Officer, Navy Recruiting District, Columbus; Lt. Dudley Morris, Publicity Officer, Navy Recruiting District, Columbus; Lt. J.G. Veronica Zasadni, Wave Recruiter; MMCM Harry Lawwill, Cincinnati Zone Supervisor; EMCM Ian G. Wright, Columbus Zone Supervisor; EMI Terry Ford, Recruiter, Columbus East; SK3 Mary Kaiser, Wave Recruiter and JOHN David King, Publicity, Columbus.

IF YOU JOIN the Navy through your high school counselor and a service agency director chances are you'll get the "tell it like it is" story from them.

The career is there if you want it from A to Z so is the opportunity to enhance your education at all levels.

IN GETTING to the knitty-gritty of what the counselors were thinking I made ever effort to use what education I had at my disposal to make an attempt (no matter how feeble) to be included as one in the "rap" sessions with Navy personnel while in discussions concerning remedial reading (what a program that is!), race relations (it's more than black vs white and includes religion, nationality, personal prejudices and the old "majority or minority of one" doctrine), drug education (this opened a whole new bag of worms so to speak and group dynamics (where the counselors hitched up their belts and got in quite a few licks that should leave the Navy with a bit of the solid (and very good) cultural shock they deal out to recruits in hopes of getting the best ones to stay as career people.

THE TOUR gave me a new view of high school counselors as was presented by those from such school areas (all from Ohio) as Middletown, Zanesville, Xenia, Cincinnati, Mansfield, Portsmouth and several from Kentucky.

Frankly, I have had bad luck from some counselors who challenged my right to let the "students tell it like it is in print." This occurred some time ago but still lingers with me. Those affected should have the same opportunity of mingling with the "high calibre" counselors that I was able to educationally share for three days. These on this tour are the new breed whose first interest is the entire concern of the individual and as an individual - not just another number.

WHAT THEY had to offer the Navy is just as highly regarded by me as what the Navy had to offer them - the unvarnished truth. You wouldn't in any way, shape or form have been able to pull that first string of wool over these visitors' eyes.

THE NAVAL Training Center at Orlando, Florida has both the traditional and modern architecture in its building style. What was there when the Navy moved in (it was first an Army base then an Air Force installation) has remained to a certain extent but the new architecture (chapel, mess hall, instruction area, etc.) is all decked out in a soft orange brown brick with lighter trim.

The mess has a capacity to feed 4000 in a ninety-minute period with three meals a day.

The food was mixed, especially attractive and there was plenty of it in unbelievable quantities. For example, we had Florida lobster (how much do you want, Sir?), shrimp, white fish, choice (or all four) of four salads, two hot vegetables, bread (three kinds), milk, tea or coffee, relishes and vegetable type dish, ice cream and three varieties of dessert.

MUCH TO our surprise the recruits told us that they didn't particularly think the Navy had prepared this for us. If the Navy had known this to the visiting group they would have been in for a real awakening. You just don't fool "ol mother or father counselor" with that kind of game.

This newest of the Naval Training Centers (the others are at San Diego and Great Lakes) is the jewel of Florida.

When the counselors really got back into the meat of talking with high school students about careers it will be much easier to tell them what it is really like.

"WE'RE LOOKED on by too many parents as babysitters for their children while in school," indicated one counselor. "We want to help the student achieve his maximum potential in life but we don't want to replace the father or mother in the students' thinking. He or she has to make this decision on his own. Most are capable of doing just that. We don't want to be locked on as having just the function of scheduling a student through school then on to further education. We want to be there for his or her use when things are going ginger-peachy, too - not just when everything of life is going off the edge of the world!"

The women in the group were witty and charming.

We're avoiding the use of names in any of the conversation since it would limit what could be said directly.

The graduation of two companies of Waves left me a little more proud than I was before. "The Star Spangled Banner" and "Anchors Away" had a new sound to them. The cake cutting by the Sixth Naval District Commandant Rear Admiral Graham Tahler at the graduation reception had all the warmth to it of a wedding reception - and certainly these young women have wed themselves to a career that many will mingle with marriage and families.

THE NEW NAVY has arrived. Counselors from every educational school system imaginable (economic, social and otherwise) told us so.

They can tell your sons and daughters what it's all about. Trust them. Have confidence in them. If they don't meet the standards necessary to present day life tell your school about them.

Counseling is an important part of your child's career.

whatever the career might be.

LIKE THE insurance company motto says - (and we paraphrase it) you're in good hands with a dedicated counselor and men of the United States Navy who want you to be just that - YOU.

OUR TRIP to Orlando was in a Navy designated DC-9. We left Lockbourne AFB at 1200 hours (that's one p.m.) and arrived at Orlando at 1430 (that's 2:30 p.m.)

The trip was energy building in anticipation of what lies ahead.

While we stayed at the Langford Resort Hotel I also had the chance to chat with numerous writers from around the country who were at Rollins College in Winter Park for the annual Writers Conference.

They didn't match the careful educational grooming of any of the counselors on our trip.

It is always difficult for me to write about something so good that I want to embrace it. That's how I feel about this three day trip into a new educational area that would have been a jungle were it not for a host of Navy personnel and the counselors and others who made every step of the way one I'll long remember.

IT'S ALL there but you must join to enjoy it. That's your decision - but rest assured your "high school counselor can pave the way for the highway your life is on.

LEAVE IT TO AN OFF-DUTY SAILOR to find the pretty girls at any part of call. Here's Columbus East Navy Recruiter Terry Ford with a host of college students who were attending a National Interior Design Association conference. That's a three dimensional mural of a ship at sea. And, of course, that's recruiting Terry in the middle. None of the girls would give name rank or serial number.

IT WAS A GRAND and glorious festing when the Navy band arrived and made musical tribute. Here they are with the 50 state flag team that has also performed at Disney World.

THE DEPARTURE from Herndon Airport in Orlando, Florida was a sad moment for all of us as the temperature of 81 (scheduled) was perfect for another swim party. This is the Navy DC-9 City of Charleston with the group ready to get on board.

College Credit Given For Military Training

West Columbus--The following was sent to the recruiting office in Columbus. The Army has recruited at 2079 W. Broad.

Dear Sir:

Achieving the Army goal of an all volunteer force is certainly a challenge to your command. We believe we have some help for you in your efforts to reach this goal. Through our program you may offer an open admission to Eastern Michigan University to any person that you recruit.

While the individual is in the Army, we will award college credit for his military training and schooling; we will act as his academic advisor; and we will provide a home for his academic records.

This innovative program was developed at EMU with the help and cooperation of your counterpart LTC James Bradel, Detroit Recruiting Command.

The high school student, who has college in his plans, can be assured of the many educational advantages of a tour of duty. While he is in the service, it is not unreasonable for him to expect to earn the equivalent of two years of college. Thus, the recruit after a three year enlistment would be only one academic year behind his high school classmates who went directly into college.

If, after his enlistment, he decides to enroll at some college other than EMU, his credits can be transferred.

District FFA Initiation Held

Galloway--Tuesday, Oct. 23, the three combined future Farmers of American (FFA) chapters of the South-Western City School District (Franklin Heights, Grove City and Westland) held a greenhand initiation for approximately 200 vocational horticulture students.

Presiding officers from the three local chapters were: president, Ed Sheets of Grove City; vice-president, Debbie Johnson from Westland High School; secretary, Judy Wiscup from Grove City; treasurer, Ted Winsor of Westland High School; reporter, Ralph Barber from Franklin Heights High School; sentinel, Mike Jackson of Grove City; and advisor, Doug Schaefer also from Grove City.

Several of the Ohio FFA association were also in attendance. They included: President William R. Lowe of the North Union chapter; vice-president, Larry W. Harter from the Buckeye Valley chapter; secretary, Diane Pullins of the A.B. Graham chapter; treasurer, Doug Loudenslager from the Ridgedale chapter; reporter, Gerald Reid from the Miami Trace chapter; and sentinel, Jack Warner of the Montgomery County J.V.S. The meeting was officially opened by presiding president Ed Sheets, after the opening Sheets turned the chairmanship of the meeting over to William R. Lowe, president of the Ohio Association.

Lowe then conducted the formal greenhand initiation. The state secretary, Diane Pullins, read the official FFA creed.

After this a slide presentation was presented by state reporter Gerald Reid. Lowe returned the chair to Ed Sheets who officially adjourned the meeting. This initiation is one of the most important events for any of the three chapters this year. This initiation also proved to be one of the largest ever held in the state and should prove very significant to the FFA and the community.

Crime Lab To Participate In Study

Columbus--The Columbus Division of Police Crime Laboratory has been selected to participate in a Forensic Laboratories Analysis Program being sponsored by the National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice, a research arm of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

Representatives of the MITRE Corporation of McLean, Va. and two subcontractors will spend several months in Columbus gathering data on crime laboratory operation and analyzing the utilization of scientific evidence in the criminal justice system.

This field study is scheduled to begin in November, 1973. Coordinated analyses will be conducted at East and West Coast sites. Seventy crime laboratories throughout the nation were screened for this study and three were chosen. Basis for selection was that the labs be full-service laboratories performing high volume, high quality Part I Crimes work.

The Forensic Laboratories Analysis Program is designed to define the contributions of the scientific laboratories to the law enforcement and criminal justice system and determine how that service may be measured and delivered in an effective manner.

Upon completion of this two-year effort, comprehensive guidelines will be available to law enforcement administrators charged with the establishment and improvement of crime laboratories.

Former Member To Speak At Hoge

West Columbus--The Rev. Donald L. Mathews was born and spent his early years in Columbus. The graduate of West High School and a former member of Hoge Memorial United Presbyterian Church will speak at this church Sunday, Nov. 18, at the 10 a.m. service.

He is a graduate of OSU and Union Theological Seminary in N.Y. After his first year at OSU he entered the United States Army and served as a medic with the 275th Infantry Regiment during much of the European campaign. Following his service in the army he continued his studies.

Following graduation from the seminary he was ordained for the ministry at Hoge Memorial United Presbyterian Church. Following his ordination he served as minister at Kalamazoo, Mich. for 12 years.

In 1962 he became a fraternal worker with the United Presbyterian Church in USA in Kenya, Africa working with National Christian Council of Kenya for 12 years. He is now back with his family in the USA for relocation.

Jail Feasibility Study Finished

Columbus--Franklin County Sheriff Harry J. Berkemer and Columbus Chief of Police Earl Burden announced that the feasibility study for merging the city-county jails has been completed.

The study identifies several alternative courses of action. The City of Columbus Administration, the Franklin County Commissioners, Sheriff Berkemer and Chief Burden are in agreement that combining the city and county jails would probably provide more efficient service. There has not been a definite decision as to what alternative should be adopted.

The jail merger feasibility study indicates that it is to the benefit of the City of Columbus and Franklin County to proceed at the earliest possible time. It is proposed that a new court building be constructed adjacent to the Franklin County Hall of Justice. Any final decision on this jail feasibility study will be dependent upon construction of the new court building.

Energy Shortage Is Here- Keep Warm, Save Money

BY ELSIE V. WEAVER
Editor, Spectator East

Aluminum in spite of government controls, fuel oil is scarce and still more expensive. According to some reports, the costs of natural gas and coal could also soar, which could mean higher electric bills since those resources are often used to generate electricity.

There is no way to hedge against an energy shortage it is already upon us and there are plenty of ways to stretch our home-heating dollar this winter. Here are a few suggestions to keep your family comfortable, conserve energy, and save money.

INSULATION

Check your insulation. If you live in an older home, chances are that there is very little or none at all. A poorly insulated home can cost twice as much to heat as one with proper insulation. Since warm air rises, a significant amount of heat can be lost through the ceiling, and ultimately, the roof. One way to control this is to add extra insulation between the floor joists in the attic.

Putting glass wool fiber glass bats between the joists on the floor of the attic or crawl space of your house is a simple task. It is also easy to pour a layer of expanded polystyrene insulation granules in an even layer over the floor between joists. You need not be an expert to install insulation although may wish to get advice from your insulation materials dealer before tackling the job.

Another way to cut heat loss through the ceiling is to put up an acoustical-tiled ceiling. The materials not only insulate against unwanted noise, but can reduce ceiling heat loss by as much as 15 per cent, according to heating experts.

If you live in an older home with 10 to 12 foot ceilings, you are heating unusable space up near the ceiling. You may want to consider installing suspension ceiling, with thin metal strips crisscrossing the room at the height you want the new ceiling. You simply drop the blocks down onto the open spaces, with no need to fasten them anywhere. With a reduction of cubic content, the room is more easily and economically heated.

MORE TIPS

If your home has radiators and you're planning to re-paint them, be sure you use paint specifically formulated for that purpose - flat or metallic paints can reduce heat transfer by as much as 25 percent.

Fireplaces add beauty to any home, but remember that they are one of the least efficient methods of room heating and with the damper open, up to 20 percent of your home's warm air can escape up the chimney.

There are many other ways to reduce your home's energy consumption: storm windows, weather stripping on doors, insulated draperies, and during windy, snowy nights doubling a throw rug across the bottom of each door to the outside.

Reducing temperatures in the house to 68 degrees, closing off rarely-used rooms, and closing registers in rooms not used all will contribute to the reduction of home-heating bills.

Heating takes a large bite out of our nation's energy supply. The experts say, keeping the country warm this winter will account for 14 percent of the United States' total fuel bill. The percentage will probably rise as fuel resources are depleted.

Fuel costs are going up so fast, say some experts, that almost anything you do to cut back this year will pay for itself next year.

Administration Under One Roof

Grove City-"School is a business that needs an office, and we've always needed one," said Paul Noblitt Community Relations Director of South-Western City Schools, referring to the new administration building in Grove City.

The school organization was once situated in a house and later on the second floor of a bakery, then became so large an office building was inevitable.

Board member Dr. Roland E. Long was instrumental in getting the board to act on the proposal for an administrative office building.

No bond issue was necessary. The money came from the sale of property that the school board had owned for many years.

The general price was $99,390, the mechanical fee was $41,000 while the electrical expense amounted to $21,080 totaling $161,480.

Noblitt indicated that this was low compared to the price of construction for similar structures. One reason for the low cost is that some work was done by school personnel.

Construction of the building, designed with open-space, was started in December, 1972 but was delayed by two strikes. The administrators moved in August 20 this year.

In the building are: all business offices and clerks, superintendents and assistants, directors of curriculum areas, federal program administrators, the Board of Education, school psychologists, the Community Relations Director, data processing and transportation.

The administration building is located at 465 Kingston Avenue in Grove City. The phone number is 875-2318.

ARMY GREEN

Laboratory tests play an important part in the detection, diagnosis and treatment of serious diseases.

Medical Laboratory workers and their assistants are responsible for this work. They perform their tests under the direction of pathologists (physicians who specialize in diagnosing the cause and nature of diseases).

Their work involves the use of precision instruments such as microscopes and automatic analyzers to analyze the blood, tissues and fluids in the human body. Physicians then use the results of these tests to treat their patients.

Medical laboratory assistants, who generally do not have college training, assist the medical technologist in routine tests and related work that can be learned in a relatively short time.

Assistants may concentrate in one of several areas. Laboratory assistants working in bacteriology, serology and parasitology prepare and stain slides for study and then record the results. Those in hematology collect and perform blood counts and tests to determine bleeding and coagulation time. In clinical chemistry, assistants help analyze samples of body fluids to diagnose and treat diseases.

The U.S. Department of Labor reports there were over 100,000 medical lab workers employed in the U.S. last year. About 80 per cent of them were employed in hospitals. Other places of employment include independent laboratories, physicians' offices, clinics, public health agencies, pharmaceutical firms and research institutions. In addition, about 3,000 persons were employed by the Veterans Administration.

Most medical laboratory assistants receive their training on the job. In recent years, an increasing number have turned to hospitals, vocational schools and the military for formal instruction. In the future, experts agree, formal academic training will be a prerequisite.

Among the personal characteristics employers consider important for lab work are technical accuracy, dependability and the ability to work under pressure.

Employment opportunities for medical lab workers through the seventies are expected to be excellent. This is based on clear trends which indicate that physicians are relying on lab workers to a greater extent than in the past. Also, the construction of additional hospitals, an increasing population, and growing federal emphasis on programs like Medicare suggest a growing demand for lab workers in the years ahead.

A good way to get experience in this field is in Today's Army. For more information, contact SFC Henry Caudill at 3079 W. Broad St., or call 276-7258.

Ridge Runners Pace Title Win Over Northland

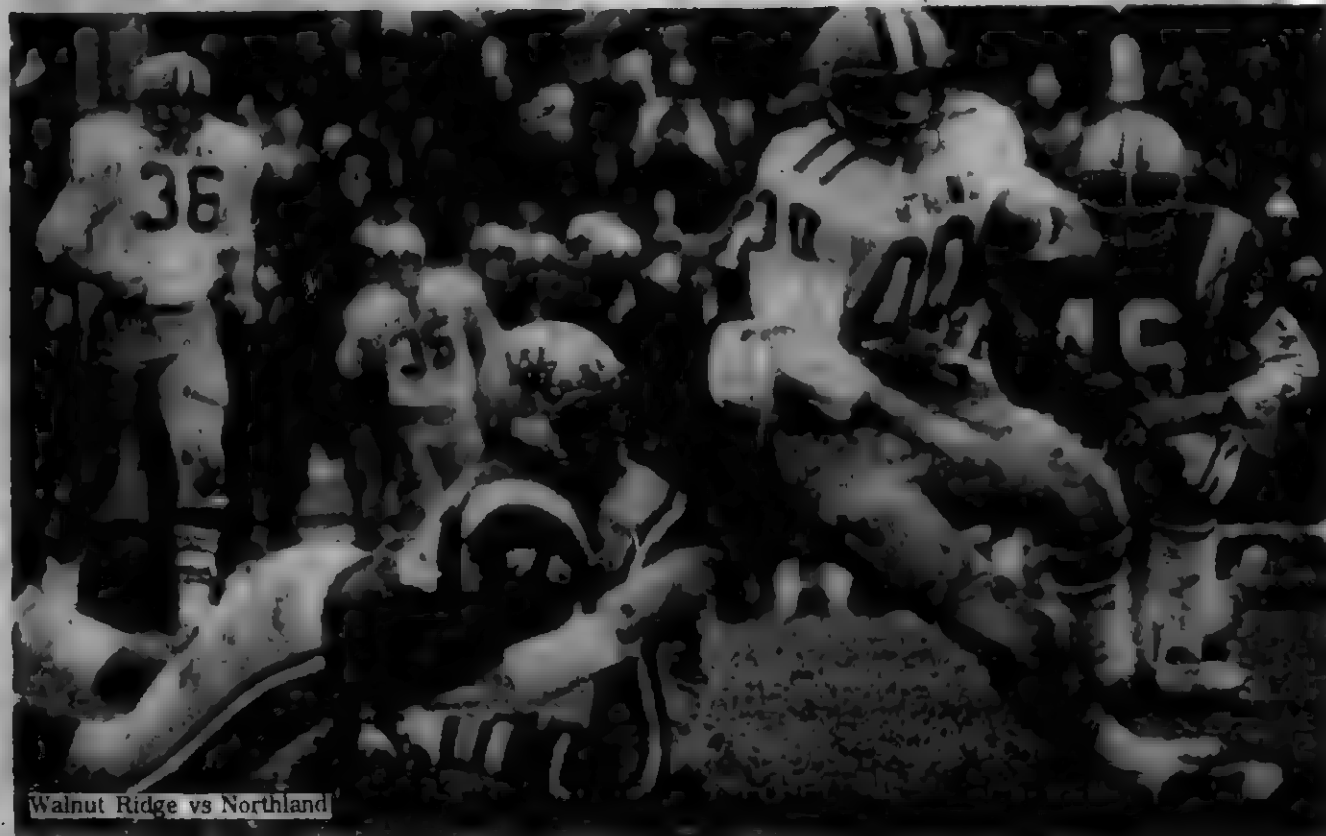

Reynoldsburg vs Worthington

REYNOLDSBURG halfback proved to be a hard man to bring down by the Cardinals and here he lugs the pigskin for extra yards while a host of Cards hang on including Bob Trull (58) and Bill Kenny (85).

They're OCC All-Stars

Walnut Ridge vs Northland

A ROCK OF GIBRALTAR defense for the most part proved to be successful for Walnut Ridge as they kept the Northland Vikings at bay most of the way. Northland's No. 88 (Frank Palmiero) got smothered on this play by three Scot defensesmen.

Walnut Ridge vs Northland

HARD NOSED play proved to be victorious for Walnut Ridge as they won the Columbus City Football Championship from arch-rival Northland by a score of 21-14 last Saturday on the Scots field. Typical of the aggressive Scot play was this fumble recovery inside the game that helped turned the tide toward a Scot win. Coming up to recover the Northland fumble was senior end Greg Korman. Others in the photo are Scot Steve Winslow (32), Mike Nickles (11) and Northland's Jeff Bracer (67). (Photo by Michael P. Stafford.)

Reynoldsburg vs Worthington

CARDINAL halfback Red Ingram (28) was met head on by this unidentified Reynoldsburg tackler and brought down after a short gain that put the Cards in scoring position again.

Reynoldsburg vs Worthington

IT WAS ALMOST but not quite for Reynoldsburg's Paul Maloney as he reached for a Mike Cronin pass in the first period of the OCC game won by the Cards. That's Don Wolcott (21) and Jeff Brown (31) coming up for the Cards. (Worthington vs Reynoldsburg photos by Ed Korman.)

WALNUT RIDGE zapped Northland 21-14 Saturday to earn the 1973 City League Championship in a frosty breezy morning thriller. It is the first ever undisputed crown for the once beaten Scots who shared the 1967 throne with Eastmoor for its only other championship win.

And it was a sweet victory for this Vince Cahill coached gang who lost the Champ of Champs match 7-6 to Northland a year ago and had firm beliefs of coming back this year and going home with all the marbles, as they so convincingly did.

IT WAS a one yard burst by halfback Terry Logan that capped an 82 yard drive and rocketed the Scots into a 21-14 lead with 2:53 remaining in this championship contest. That along with the Ridge's "BIG D" iced the crown as the Vikings could not mount a serious threat on its ensuing possession.

Matt Guttman, Ridge's whirling backfield ace, smashed for 126 yards to lead the offensive barrage that saw the running wishbone throw but two passes all afternoon. One was valuable though, a big 48 yard gain from commander Gary Gioia to quick-stepping Bob Berdelang. That was the supreme play in that game deciding drive.

But the real story, the same as it has been all season, was that famed Walnut Ridge defensive unit that was not overall as tough as usual but was tough in the clutch. Linebackers Mark Glenn, Steve Winslow, Mark Woodburn, and Kevin Glenn all turned in their normal super games on defense as did the interior offensive line.

Logan accounted for two scores as George Snyder crossed paydirt for the other. Pete Bickel was perfect on three placements.

THUS, Walnut Ridge finishes its season with an impressive 9-1 mark (championship game included) and only 22 regular season points scored against

IN A WEEKEND surprise, St. Charles cracker-jack Cardinals upended AA powerhouse Watterson 20-14 via a three yard Jerry Hammond burst in mid-fourth quarter. Dave Reilman fired seven yards to Fred Messner for another St. Charles score and Ron Rad highlighted the game with a 78 yard breakaway from scrimmage for the other Cardinal six-pointer.

Watterson accounted for its scoreboard punch with the Dean Dixon to Scott Brindey under passing combo click of once in the first half and outdoing that same trick later in the game. The clash left both teams with season ending 8-4 marks as St. Charles will enter Central Catholic League action for the first time this basketball season.

IN FRIDAY'S non-league action DeSales popped Franklin Heights 21-7 despite a fine performance by Falcon QB Hal Thompson; Hartley's Mark DiSabato and Ed Radcliff performed marvelously in a 27-0 Hawk zipping of Reynoldsburg; and Grove City bipped Westland despite a Duke Hoyle 27 yard three-pointer.

leading scorer with 56 points...JEFF EDELSTEIN, Bexley's sturdy two way performer was named the Lion's most valuable player...It shouldn't be forgotten that BOB STUART'S Eastmoor eleven finished as Co-Champions of the City League South, Ridge represented the South in the Championship Game due to its win over Eastmoor in head on competition...Placing on the Ohio Capital Conference's All Star Football Honorable Mention List are MARK ELLIOT and JEFF TEACH of Worthington, TOM ATHEY and DAVE FLEMING of Whitehall, TIM MALONE and MIKE SMITH of Reynoldsburg and MARK JOHNSON and GREG LUCKENBILL of Westland...Westerville's STEVE WOHLERT was named player of the year.

Funtastic Is A Family

The Funtastic Family is providing plenty of lively, unusual entertainment nightly at the Holiday Inn-OSU. The Family is made up of Father, Bud Mercer, Brother, Russ and Daughter Linda. All three combined together to give you a highly entertaining show comprised of music, song, tap dancing and a little humor.

Daughter Linda is the drummer and vocalist for the trio. She plays drums nicely. Laying down a very strong, solid rhythm, Linda keeps the group moving musically. She doesn't pound the skins and cymbals, but presents a strong attack. Linda is not afraid of them, as so many female drummers seem. What she may lack in stage personality she more than makes up for with the sticks and brushes. As a singer, Linda can also hold her own. She is certainly not the best you have ever heard, yet she does entertain you with her vocal renditions.

Son Russ is the one who owns a beautiful voice. No doubt about it, he is the best singer in the group. Owning a good, mellow voice, Russ shows plenty of control, along with rather heavy stylizing. His voice has a nice pretty sound to it. Good quality.

While I consider Russ a darn good singer, and one I feel that you will enjoy, singing is not his main contribution to show business. Wait until you hear him play the guitar. His style and approach is so smooth and mellow. Russ does not play guitar like so many of the so-called guitarists in the young groups today. He is a true guitarist and artist in every sense of the word. The treatment he gives such as, "Satin Doll", and the new one, "Joy" quiets down the entire room. Outside of his guitar, you could hear a pin drop. Russ can almost make that guitar talk. He creates all types of sounds from the electric strings. Now, mind you, he uses the amplifier to create beautiful music, not noise.

Things really begin to move when Russ lays down the guitar and picks up the banjo. Playing the banjo in the true Eddie Peabody style, Russ dishes out such songs as, "12th St. Rag," "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise," and many other old favorites. When he shifts into high gear, Russ's fingers fly faster than a bumblebee in a rose garden. Now, that I told you about the two younger members of the family, let me tell you about Dad, Bud Mercer. Here is the real star of the show. This man is a showman's showman, all the way. No matter what he does, play the electric bass, sing or tap dance, it's all pure show biz.

That's right, I said tap dance. Bud does impressions of Ray Bolger, Fred Astaire and many of the other great ones. I can't remember how many years it has been since I have seen a tap dancer on any stage. Bud is good. He is light on his feet, which by the way move faster than Houdini's hands. Bud is as agile as a twenty year old. His "performed in an old time" song and dance man, who with his brother appeared in top night clubs around the country and motion pictures, as well as the Palace Theatre in New York and many top variety television shows, including Ed Sullivan. You just can't beat experience, and Bud's years in the business show through.

The Funtastic Family is a fun loving, happy type trio. This is the key to the success. They give you FUN. Fun music, fun, happy singing, and fun atmosphere. With the different generations in the group, you get a touch of the old and new, both in material and style.

There is never a dull moment in the University Lounge at the Holiday Inn OSU with the Funtastic Family on stage.

Kingswood Inn Offers Much

George Dill is the new general manager of the Kingswood Inn Motel. In my opinion, they couldn't have picked a more qualified individual, or a nicer guy, than George. Many of you may know him, having worked in many leading hotels and motels around Columbus, including such places as the Neil House.

A native of St. Marys Ohio, George and his wife Catharine have made Columbus their home for many years. Putting in twelve hours a day at the Kingswood Inn is not enough for George. His hobby of interior designing has turned into a business, which he owns, Design Interiors.

Using his knowledge in this field, George has made many improvements in the decor of the dining room at the Kingswood. He is presently installing new carpeting and chandeliers in the dining areas of the motel.

George's philosophy which he has put into operation at the Inn is serving the best food possible at the lowest possible prices. Take it from me, the food is exceptionally good. And, with today's prices, it is hard to believe the very reasonable prices on the menu. Without a doubt, it's the best Around Town.

George also stresses service as an important aspect of good dining. You'll find this to be true at the Kingswood Inn.

To make sure that you are served the finest meals possible, George hosts the dining room every night, checking on the service and inspecting every plate before it is served. Yet, he still finds time to chat with his customers, so they get the feeling of personal interest by the staff and management.

The end result is a meal that you will talk about for days afterwards in a congenial atmosphere and pleasant surroundings.

The Kingswood Inn Motel is located on route 161 and Avery Road. Be sure you take the Avery Rd. turn off. It's a Yours truly has a red face. I told you last week about the great Thanksgiving Smorgasbord at the Holiday Inn Reynoldsburg. But, I gave you the wrong price. It is 70 cents cheaper, than what I said. You get roast turkey, baked ham, honey fried chicken, with all the works, for only $4.25. What a buy. Knowing the delicious meals I've had at the Holiday Inn Reynoldsburg, I know this will be a fantastic Thanksgiving Day meal.

Upland Game Season Opens November 15

Ohio's season for pheasant, quail and rabbit opens Thursday, November 15. The daily bag limit on quail is six, pheasants, two cock birds and on rabbit, four. The possession limit after the first day equals a two day bag limit on all species. The season for rabbits and quail extends through January 15 on both private lands and on public hunting areas. The cock pheasant season is split again this year on private lands with the first segment closing on December 8. It re-opens again on December 24 and extends through January 1, 1974.

HUNTING hours on all species are from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. and hunting is prohibited on Sundays.

Wise hunters have already contacted farmers on whose land they desire to hunt and have secured permission. There are thousands of acres within Ohio which are in a state program which land owners agree with the Division of Wildlife to allow hunting on their properties with their written permission. The Division furnishes landowners with permit books and signs which read, "Hunting With Permission Only." These signs are yellow and black and have a space for the landowner's name and are posted around the boundaries of the property.

HUNTERS who observe these signs are urged to contact the owner and ask permission to hunt. Refusal of a landowner to allow a hunting party on his land doesn't necessarily mean he doesn't want people to hunt. Perhaps that particular day he has already given others permission to hunt, and if he has limited acreage he may deny additional hunters at that time but give them permission for some future day.

Belmont Fishing Northeastern Ohio

The Chagrin River continues to provide fishing for Coho and Chinook Salmon. The Coho are running 4 to 6 pounds while the Chinooks are often weigh between 6 and 11 pounds. Mepps, Tadpoles and Rooster Tails continue to be the most productive lures.

Both river and off shore lake fishing are productive. Lake Trawling and shoreline surf casting using spoons has been successful for Coho, Chinook and rainbow trout.

One of the most productive lake fishing areas is located near Arcola Creek, Perry Township, Lake County. DISTRICT THREE (northeastern Ohio) personal suggest that fisherman planning trips to Lake Erie should check weather forecast before making the trip. Many times the lake is too rough to fish and may pose a definite safety hazard.

Hunting in Ohio
Due to the heavy rains last year, many acres of crops were not harvested and much of the crop land was not plowed or planted until after the nesting season this past spring which means there was more cover than usual. When the cover is available your population increases and it looks like sportsman in many areas will enjoy good hunting.

Since over 90 percent of Ohio's hunting is on private land, sportsman are urged to ask the landowners permission to hunt. Respect the landowners property and stay out of unharvested crop fields.

The deer-bow season and grouse season are underway and 23 deer have been taken by bow hunters in District One (central Ohio).

GROUSE are plentiful throughout their range but dry conditions have kept them "spooky" and it has been tough going even with a dog. Rain the past week should improve grouse hunting considerably.

ServiceMaster Has New Carpet Cleaner

ServiceMaster of Columbus, 920 W. Third Ave., is now introducing a new carpet cleaning process called ServiceMaster UltraFresh, which offers an advance in the Columbus area a new advancement in care for all types of carpets.

According to Mr. Ray E. Corliss, President of ServiceMaster of Columbus, the new process combines the most effective soil removal methods known in a single "super" cleaning process which lifts and removes material from carpets that was possible with equipment and methods formerly in use.

The process is gentle and safe for all types of carpeting, including shags and delicate plushes or orientals.

According to ServiceMaster, UltraFresh gives the results every carpet owner hopes for—carpets that are cleaner and better looking, and carpets that stay cleaner longer.

The ServiceMaster UltraFresh process is the latest in a series of improved carpet care methods developed by ServiceMaster International, Ltd., of Downers Grove, Illinois.

ServiceMaster, world leader in on-location carpet cleaning, recently introduced customized carpet cleaning to keep pace with the more varied uses of cleaning for all of the many new types of carpet fibers and weaves.

Now ServiceMaster UltraFresh, a result of continued research by their technical staff, combined with ServiceMaster's unique customized approach to carpet cleaning, brings carpet care to a new level of superiority.

Compost Pile Solution For Fall Leaf Disposal

The disposal of fall leaves is a problem for some homeowners affected by state regulations prohibiting open burning. The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency recommends an alternative disposal method that creates no pollution problems and produces a valuable end-product.

Imagine a new, miracle soil enricher that could produce fast-growing, healthy plants resistant to drought and insects. In addition, fruit and vegetables raised in the new product would exhibit extra flavor and be more nutritional than untreated produce.

Home gardeners would normally rush to their local garden center to buy such a horticultural wonder. Yet, most of us already have the necessary ingredients to create this super soil conditioner in our own backyards. The product is compost and the process that creates it as old as life on earth.

Compost is a valuable, self-enriching humus that is created when micro-organisms go to work on leaves, grass clippings, vegetable trimmings, and other organic wastes. Nature's composting process, leaves moldering on the forest floor are composting, as are prairie grasses and other natural vegetation that die each year.

Compost can be read in two to three weeks in summer if materials in the pile are finely shredded, the pile is turned often, and supplied with sufficient nitrogen. Compost piles built in the fall are usually ready for use the following spring. Shredding leaves and other wastes by mowing them with a rotary mower is a simple way for most gardeners to speed up the composting process.

A foul-smelling compost pile is a sign of insufficient oxygen or nitrogen. By omitting such wastes as grease, meat, bones, and fat, the pile will remain fly and dog-proof. Earthworms, sowbugs, pill bugs, and other small living things are an asset to the pile since they aid the decomposition process and will add value to the soil when used in the garden.

Home gardeners aren't the only ones interested in composting. Many cities are discovering that leaf composting is an economical method of disposal in the fall months. The finished compost can later be distributed to local citizens or used in city parks.

The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency has developed new brochures on composting, at both the individual and the municipal levels.

Children's Levy Support Appreciated

To the Editor:
On behalf of the 3,000 children who will be served this year by the Franklin County Children's Services, we thank voters for their support of our levy renewal. These youths are now assured of continued services and care with the goal being a secure and happy childhood for each.

We also thank the many residents who contributed much time and effort for levy renewal and The Spectator for helping to bring the issue to the attention of community voters.

Sincerely,

George Bracken
Chairman, Children's Services Levy Renewal Committee

COLUMBUS—Shows here are the ration books left after rationing ended in the U.S. The books belong to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wichterman and include stamps, tokens and ration book holder. The Wichterman's had two small children who didn't use their portion so Mrs. Wichterman doesn't remember being short of rationed goods.

What Rationing Was Like

By KATHY DEVANEY

West Columbus—"The way people live today, rationing will be tough. We have too many softies. They won't be able to cope," according to Joe Goodwin.

Goodwin doesn't think people will submit to rationing because there is no war and they don't want to be denied what they've grown used to.

He said he doesn't remember many difficulties but thinks it was because people lived a simpler life before World War II.

GASOLINE WAS rationed based on classes of people with doctors and health teams first; police and city government officials, people in defense, who were asked to form car pools; then ordinary people who were allowed small amounts which lead to bootlegging of stamps, he said.

Mrs. Elsie Weaver remembers the family had to borrow someone else's car when her sister-in-law died because her family didn't have the necessary gas to travel. "It inconvenienced others. We had to look out for each other."

Mrs. H. C. Booth said people cheated. "There were so many restrictions and red tape. It really bugged you when the government intervened. People resented it."

Mrs. Booth remembers that there was a lot of siphoning of gas from tanks and stealing the stickers from windshields which told how much gas a person was entitled to.

MRS. BOOTH WAS a little surprised at the instructions on the back of the book because they were actually orders.

The instructions read, "This book is valuable. Do not lose it. Each stamp authorizes you to purchase rationed goods in the quantities and at the times designated by the Office of Price Administration. Without the stamps you will be unable to purchase those goods....Do not throw this book away when all the stamps have been used, or when the time for their use has expired. You may be required to present this book when you apply for subsequent books."

"Rationing is a vital part of your country's war effort. Any attempt to violate the rules is an effort to deny someone his share and will create hardship and help the enemy....Give your whole support to rationing and thereby conserve our vital goods."

Rationing is used to assure each individual a fair share of scarce supplies, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

"THE DECISION to ration is based partly on the severity of shortages—actual or anticipated—and partly on the extent to which such scarce goods are essential to life and health," Britannica said.

Before formal rationing is imposed informal rationing may take place through asking consumers to reduce their consumption or by suppliers allocating their product as they wish, according to the encyclopedia.

Types of rationing which could be applied to the current shortage of fuel

Rationing by use, which takes place when a single commodity used for a variety of purposes becomes scarce. The least important uses are curtailed.

Through rationing by quantity, customers are classified on the basis of importance or need and assigned rations accordingly. This applied during World War II when A, B and C stickers were assigned (the C was for unlimited use).

Time Change Increases Traffic Hazard

Columbus—The prospect of a substantial upsurge in traffic accidents as a result of the conversion from daylight savings time (DST) back to standard time has brought a strong warning from Columbus police to drivers and pedestrians, alike, to be extra careful in the decreased visibility.

At 2 a.m. Oct. 28 Ohio returned to standard time, which meant setting clocks back an hour. As a result, both morning and evening "rush-hour" traffic will now be under darkened skies.

The return to standard time is of particular concern to Columbus police working on the FARE (Fatal Accident Reduction-Enforcement) program. FARE aims at reducing traffic fatalities for motorists, pedestrians, motorcycle and bicycle riders by assigning additional traffic police to high-accident areas of Columbus.

Sgt. Carl E. Clark, Accident Investigation Squad, has cautioned drivers and pedestrians alike, about the additional traffic hazard of darkness. Sgt. Clark said, "There are now fewer hours of visibility, increased 'rush-hour' traffic volume with motorists depending on headlights, and more pedestrians huddling in heavy coats to keep warm. As a result, they simply are not paying attention."

Sgt. Clark noted that there is a considerable controversy raging regarding the feasibility of conversion to year-round daylight savings time and that there is currently legislation before United States Congress to provide the extra hour of daylight at the end of the short winter days.

Advocates of the plan point to the fact that Great Britain tried year-round daylight savings time for three years, ending in 1971, and were able to point to a four per cent reduction in the number of serious traffic accidents. However, the United States Department of Transportation holds the position that there is currently "insufficient data" to enable it to determine whether or not similar results could be achieved in the United States.

FARE which has brought about very impressive results in the six Ohio cities in which it currently operates—Canton, Columbus, Cincinnati, Akron, Youngstown and Toledo—assigns additional traffic police to high-crash areas of the city where most previous fatalities have occurred. Police are on duty at dangerous intersections, expressway ramps and other dangerous locations on days and during hours when studies show they are most needed. Patrolmen are volunteers, working their days off.

An intensive public information program is being conducted statewide and in each FARE city to acquaint the public with the stepped-up efforts of FARE.

Learn To Read- With Group's Help

By KATHY DEVANEY

West Columbus—"Students are not used to having knowledge that is valuable to others," but students in some reading classes at Hilltop Junior High School are working together and learning from each other, according to Liz Pettit, resource person for junior high language arts for Columbus Public Schools.

The name of the program is Interaction of Student Centered Language Arts.

Students learn skills by using them and through the group approach the students soon discover what skills they need to function.

"EACH GROUP HAS a leader, an observer and a scribe. The leader guides the group and keeps it on the subject as well as solves problems within the group. The observer points out the strengths and weaknesses of the group. The scribe writes down the assignment with the help of the others," according to Julie Walker, one of two teachers using the program.

The students soon discover that they must express themselves precisely in order for the scribe to be able to communicate their thoughts to the other members of the class when they make a report, she said.

"The students have to tell the scribe clearly what they want to say. They see the need to be precise," Miss Walker said.

Students take turns in these roles so that skills are improved by doing and by understanding how the process works by observing others.

THE GROUP APPROACH has the advantage of peer pressure for discipline rather than having the teacher telling someone to behave.

The group has certain purposes and goals which it is trying to meet. If one member of the group is causing a problem the group applies pressure.

"Attention seekers are used to and expect the teacher to tell them to be quiet, but they are embarrassed if told by their fellow students. Those not used to working at least change their behavior even if they still have trouble doing their work," she said.

One student so disrupted a group that he was asked to leave. He was alone in the middle of the room until another group offered to take him in, Miss Walker said.

MISS WALKER STILL gives grades because the students want them. She gives the group a grade each day and averages them at the end of the week. The best group receives a small reward, she said.

"We're not oriented to giving rewards, but we have to start where the students are," Ms. Pettit said. "Our philosophy is that the reward comes from accomplishment but right now they need a more tangible reward."

The students take pride in their group and use their own imagination to make the group look better perhaps by presenting a play or by bringing in props as illustrations, Miss Walker said.

The group chooses its topic from such titles as: adventure stories, things to make, eyewitness reportage, advertisements, sports or codes.

THE SUBJECTS ARE ones the students are interested in and they are written at three progressively more advanced levels, she said.

The teacher provides the boundaries within which the students work. If a teacher doesn't plan well total chaos results, Ms. Pettit said.

"It looks as if everyone is doing what they want but they have a responsibility of achieving a set purpose. They have latitude in achieving that purpose," said Faith Mitchell, coordinator of the program at Hilltop.

"Everything that is done is done for a purpose. It needs to lead to something," she said.

AFTER 30 YEARS as an elementary teacher Mrs. Mitchell says this is not a new way of teaching. "This is more new to junior high than to the elementary school. We hope this will bridge the gap between elementary and secondary schools."

One of the things Mrs. Mitchell will begin working with teachers on is skills teaching. "The teacher has to be on her toes and recognize the needs in each group and help them. She is looking for needs as she drifts from group to group. She's diagnosing," Mrs. Mitchell said.

"The students are discovering for themselves what skills they lack. If we help them find out what they need, they'll learn it. We're tapping into their own development," Ms. Pettit concluded.

According to Cathy Joiner, the other teacher using the program, "It's working. The students and parents like it."

Thanksgiving Is Sharing

"WE GATHER TOGETHER to ask the Lord's blessing" in most homes in this country Thursday, Thanksgiving Day. Thanksgiving is sharing the love of a family and Mr. and Mrs. William Wagner have opened their home to a Korean student at O.S.U., his wife and baby. Shown here on the left are Joe, Ken, Mel and Bill. Mr. and Mrs. Wagner are at the end of the table and on the right side are baby Joe Young, Yong See Park, his wife Misoon and Cindy. Mrs. Wagner said the family has always wanted to do something like this. "We receive much out of it," she said. "It's a way of showing our concern for other people who are not able to be with their family. That's what America is, showing concern and sharing what we have." The Wagner's have the Park family to their home not only on holidays. Anyone who would like to host a student during the year may call Mrs. David Tomlinson at 231-3881. (Photo by Kathy Devaney)

Floradome Given To Ready

WEST COLUMBUS—The Columbus Park of Roses Foundation has made possible the use of a portable greenhouse by Bishop Ready High School. The Floradome Greenhouse will be used for botany, environmental science and biology classes at the school. The greenhouse will be an extension of class activities and a means of supplying living material for class study. Students will also be able to grow plants from seeds and by vegetative propagation. The study of life cycles of many types of plants will be possible. Dr. Ellen Buckneridge and Mrs. Frances Ault will be in charge of classes utilizing the floradome. They are shown here helping Ed Spangler, Jeff and Joe Lytle and Don Hollenback, Columbus beautification coordinator, assemble the greenhouse. Ready is looking for a benefactor to contribute the $300 the dome cost so that another school may be given the same opportunity to learn. This contribution would perpetuate the fund which supplies the domes.

140,000 Accident Reports On File

The files (kept in the Traffic Engineering Division of the Department of Safety) contain 140,000 reports. This is an estimate of the number of reported traffic accidents in Columbus since 1969. Even if a person is not recorded there (and they won't be unless they have had an accident since 1969) these files do have some effect on everyone's daily life.

Request for surveys based on passed accidents come for many reasons: increased accidents, citizens complaints, inter-office request and others. These surveys could determine the need for a traffic light, a regulatory sign or the removal of such items at an intersection. Of course this is only part of the survey but an accident report reveals many things.

A collision diagram, a drawing showing all accidents at a given spot for a selected period of time, will show at a glance how many accidents there have been and how they occurred. From this alone it is often possible to see if changes need to be made or how the area needs to be controlled. However, such a diagram is usually coupled with a field inspection, sometimes a traffic and pedestrian count is necessary also.

A fatality calls for emergency handling and a diagram is completed at once, generally a field inspection is also made. This is followed by written recommendations for changes or improvement if they are needed. If the accident was not caused by traffic conditions, then the diagram will confirm this and no action is necessary.

Farm Land State Issue 1 Has History-Making Margin

IN THE PAST six decades, Ohio voters have faced 120 proposed amendments to the Constitution. The big all time winner is State Issue 1 on the Nov. 6 ballot. According to the latest figures from the Secretary of State's office, it carried by 1,230,476 votes, the biggest winning margin of any state issue.

SLIGHTLY more than 78 percent of those casting their ballots favored the proposed amendment, the largest percentage ever recorded on either side of a constitutional issue in Ohio.

Issue 1 - which provides for taxing farm land at its use value rather than its "speculative" value - carried in all 88 counties. The lowest percentage margin was in Cuyahoga County, where the issue won by 90,393 votes. The highest percentage was in Delaware County which went for the issue by a margin of better than 10 to 1. The best urban showings were in Franklin County (Columbus) where the issue carried by a 5 to 1 margin and in Montgomery County (Dayton) where it won by a 4 1/2 to 1 edge.

"THIS IS a great decision by the people of Ohio", Seth Taft, Chairman of Citizens for Open Space, said today in his victory statement.

At a time when there are serious doubts about the viability of the democratic process, we showed that democracy is alive and well in Ohio. Literally thousands of Ohioans, rural and urban, campaigned for the issue and more than 8,000 contributed funds to it.

"CITIZENS from all walks of life and all sections of the state recognized the threat to Ohio open spaces as a result of the Supreme Court ruling in the Park Investment case. As a result we had an enormous number of endorsements from organizations, public officials and the news media. Clearly the people of Ohio have given the General Assembly a mandate for quick action so that farmers will not be forced to sell their property in order to pay taxes."

Charles R. Baker, executive secretary of C-SOS, pegged the total cost of the campaign at $300,000.

"THE BIGGEST contributor was the Ohio Farm Bureau which gave the sponsoring committee $10,000 plus a loan of $15,000 which was subsequently repaid. While many organizations sent smaller contributions and the direct mail appeals were productive, about two thirds of the campaign funds were produced by grass roots committees at work in 88 counties," Baker said.

The closest contender for popular appeal was the 1921 veterans' bonus proposal which passed by 74.6 percent. A dozen years later 66 percent of Ohioans voted in favor of the repeal of prohibition.

THE BIGGEST all-time loser in Ohio history was the proposed repeal of Ohio's graduated income tax, last year's Issue 2. It was rejected by a 1,406,863 vote margin.

For Baker, the Marcus Advertising Agency and Albert H. Sealy, Issue 1's victory was a repeat of last year's performance. Baker was the executive secretary of the citizens committee which campaigned for Issue 1 this year and the one that opposed Issue 2 last fall.

The Marcus Agency handled the radio, television and graphics in both campaigns. Sealy, Dayton Attorney and tax expert, was chairman of Ohioans for Fair Taxation, last year's campaign entity, and a member of the 5 man executive committee of Citizens to Save Open Space.

The other four are Taft, Baker, C. William Swank, Executive Vice President of the Ohio Farm Bureau, and W. Rex Davis, retired Columbus bank executive.

Christmas Mailings Should Be Advanced One Week

BECAUSE OF the energy crisis, Postmaster General E. T. Klassen has urged Americans to post their domestic and foreign Christmas mail one to two weeks earlier than the Postal Service originally recommended.

"The urgency of the fuel energy crisis compels us to request a one week advancement of the suggested dates we gave for domestic mail and a two week advancement for foreign mail," Klassen said.

THE NEW deadline for posting domestic first-class Christmas mail is December 8 rather than December 11, as previously announced. Domestic surface parcels, except those for Alaska and Hawaii, should be mailed by December 3, instead of December 10.

Airmail parcels and letters within the United States (except Alaska and Hawaii) should now be posted no later than December 15, rather than December 21.

"THE SERIOUSNESS of the fuel shortage to the Postal Service is underlined," Klassen said, "by the fact that in addition to the fuel consumed by commercial air carriers, we require approximately 360 million gallons of fuel traveling 2.25 billion miles to deliver the 90 billion pieces of mail that flow through the system each year. Our requirement for the month of December alone is 45 million gallons." Klassen said that "public cooperation on meeting these new, advanced mail early dates is needed to help us complete all Christmas deliveries."

"REDUCTIONS in the number of evening and early morning scheduled airline flights is of particular concern to us," Mr. Klassen said. "Although roughly half of our Christmas mail remains within a 150-mile radius of senders, the Christmas season is a time of particularly large volumes of long-distance mail."

"Except for surface parcels and other bulk materials, much of this long distance mail travels by air."

"So far, reductions in airline flights have not interfered with our ability to meet service standards since alternate flights have been available," he said. "But further reductions, particularly coming as they may during the Christmas season, give us cause for concern."

TODAY, the Postal Service delivers airmail letters overnight to designated cities, generally those communities within a few hours' flight time and with appropriate air service. Within the contiguous 48 states, the Postal Service promises that at least 95 percent of all airmail letters will be delivered in no more than two days.

The Postmaster General has also requested that long-haul truck operators under contract to the Postal Service observe the 50-mile-an-hour speed limit asked by President Richard M. Nixon. To enable them to do this and still meet contract requirements, the Postal Service is re-evaluating its long-haul truck operations to make necessary schedule changes. The Postal Service clamped an energy-saving 50 m.p.h. limit on its own vehicles last May.

"The effect of the 50-mile-an-hour speed limit will be most noticeable in the West, where typically you find long distances separating communities," Klassen said.

The Postmaster General anticipated that the nation's energy crisis, noting a continuing decline over the past years in the Service's energy use while mail volumes were simultaneously increasing.

"Over the past five years, we reduced our energy use by an average of 4.4 percent per year and over the last three years, our average per annum decrease has been six percent," Klassen said.

A CONSERVATION program at Washington, D.C. headquarters facilities and similar effort among the nation's 40,000 postal facilities was instituted earlier this year.

The Postal Service plans to announce further actions in connection with the energy crisis.

American Red Cross Has Christmas Package Ideas

THE AMERICAN Red Cross has some suggestions for Christmas presents for servicemen and a reminder to their families and friends to mail soon. With years of experience in Services to the Armed Forces, the Red Cross suggests that a variety of small items to open is usually more welcome than one large gift.

The Red Cross also advises originality in the seasonal wrapping and a special effort to put some personality - yours and the receivers - in these Christmas gifts.

AMONG THE items Red Cross suggests are: a combination pocket knife, small tool kit, cuff links, individually wrapped shoe polish envelopes, packages of pre-moistened towels, shoe mittens, adjustable picture frames, guidebooks for countries the serviceman might visit on leave, after-shave lotion, pocket comb and nail file, a key case, a rechargeable flashlight, notepad and stamps (gentle hint!), clip board clothes brush, lint remover, set of greeting cards and wrapping paper, a filled photo album, hand-knit items, a traveling chess or checker set, playing cards, puzzles and small games, ever-necessary handkerchiefs, a thermos, a quick immersion heater, a selection of dehydrated soups, individual pudding packs, smoked oysters, cheese, canned meats, an enlargement of a favorite home neighborhood scene, the latest book in his hobby field, a subscription to the hometown newspaper, folding slippers.

CARE SHOULD be exercised not only in choosing gifts but in packing them properly. Fragile items must be well cushioned. Foam rubber chips are practically weightless and hometown newspapers stuffed between the gifts help keep them from shifting.

If home-prepared food is sent, be sure its edibility extends several weeks. Red Cross advises that cookies should be individually wrapped and packed in metal air-tight containers. The outer box should be sturdy and the address legible.

Hospital Smoking Regulations Are Not Being Observed

A RECENT study of fires in Columbus hospitals has caused Fire Chief Raymond Fadley to re-emphasize observance of smoking regulations in such facilities. The study shows that more than 80 fires have been reported over a three year period. One-third of those fires were directly attributed to smoking or careless handling of smoking materials.

Pointing up the seriousness of the problem, public records show in recent years, two deaths in local nursing home fires attributed to smoking.

SMOKING is not encouraged, but hospital officials realize patients would often be placed under a great stress if denied the right to smoke. Of course, patients under sedation or deemed not responsible, due to their medical condition, are not permitted to smoke or are allowed to do so only under supervision. Ambulatory patients are encouraged to smoke only in lounges, waiting rooms or areas provided.

Chief Fadley has issued a plea to visitors to observe the smoking regulations. He pointed out that the majority of visitors are in the hospital for a short period of time and should be able to observe the rules banning smoking in patient rooms. They, too, may use the areas designated for smoking.

THE CHIEF said that fortunately the fires reported in the study were of a minor nature, but he fears the possibility of a serious hospital fire that would bring tragic consequences. Safety inspections are conducted regularly and hospital personnel are trained in prevention and fire fighting techniques.

However, his main concern is that visitors cooperate with hospitals in insuring the safety of patients by complying with smoking regulations.

Goodwill Industries Are Very Thankful

To the Editor:
November is Goodwill Industries national "Thanks-For-Giving" Month. I would like to take this opportunity to thank each member of the Central Ohio community for support of our five Goodwill Centers in Columbus, Marion, Newark, Chillicothe and Portsmouth.

If you have contributed one dress or one item of used furniture to Goodwill Industries, you have helped Goodwill in its effort toward helping people fulfill their roles in society.

You have helped Goodwill inevaluating and training those with physical impairment or mental handicaps.

Your contribution has helped Goodwill provide counseling, guidance and job experience to the emotionally disturbed, those on welfare, and parolees from our state prisons.

Nonprofit Goodwill Industries nationally served over 66,000 handicapped and disabled people last year. Locally, we helped over 2,000 handicapped persons. These people are from all walks of life with differing abilities, personal tragedies and personal goals.

The financial contributions, business contracts and surplus items given to Goodwill are greatly appreciated. They help Goodwill fulfill its objective... "Helping the Handicapped Help Themselves."

As Thanksgiving Day is approaching, I would like to thank each of you personally for your assistance to the Goodwill program, and look forward to an even greater program for the handicapped in 1974.

It will be shown at 2 and 5 p.m. in the Center's auditorium on Saturday and Sunday, November 24 and 25. Admission is free.

'Girl In Soup' Slated

ALTON—"THERE'S A Girl In My Soup," a comedy with modern overtones, written by Terence Frisby, will be presented in four performances by Frisbie Players, Nov. 30, Dec. 1, 7 and 8. All performances are at the Playhouse, 6463 W. Broad Street, 8:30 p.m. The story concerns a no-longer young male who is an authority on food and wine and who specializes in girls as an avocation. When he meets a mod young girl who is more than a match for him, he finds himself really in love. But the girl's heart belongs to a musician (by night) and a lieutenant (by day). In the end, youth triumphs and the food expert gets his come-uppance. Robert Danvers (left) plays the food and wine (and girls) expert, Diane Disque plays the mod girl who brings about his downfall. David Stig, Donald Bender, Darlene Loomis, Mary Lou Sullivan and Joe West play supporting roles. "There's A Girl In My Soup" was a Broadway hit, and is also a movie success. The story line plays current social events for all the comedy possible.

Southwest Staff Tours

West Columbus—Thursday, Nov. 8, the staff of the Near West Side office of the Southwest Mental Health Center toured the Near West Side. The 25 staff members included secretaries and receptionists, community workers, 24-hour emergency service staff and clinic staff. Tour guides were Porter Phillips, Director of Gladden Community Home, and Milous Keith, Division of Urban Renewal of the Columbus Department of Development. The tour was a part of the Center's efforts to learn more about the community it serves. The geographical and historic landmarks of the Near West Side are a part of the community. Such landmarks help Center staff understand what has happened in the past and what is happening currently in the Frankinton area. The tour included driving around the boundaries of the area and crisscrossing back and forth to catch such sights as the Frankinton Cemetery, McKinley Park, the schools, recreation centers, the churches, housing developments, highway construction, etc. The staff greatly appreciated the assistance of Porter Phillips and Milous Keith in this project. The Near West Side office of the Southwest Mental Health Center is located at 854 W. Town St. The phone number is 224-4024.

Carbon Monoxide Checked

Columbus—The Columbus Department of Development, assisted by the Fire Prevention Bureau, is in the midst of their 17th Annual Carbon Monoxide Prevention Campaign. This week 16 teams of housing and fire inspectors will examine nearly 2,500 Columbus homes for carbon monoxide leaks. Inspectors will warn residents of the deadly dangers of carbon monoxide leaks. Inspectors will warn residents of the deadly dangers of carbon monoxide and will write orders for repair of appliances having carbon monoxide leaks. During the five day campaign, which started Nov. 12, the carbon monoxide inspection teams are concentrating on four Columbus neighborhoods. Columbus residents whose homes are not part of the neighborhood check, may have their homes inspected for carbon monoxide by calling the Division of Housing at 461-4130. During the first three days of the campaign, inspection teams stopped at 1174 dwelling units. Some 633 people were not at home and 66 people refused to have their homes inspected. Inspectors found no defects in 340 of the 476 homes inspected. However, 133 defects were found in 136 of the homes inspected. In the last three years no Columbus home deaths have occurred because of carbon monoxide poisoning. Hopefully the Department of Development's continued campaign will remain 100 per cent effective against this odorless, colorless killer. William Haman and Bea Mirman of the Division of Housing Inspection are shown here testing a furnace for carbon monoxide at an E. Whittier St. home during the annual Carbon Monoxide Program this week.

"BRADY BUNCH" star Barry Williams chats off camera with an "extra" while other members of the "Brady" family, Robert Reed and Christopher Knight (center), film a scene in the Coney Island section of Kings Island. The show will be broadcast this Friday on channel 6, WTVN-TV.

Roland Sunker is "on vacation" this week and his column for this week is abbreviated. He'll be back at the regular "Around Town" beat next week.

Skipping

Around Town

Pat and Diann opened this past Monday at Lincoln Lodge. They are a high powered duo, with plenty of good instrumentals and vocals. Wait until you see Diann, what a knock out! More on them next week....For you lovers of fine, gourmet food, remember the Marriott Inn. Their food is fit for royalty. So is their entertainment. Duke Jenkins reminds me a lot of the old Nat King Cole. Take my advice, and head to the Marriott Inn soon....For the time of your life, with good entertainment, be sure you visit the Miss DeLois Lounge in Gahanna. Owned and operated by that sexy bomb shell, Miss DeLois, the lounge features the gal herself on stage doing her fabulous singing and dance routines. Miss DeLois has worked all over the world, as well as several of the top spots in Columbus. She loved the area so much, that she decided to settle down. So she bought her own club and entertains there nightly....The Four Colins returned to our city. They are currently at the Ramada Inn South. This is the group that sold several million records a few years ago. Drop in and give them a listen. They put on a fine show, as well as playing for dancing....Joel Dane is currently at the Ramada Inn East. Joe has become an old favorite to the people of Columbus. His group presents a high powered show, that's for sure. Up a Ramada Inn-North: The Don Hinton Show is making a returned engagement. So take your choice and be sure to visit one of these great show groups at one of the Ramada Inns. Having seen all three, let me give you a hint. Try to catch all three, you won't be sorry....Remember last August when yours Truly went to Kings Island to interview the Brady Bunch gang while shooting a show for their TV series? Well, that show will be broadcast Friday, Nov. 23.

Officials at Paramount Television, the producers of the show, said the sequence will be shown nationally on the ABC Television Network, and will be seen on WTVN-TV locally.

Thousands of Kings Island visitors watched, and some even participated in the filming of the show. The 60 man cast and crew utilized the park's five themed areas during the four day filming.

The sequence, entitled, "The Cincinnati Kids," has Mike Brady, played by Robert Reed, take the family with him as he presents his architectural plans for a new addition to Kings Island. The plans become inadvertently misplaced while the family is in the park and a variety of comic situations evolve while recovering the drawings.

Also appearing in the show are co-stars Florence Henderson, and Ann B. Davis and the "Brady" children, Maureen McCormick, Eve Plumb, Susan Olsen, Barry Williams, Christopher Knight and Mike Lookinland.

After watching parts of the show being filmed, I can assure you this is one of the best and funniest ones of the season for the Brady Bunch. Also, I think you will enjoy seeing the nights on television that many of you have seen in person. Who knows, you may even see some of your friends in some of the crowd shots. It all happens on channel 6, WTVN-TV this Friday. This is one television I will be watching.

Bishop Ready Seems Ready To Repeat

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Spectator Sports Writer

THE ROUND BALL arced toward the hoop last weekend with Bishop Ready continuing its domination of area AA action via a blasting of Buckeye Valley. In other first week action Reynoldsburg handled Bexley, Hartley dropped its initial contest to Central and Worthington looked impressive in downing Whetstone.

Things get into full swing after Thanksgiving and here is how the league races look.

CITY LEAGUE

South took the marbles last year but things look different now as the coaches are calling East and Walnut Ridge as the cage strongboys in the highly touted CL.

Ron Marshall should be the shooter of the Walnut Ridge five as Nick Vollman, Todd Lee, Larry Capehart and Bob Bardeland also return. This Jack Moore coached group should resemble the speed of the state-championship days for the Scotties.

Paul Pennell's East High Tiger crew's hopes lie with four returning lettermen: Hilton Hale (8-3), Mike Hall (8-3), Terry Jameson (8-6) and Phil Nixon (5-11). Hale, the only returning starter, (he averaged 8 points a game last year) is considered all-league talent by area coaches. Jameson logged considerable playing time last year also for the fast breaking Tigers.

West looks to be a solid contender this season as Marv Schultz finds four regulars back from last years 8-11 squad. Tim Thrush (8-2, 12ppg.), Wes Redd (8-1, 16.8), Ron Williams (8-2, 16.2) and Warren Lewis (8-3, 5.6) represent almost 51 points per game. The free-lancing Cowpokes could surprise a few people providing their defense lives up to expectations.

Eastmoor could be a deceiving club this year according to some area coaches. The Warriors have Brian Stertzer, Pete Liptrap, Rob Hunter and David Potter returning.

Stertzer, a valuable two sports star, will hold the hopes of the Warriors and reports are that he has looked extremely impressive in pre-season scrimmages. Brian is a lean but muscular 6-3.

OHIO CAPITAL

The OCC has coaches calling the shots quite differently as almost every team has gained mention as a contender. It should be some race with Westland as a solid choice and Worthington and Whitehall also labeled as sure-fired bonafide contenders.

Things look real bright for a supreme turn around for former Ohio State basketball Dan Andreas and his Westland crew. The Cougars were a meager 6-13 last year but that seemed to be a rebuilding year.

Four starters return in Jim Cuthbert (8-4, 10.5 ppg.), Gregg Stormont (8-3, 9.5), Gregg Spellman (8-1, 12.8) and Mike Riggs (8-3, 2.9). All four should be able to perform a clog in Westland's switching defenses and its control offense.

Never count out a team coached by the "Dean of Coaches", personalbe Russ Gregg. Four letterman return with Terry Burris leading the charge. Other letter winners returning are Chris Zag, Bill Benalski and Steve Marinello. Burris is the high-jumping dandy, he averaged 19.8 points per game last year and has been mentioned by some as an all-state coandidate. Benton Teddie a smooth ball-handling guard, is a transfer student from Gahanna and Coach Gregg is looking for some help from him.

Worthington returns three starters: Tim Crandall, Don Brough and football genius Doug Burkhardt. Crandall was all-league a year ago and should be counted on heavily to improve on his 10 point per game average.

The trademark of this Pat Mannon crew is its pressure man to man defense.

Reynoldsburg has leading scorer Ed Williams back to control things while he will be complimented by Pat Beasley, a smooth backcourtier. Also returning to add point power are Mark Wade and Mike Mahaffey.

CENTRAL CATHOLIC coach Pat Penn and sharpshooter Jimmy Jones but area onlookers don't think the CCL.

that they have lost the championship touch as the Silver Knights, still captain the CCL.

Ready will bank on the experience of Bob Cumberland, Tom Walker, Barry Longino, Tom Curtis and Tony Walker. And, yes, there is something else that Ready has backing them, a bunch of pride and tradition. Hartley welcomes back five letterman, Dave Profera (8-6, 8ppg.), Rick Boone (8-4, 1.0), Mike Gilliland (8-10, 3.5) (those three started last year) and Doug and Ron White.

The pressing Hawks of Dick Geyer could give Ready a run for the crown.

St. Charles is the new entry of the CCL and this Jerry Connor coached gang looks real eager. Jim Carlisle, Rhett Plank, Marty Klunk, Eric Stinson, Phil Polk and Mike Hausfeld all logged enough time last year to letter. Stinson, (18ppg), Carlisle (12) and Hausfeld started a year past.

OTHERS

Bexley is coming off of a great 17-5 season but heavy graduation losses make coach Gene Millard feel that the Lions are not in the Mid-Eight title picture. Hustling guard converted scorer Marc Abramson and lanky center Mark Liefeld are the Bexley hopefuls as both started on last year's district championship team.

Franklin Heights coach Bruce Brown says, "Darkhorse," when questioned about the Golden Falcon's Metro League hopes. Returning starters Larry First, Mike Blount, Gary Jordan and Ron Lathen will lead the Falcon charge. Blount is the only senior, the others are juniors. First averaged 17 points per game last year for the pressing Falcons.

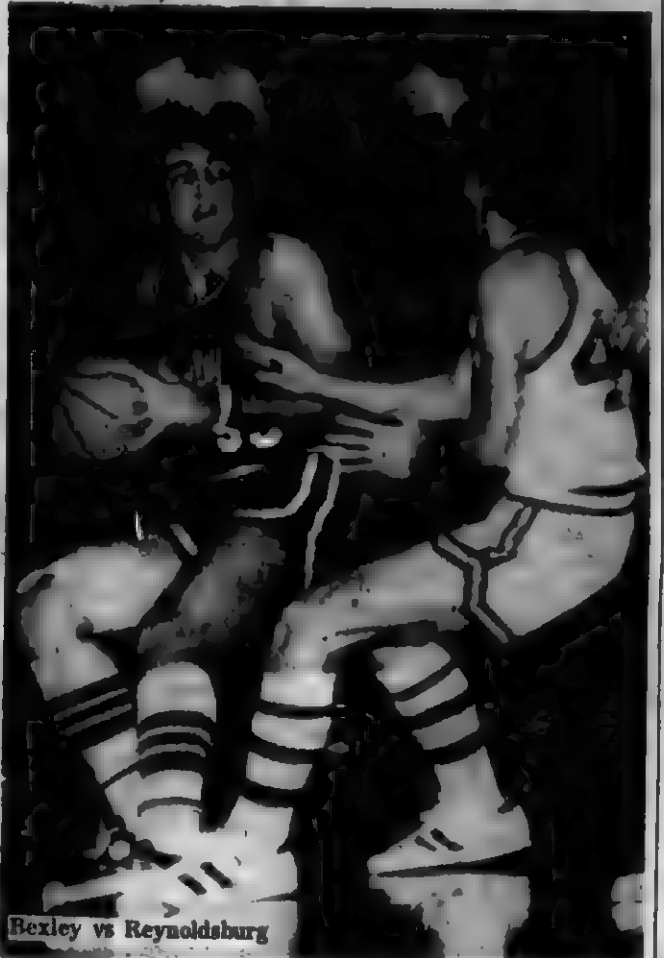

THE CONTEST in this opener between BV and Ready provided the fans plenty of thrills and close-quarter play. In this Craig Weaver photo Ready's Barry Longino tosses up a shot while at left Mike Curtis (30) comes into the play and BV's Eastergay (58) and Brent Fickle (33) make an effort.

TONY WALKER was a demon on the boards for defending Class AA state champs Bishop Ready as they downed Buckeye Valley easily last Friday. Walker (42) grabs this rebound as Bob Cumberland (54) watches and BV's Brent Fickle (33) goes for the ball.

THE RAIDERS of Reynoldsburg equalled their total wins of last season (one) as they tripped Bexley last Friday at the Raider gym. Numbers were not available to the Spectator photographer but this action caught everyone in the ball control game. At top two Lions go for the ball as a Raider comes up to contest it. Bottom is a Bexley ball handler maneuvering out of the way of a Raider defender. (Photos by Dan Unkefer.)

Bexley vs Reynoldsburg

READY CO-CAPTAIN Bob Cumberland (64) got this high arch shot away over the outstretched arms of Buckeye Valley guard ob Curtis for two of his game high points. (BV-Ready photos by Craig Weaver.)

Ice Fishing Without Ice
Local panfishermen awaiting the ice fishing season can try the following method for harvesting large bluegills during the late fall months. Attach two tiny ice fishing jigs (size 10-12 hooks) about a foot and a half apart on the end of your line. Impale a golden grub onto each jig and fish the jigs as close to the bottom as possible using the smallest bobber that will float.

Fish the deepest holes you can find, avoiding shorelines and swallow water. Remember that fish feed more delicately in cold water and the slightest motion of your bobber is normal when a fish takes the bait. Using this method, anglers have made consistent outstanding catches of large bluegills and redear sunfish and once the fish are located, you can enjoy the same fast action as found in winter ice fishing.

Reminder To Upland Game Hunters
Upland game and raccoon season will be closed in counties having a deer gun season. Check "Special Notice" in the 1973 Ohio Hunting & Trapping Regulations for detailed information.

The following counties in District One are affected by these regulations: (Deer Zone 2) Delaware, Logan, Marion, Morrow and Union counties; (Deer Zone 4) Fairfield, Knox and Licking counties.

Year Of The Linebacker Made Season Crackle

BY ANDY SCHWARTZ
Spectator Sports Writer

As the weeks rolled on during this past football season the public address system repetitiously echoed, "Snider on the tackle...Hall on the stop...Ball carrier knocked out of bounds by Griffin, Meindel and Hunter...QB sacked by Belcastro...Pass batted down by Winslow...Tackle by Woodburn and Glenn."

THEY TALKED about the speedy running backs in the area, boasted of the awesome linemen, bragged about the strong-armed quarterbacks and even whispered about the cute pony-tailed cheerleaders. But make no mistake about it. This 1973 high school gridiron season was "The Year Of The Linebacker."

And heading this elite group of area schoolboy toughies is six-foot 185 pound strongboy Don Snider.

Snider, the pride of West's rugged Cowboy defensive unit, was labeled by one area coach as "animal."

"We really consider him as the best," raves West grid mentor Dave Koblenz. "He was our captain and he is just an excellent leader." Snider recovered five fumbles during the season that saw the Cowboys belt City Walnut Ridge 10-0.

Snider was ably assisted by co-worker Hap Hall. Hall also drew great praise from Koblenz. "Hap is not real far behind (Snider), he's a great linebacker," Koblenz added. "These two complimented each other real well."

AND JUST that they did. Snider participated in 141 tackles while Hall was credited with 68 and according to Koblenz, "We expect our linebackers to be in on 75 percent of all tackles, and both of these kids did."

This was some duo. Walnut Ridge's City League Champion Scots, perhaps, possessed the best group of linebackers assembled on one defensive unit. Mark Glenn, Steve Winslow, Kevin Glenn and Mike Woodburn stood out in this Scot defensive eleven that held its opponents to a meager 22 regular season points.

"We felt the big forte was that not one of these men stood out because they are all so good and they all worked together so well," explained Scot coach Vince Cahill.

Kevin Glenn led with 94 participations but there were few solo tackles accumulated by this group because, "There was almost always two or three defenders at the point of attack, they were just so quick," accounted Vince.

"We really can't tell just how good each one is because of this," he concluded. EASTMOOR boasted a rugged trio of linebackers in Rick Meindel, Rob Hunter and Duncan Griffin. These three anchored the defensive wall that helped rocket the Warriors to the City League South Co-championship.

Meindel and Griffin were important cogs in the Warrior's offensive machine also, while Hunter filled in occasionally on offense. These three were instrumental in holding their City League opponents to a petty 3.3 yards per carry. Franklin Heights dandy defensive demons were Tim Matheny and Perry Belcastro. Coach Ed Lewis labeled the two as "Very different because of our slant defense."

LEWIS DID say, "Belcastro is just a great football player and we feel you can't sell Matheny short either, he was hurt the last four or five games and that did take away from his performance." Belcastro also led the offensive drive of the nifty Falcons while being credited on defense with 33 participations in one single contest. (By the way area coaches, he is only a sophomore.)

Jeff Edelstein, Bexley's sturdy two way performer, was the class of the Mid-Eight defenders while Paul Kegelmeyer of Hartley and Dan Dillon of Waterman stood out in the Central Catholic League. It looked as if all three had enemy runners sprinting to the opposite side of the field continuously.

SNOKEY WION's second place Ohio Capital Conference Worthington Cardinals had Doug Burkhart pacing the defensive charge for his performance. Durable Doug, 6-3 185, was also labeled by Coach Wion as "A real team leader." As an OCC standout, Doug landed a first team berth on the All-Star team.

So whether you are an offensive wizard or a defensive hardhitter, you would probably agree, this football season was "The Year Of The Linebacker."

Doctors Hospital Honors Volunteers

Columbus-Columbus Mayor Tom Moody was featured speaker at the Doctors Hospital Volunteer Recognition Brunch held Nov. 3 at Scioto Country Club. The award luncheon is given annually by the hospital as an expression of appreciation to its volunteers who now number almost 400 adults and teenagers.

"There is special wit and grace to uncompensated service," Mayor Moody told the 178 volunteers who were in attendance. "What a magnificent thing it is that there are people like you in our community. The service you give is good for our economy, for our happiness and it is good for you."

Members of the Doctors Hospital administrative staff also paid glowing tribute to the volunteers: Richard L.

Sims, Administrator; Daniel L. Adams, D.O., Chief of Staff; J. David Luckhaupt, Associate Administrator, Patient Services; Lois Waite, Director of Volunteers; Betty Zahara, Associate Director of Volunteers; and John L. Bishop, Associate Administrator, Operational Services, who served as Toastmaster. Mrs. Charles W. Pevey, Chairman of Red Cross Hospital Volunteers, also spoke words of appreciation before presenting the Red Cross awards.

Doctors Hospital volunteers come from all areas of the city as well as from nearby towns. A number are retired citizens, some working as a husband-wife team. Some are high school teenagers who serve under the Volunteer Program. The oldest volunteer, however, is 82 years of age.

A new program, begun a few years ago, involves high school students age 14 and over. These Junior Volunteers are trained to serve in many areas not directly involving patient care.

After an interview with the Director of Volunteers, those accepted undergo an indoctrination period during which they are trained to work in many different areas of the hospital.

Among services performed by volunteers are: manning the information desk; working in the gift shop and taking the gift cart to the floors; manning the desk in the Surgery and OB waiting rooms; assisting the nursing staff in the emergency room; assisting in pediatric and OB clinics; distributing Ruth Lyons toys to pediatric patients; clerical work in various offices.

Volunteers also work on the nursing floors, performing a number of duties that do not require professional personnel such as personal services for patients, feeding, filling water pitchers, distributing mail and flowers and escorting new admissions.

In thanking the honored guests on behalf of the hospital, Richard L. Sims said, "At Doctors Hospital, volunteers are our most important asset."

Following the program, plans and lists were presented to 194 Volunteers and Volunteers who had passed milestones in hours of service. Special recognition for outstanding service was given to Mrs. Ruth Hedges, 2015 Fairington Dr., for 4,800 hours and Mrs. Hazel Malone, 2316 Stephens Dr., for 5,787 hours.

Mrs. Bea Wittington, R.N., Director of Inservice Education at Doctors West and Carol Dower, R.N., Director of Inservice Education at Doctors North, also received special recognition in appreciation for extra hours donated in the training of volunteers.

The following from the Spectator circulation area received service awards:

COSI Christmas Tree Lighting Is International Event

A HOLIDAY EVENT that has become traditional at the Center of Science and Industry is the annual International Christmas tree lighting and the arrival of Santa Claus which this year falls on Friday, November 23.

Santa is scheduled to arrive at the Center at 7:30 p.m. and will touch his magic wand to a switch which will illuminate all of the trees.

He will then lead the assembled audience in the singing of "Silent Night" accompanied by the Strollers of Upper Arlington High School and Mike Williams at the organ.

The trees are a public service project of the Columbus Rotary Club and symbolize peace and understanding among nations.

THIS YEAR a live pine tree 12 feet tall planted in the solar front exhibit area will join the inside lobby trees in proclaiming the joyous Holiday Season. This tree was contributed by the Columbus Metropolitan Park System.

Another traditional event connected with the tree lighting is the first showing of the planetarium Christmas show, "The Star of Bethlehem" which takes the audience back 2,000 years to see the sky as it may have appeared when Jesus was born. The audience in the planetarium sees the many astronomical phenomena that may or may not have been seen by the Wise Men.

On week days during Christmas, school vacation extends from December 24 through December 31, and during this time the show "The Star of Bethlehem" will be shown at 1:30 p.m. daily.

COSI will be closed on Christmas and New Year's Day.

OTHER HOLIDAY events scheduled at COSI include two live magic shows, "Red Penley Master Magician" Sunday, November 25 at 2 and 4 p.m., and "The Amazing Kessler" Sunday, December 23 at 2 and 4 p.m.

THE CENTER's Education Department will also be conducting Colonial Christmas workshops for students Saturdays in November and December in Colonial Christmas cards, Christmas Candles, Home Decorations for the tree, and Homemade Presents.

The classes are for pre-school-kindergarten, grades one thru three, and grades four thru eight.

Persons interested should call the Center's education department at 228-6361.

THE DURELL Street of Yesteryear at the Center will again be gallily dressed in the colorful style of the 1800's and early 1900's and there will be Christmas music to give cheer to the holiday background.

For information about any of the Center's programs call 228-6361.

Golden Age News And Notes

TO SMASH through the maze of loneliness often seems an impossible task to an older person confined by either physical or economic circumstances to one spot.

To help him penetrate this wall and show him the way to help others through it is what Tele-A-Friend Reassurance and Outreach is all about. It is a division of the Columbus Area Community Mental Health Center and the Council on Aging.

From its headquarters at the North Columbus Jaycees, at Jaycees Arms, 266 E. Main St., Tele-A-Friend reaches out all over the city to its 170 members and 170 volunteers.

Mrs. Lois Kuhn, its enthusiastic Director, is convinced there are thousands in the Community needing its services. She is currently engaged in various promotional schemes to ferret them out and get them to join her happy family.

ACTUALLY, this is kind of like the old fashioned party line enjoyed by our grandmothers in simpler and more rural settings.

Say you're plunked down in the middle of the city and for any number of reasons you can't get out and you don't know anyone to talk to. That's where the "lonely wall" comes in—it could happen to anyone.

YOUR SOLUTION is as near as your telephone simply dial 224-7444. You'll be given a volunteer. This volunteer enters into a compact with you to telephone you seven days a week, talk with you, and check on your well-being.

If there is no answer at the agreed upon time, the volunteer will enlist the aid of a friend, relative, or agency to make a home visit to see what is wrong.

OF COURSE, how it turns out is that you find a friend, a surrogate family, and there is soon a community of ideas, interests, and tidbits of news to eagerly exchange each day.

The reason Tele-A-Friend keeps expanding is that the you who thought he was too lonely to be part of the tide of life any more, discovers after a few months that there are all kinds of things to be interested in and that need doing in the community. You are soon on the telephone asking: "Can't I be a Volunteer and have a client of my own?" I think I can help someone else.

MEANWHILE, back at Tele-A-Friend headquarters, the agency itself is not idle. Mrs. Kuhn explained that both client and volunteer are regularly called once a month to evaluate the quality and regularity of the service.

This keeps both in constant contact with trained geriatric staff personnel. A newsletter is edited and mailed monthly to clients and volunteers with news items about participants and information of interest to the elderly.

SPEAKING of information, volunteers are furnished with an impressive kit of information about every service and aid that exist in the community.

The sources range from legal aid, through dental assistance, to medical and hospital facilities, food stamp information, welfare aid, and senior recreational opportunities.

The volunteer has at her finger tips the telephone number that will solve an astonishing number of problems. Finally, there is an emergency service.

THE TELE-A-FRIEND number is plugged in automatically at the end of every working day to the Mental Health Center. Here a staff of four professionals, with transportation available, are on 24 hour duty.

Mrs. Kuhn spoke with pride of her new efforts of expansion in the Community. Operation Outreach now has two centers: the East North Broadway Methodist Church, and the Northland Church of Christ.

These centers will operate on a concept of service to their neighborhoods providing a focal point of contact for anyone needing help.

Assistance from home visits through emergency relief to arrangements for every kind of health care as well as just friendly conversation will be available.

ANOTHER movement in the wholly new organization "The Grandkids." These are groups of selected teenagers throughout the city who adopt a matching group of "grandparents" who are mostly institutionalized.

The kids have one requirement; they must promise to send four letters a month at least and for their part the grandparents agree on at least one answer per month. This of course just begins the "Grandkids and Grandparents" dialogue.

Mrs. Kuhn spoke with regret at not being able to reach more people whom she knows must be achieving far less services. The problem is not volunteers there are plenty of it. She asks "If you need us just call 224-7444."

Group Changes

At the recent meeting of the Board of the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce, the name of the Downtown Area Committee, an organization affiliated with the Chamber since 1966, changed its name to the Downtown Action Committee.

The committee for years has expressed the concerns of the downtown and instituted programs that were action oriented and is now involved in the promotion of such action projects as the river front amphitheatre and implementation of planned Vincent Pontes' downtown park and Broad Street tree projects.

The Downtown Action Committee is composed of downtown businessmen and governmental officials who have a commitment to develop the downtown area of Columbus as the heart of the progressive and urbanized state Capital of Ohio.

'Special' Child Gets Extra Special Help

BY ELNIE T. WEAVER
EDITOR, SPECTATOR EAST

Columbus-Diane carefully scrubs the doll with a soft sponge, completely and happily absorbed in her work. Sandy, across the table, rubs a large flat bar of soap over the round head of her doll, the soap suds running down to her elbows and dripping unheeded onto the floor. David's eyes go back and forth, following the motion of his hands as he pours soap suds and water from one plastic bottle to another. He grins delightedly as bubbles swell and burst.

Such is the scene when several times a week classes of youngsters use the art room of the Childhood League Pre-School Development Center as a water play room. No one minds the puddly floor, soapy tables, wet shirts and aprons. It's part of the center's "small muscle motor therapy," introduced to produce better eye-hand muscle coordination. It's more than that, though; it's the thrill of indulging, uninhibited, in an activity that is usually forbidden at home because it's too messy to suit mother.

As you walk down the hall Kevin suddenly pops out of the "pretend" room to lift the school's pet rabbit out of his pen in the hall and give it a big hug. He puts it down and disappears through the nearby doorway.

THESE ARE "SPECIAL Children," complete with capital letters, to the staff and volunteers who give them "Special Care" and training. They are children from all parts of Franklin County who have disabilities of some kind—mental handicap or hearing, vision and motor difficulties. The goal of the center is to help each child achieve his true potential, and grow and develop until he is able to enter a public school.

After 13 years of operation as a Day Care Center, the facility at 860 S. 18th St., became in 1964, a center for children with special learning problems. It started with two staff members and three students but now has grown to include nine dedicated staff members and 48 students in eight classes.

A strong program of volunteer helpers assists in all facets of the center's work. Notable among these are the 85 League women who are volunteers for a five-year membership term, and who are responsible for operating and maintaining the center and for raising monies to cover the operating budget.

The students have all been diagnosed as having some type of developmental disability by the family doctor, a Children's Hospital staff member or practicing psychiatrist.

They come to the pre-school on one-half day schedules five days a week. A maximum of seven children work in an "academic" classroom with one teacher and one volunteer. In some activities such as gym classes, there may be a volunteer for each child.

A PEEK INTO AN academic classroom may afford a glimpse of a child with very thick eyeglasses, a timid child, a boisterous child, one with a hearing aid and one whose movements are slow and jerky. "They help each other in their work," explained the young director, David Proctor, "the active one drawing out the timid one, for instance."

Each class spends part of their half day in four rooms: one of the three academic classrooms, the art room, pretend room and the gym.

Reading readiness is the chief emphasis in the academic program so that the children will be ready to enter a regular class in public school when they leave the center.

The speech and hearing therapist, whom the enthusiastic director describes as "second to none in the state," screens each child every fall and spring. She invariably finds at least one who needs a hearing aid. Last year she found only two students in the entire school who did not require some speech and hearing therapy. This year she has just finished the screening and now every child in the program will be in therapy.

TWO THERAPY SESSIONS A week will be attended by each child. Remodeling earlier this year has given the school a carpeted speech room with sound-absorbing acoustic ceiling. It has something found in many other parts of the building, a one-way glass window so that parents, observer-volunteers and visitors may, from an

Key To Identifying Disability

Early Detection, Parent Involvement

By KATHY DEVANEY

West Columbus—"Early intervention and programming are important in working with the developmentally disabled. The later parents learn about the problem the harder it is for them to accept," according to Dr. Antoinette Eaton, director of the birth defects clinic at Children's Hospital.

She was a member of a seminar panel discussing methods of early detection of the developmentally disabled, held at Gladden Community House.

The term developmentally disabled or delayed applies to mental retardation, cerebral palsy, epilepsy or other neurological problems.

CLUES FOR EARLY detection include the history of the mother and observation of the child, she said.

"We look for factors such as an abnormal pregnancy, a premature baby, problem pregnancy or a medical problem such as diabetes or high blood pressure," she said.

The doctor can learn about what a child can do not only by observation, but from the mother. "A mother can give valuable and valid information," Dr. Eaton said.

Connie Nelson, home trainer for the Franklin County Program for the Mentally Retarded, explained how to use the Denver Developmental Screening Test.

"WITH THE Denver you go in and play with the child so it doesn't scare the parents," she said.

The test evaluates four areas of development—gross motor, language, fine motor and personal-social.

"The test isn't an IQ test and it doesn't give mental age. It gives the trainer an idea when to refer a child for further diagnosis," she said.

Various tasks for a particular age are given. There is also an indication of what per centage of children can do the task.

Examples are:
APPROXIMATELY 90 per cent of children six months old smile responsively, smile spontaneously, reaches for objects, grasps rattle, laughs, squeals and can roll over.

A child that is 12 months old should be initially shy with strangers, play peek-a-boo, feed self crackers, play peek-a-boo, bangs two cubes held in hands, says dada or mama, imitates speech sounds, pulls self to stand, walks holding onto furniture and sits without support.

A child who cannot do these things should receive further testing. Information is available from the Association for the Developmentally Disabled, 224-0740.

(Premature babies are behind in development the time they were premature, up to the age of two years.

(For example, a child who is one month early will be one month behind in development for its age.)

"IF WE WAIT and see we lose valuable time. It is best to refer children for further testing. Parents need reassurance, but they also have to be aware of the range and skills that fall within a normal range," Marian Chase, chief of physical therapy, Nisonger Center, Ohio State University, said.

"Early intervention with parent involvement is the answer. You get the enthusiasm of the parent if they work from the beginning," she said.

Ms. Chase outlined some other easy tests that may indicate a problem.

A child from four to six months still has what are called primitive reflexes which include sucking, grasping and hanging on and reacting to a loud noise (throws arms out and brings them back to chest).

Mature reflexes from six through eight months include: the protective extension reflex (when the child is turned upside down the arms are out and if pushed to one side the child will extend an arm for support).

FROM FOUR THROUGH six months the righting reflex is evident. If the child is held a little forward or back, the head remains vertical.

Milestones at a later age include moving the face when the head is face down in order to breathe, rolling over, crawling, sitting (by nine months), pulling to stand, cruising (walking sideways while hanging onto something) and finally, the most difficult, walking, she said.

Cerebral palsy is a neuromuscular disability included under the general heading of developmental disability. It is caused by damage, usually before or during birth, to the motor centers of the brain. Ms. Chase said that physical therapy can remove some of the grotesqueness associated with cerebral palsy.

Some physical signs that could indicate cerebral palsy are keeping one hand fisted or keeping thumb clenched in palms if older than four or five months.

Persistent use of only one hand when playing with a toy. Failure to transfer objects from one hand to the other by seven months. Failure to take hand to mouth.

Collapsing forward when placed in a sitting position or rounded back when seated if older than eight months. Inability to roll from back to face. Moving tongue in and out continuously.

Respect For Life Certificate Presented

WEST COLUMBUS—Sister Agnes Goode and Father Raymond Lavelle look at the Diocesan Respect for Life Certificate which was presented to sister Agnes for her work in St. Agnes parish. The certificate reads in part "In recognition for her dedication and contribution to a greater community appreciation of the sanctity of life." Sister Agnes has been visiting the sick and elderly of the parish and has officially been given permission to distribute Holy Communion. "We try to provide any service the people need—getting them to the doctor or store, reading to them, whatever they need." She visits parishioners in the hospital, has given single and marriage counseling and convert instructions. Sister Agnes attends the death of people and comforts the family. "The biggest part is listening and showing you care," she said. "There is a real, deep satisfaction out of doing the little things in life. Satisfaction comes from seeing people happy who normally wouldn't be. The reception has overwhelmed me." Sister Agnes said she loved her four years of teaching at Bishop Ready. She feels she is now putting into practice what she taught.

'Special' Child Gets Extra Special Help

By ELBIE V. WEAVER
EDITOR, SPECTATOR EAST

Columbus-Diane carefully scrubs the doll with a soft sponge, completely and happily absorbed in her work. Sandy, across the table, rubs a large flat bar of soap over the round head of her doll, the soapsuds running down to her elbows and dripping unheeded onto the floor. David's eyes go back and forth, following the motion of his hands as he pours soapsuds and water from one plastic bottle to another. He grins delightedly as bubbles swell and burst.

Such is the scene when several times a week classes of youngsters use the art room of the Childhood League Pre-School Development Center as a water play room. No one minds the puddly floor, soapy tables, wet shirts and aprons. It's part of the center's "small muscle motor therapy," introduced to produce better eye-hand muscle coordination. It's more than that, though; it's the thrill of indulging, uninhibited, in an activity that is usually forbidden at home because it's too messy to suit mother.

As you walk down the hall Kevin suddenly pops out of the "pretend" room to lift the school's pet rabbit out of his pen in the hall and give it a big hug. He puts it down and disappears through the nearby doorway.

THESE ARE "SPECIAL Children," complete with capital letters, to the staff and volunteers who give them "Special Care" and training. They are children from all parts of Franklin County who have disabilities of some kind—mental handicap or hearing, vision and motor difficulties. The goal of the center is to help each child achieve his true potential, and grow and develop until he is able to enter a public school.

After 13 years of operation as a Day Care Center, the facility at 850 S. 18th St., became in 1964, a center for children with special learning problems. It started with two staff members and three students but now has grown to include nine dedicated staff members and 48 students in eight classes.

A strong program of volunteer helpers assists in all facets of the center's work. Notable among these are the 85 League women who are volunteers for a five-year membership term, and who are responsible for operating and maintaining the center and for raising monies to cover the operating budget.

The students have all been diagnosed as having some type of developmental disability by the family doctor, a Children's Hospital staff member or practicing psychiatrist.

They come to the pre-school on one-half day schedules five days a week. A maximum of seven children work in an "academic" classroom with one teacher and one volunteer. In some activities such as gym classes, there may be a volunteer for each child.

A PEEK INTO AN academic classroom may afford a glimpse of a child with very thick eyeglasses, a timid child, a boisterous child, one with a hearing aid and one whose movements are slow and jerky. "They help each other in their work," explained the young director, David Proctor, "the active one drawing out the timid one, for instance."

Each class spends part of their half day in four rooms: one of the three academic classrooms, the art room, pretend room and the gym.

Reading readiness is the chief emphasis in the academic program so that the children will be ready to enter a regular class in public school when they leave the center.

The speech and hearing therapist, whom the enthusiastic director describes as "second to none in the state," screens each child every fall and spring. She invariably finds at least one who needs a hearing aid. Last year she found only two students in the entire school who did not require some speech and hearing therapy. This year she has just finished the screening and now every child in the program will be in therapy.

TWO THERAPY SESSIONS A week will be attended by each child. Remodeling earlier this year has given the school a carpeted speech room with sound-absorbing acoustic ceiling. It has something found in many other parts of the building, a one-way glass window so that parents, observer-volunteers and visitors may, from an

Early Detection, Parent Involvement

By KATHY DEVANEY

West Columbus—"Early intervention and programming are important in working with the developmentally disabled. The later parents learn about the problem the harder it is for them to accept," according to Dr. Antoinette Eaton, director of the birth defects clinic at Children's Hospital.

She was a member of a seminar panel discussing methods of early detection of the developmentally disabled, held at Gladden Community House.

The term developmentally disabled or delayed applies to mental retardation, cerebral palsy, epilepsy or other neurological problems.

CLUES FOR EARLY detection include the history of the mother and observation of the child, she said.

"We look for factors such as an abnormal pregnancy, a premature baby, problem pregnancy or a medical problem such as diabetes or high blood pressure," she said.

The doctor can learn about what a child can do not only by observation, but from the mother. "A mother can give valuable and valid information," Dr. Eaton said.

Connie Nelson, home trainer for the Franklin County Program for the Mentally Retarded, explained how to use the Denver Developmental Screening Test.

"WITH THE Denver you go in and play with the child so it doesn't scare the parents," she said.

The test evaluates four areas of development—gross motor, language, fine motor and personal-social.

"The test isn't an IQ test and it doesn't give mental age. It gives the trainer an idea when to refer a child for further diagnosis," she said.

Various tasks for a particular age are given. There is also an indication of what per centage of children can do the task.

Examples are:
APPROXIMATELY 90 per cent of children six months old smile responsively, smile spontaneously, reaches for objects, grasps rattle, laughs, squeals and can roll over.

A child that is 12 months old should be initially shy with strangers, play pat-a-cake, feed self crackers, play peek-a-boo, bang two cubes held in hands, says dada or mama, imitates speech sounds, pulls self to stand, walks holding onto furniture and sits without support.

A child who cannot do these things should receive further testing. Information is available from the Association for the Developmentally Disabled, 224-0740.

(Premature babies are behind in development the time they were premature, up to the age of two years.

(For example, a child who is one month early will be one month behind in development for its age.)

"IF WE WAIT and see we lose valuable time. It is best to refer children for further testing. Parents need reassurance, but they also have to be aware of the range and skills that fall within a normal range," Marian Chase, chief of physical therapy, Nisonger Center, Ohio State University, said.

"Early intervention with parent involvement is the answer. You get the enthusiasm of the parent if they work from the beginning," she said.

Ms. Chase outlined some other easy tests that may indicate a problem.

A child from four to six months still has what are called primitive reflexes which include sucking, grasping and hanging on and reacting to a loud noise (throws arms out and brings them back to chest).

Mature reflexes from six through eight months include the protective extension reflex (when the child is turned upside down the arms are out and if pushed to one side the child will extend an arm for support).

FROM FOUR THROUGH six months the righting reflex is evident. If the child is held a little forward or back, the head remains vertical.

Milestones at a later age include moving the face when the head is face down in order to breathe, rolling over, crawling, sitting (by nine months), pulling to stand, cruising (walking sideways while hanging onto something) and finally, the most difficult, walking, she said.

Cerebral palsy is a neuromuscular disability included under the general heading of developmental disability. It is caused by damage, usually before or during birth, to the motor centers of the brain. Ms. Chase said that physical therapy can remove some of the grotesqueness associated with cerebral palsy.

Some physical signs that could indicate cerebral palsy are keeping one hand fisted or keeping thumb clenched in palms if older than four or five months.

Persistent use of only one hand when playing with a toy. Failure to transfer objects from one hand to the other by seven months. Failure to take hand to mouth.

Collapsing forward when placed in a sitting position or rounded back when seated if older than eight months. Inability to roll from back to face. Moving tongue in and out continuously.

WEST COLUMBUS-SISTER Agnes Goode and Father Raymond Lavelle look at the Diocesan Respect for Life Certificate which was presented to sister Agnes for her work in St. Agnes parish. The certificate reads in part "In recognition for her dedication and contribution to a greater community appreciation of the sanctity of life." Sister Agnes has been visiting the sick and elderly of the parish and has officially been given permission to distribute Holy Communion. "We try to provide any service the people need—getting them to the doctor or store, reading to them, whatever they need." She visits parishioners in the hospital, has given single and marriage counseling and convert instructions. Sister Agnes attends the death of people and comforts the family. "The biggest part is listening and showing you care," she said. "There is a real, deep satisfaction out of doing the little things in life. Hilltonia Jr. High Addition Considered

West Columbus--The building committee of the Columbus Board of Education considered schematic drawings (preliminary) on three projects at its meeting Monday. Funds for the three projects are provided in the $89.5-million bond issue approved by voters in November, 1972.

The three projects are additions and remodeling at Hilltonia and Clinton junior high schools and Walden Elementary School.

Plans for the Hilltonia project were prepared by Deebie, Boyes, and Underwood, architects at 2101 South Hamilton Road.

The Hilltonia plans include an addition of 5,250 square feet to provide a new library-learning center and expanded lunchroom seating. An enlarged snack-bar area would be provided through the conversion of existing space adjacent to the lunchroom.

The Hilltonia addition would be constructed on the east side of an existing two-story wing and adjacent to a one-story addition constructed in 1962.

Hilltonia's existing library would be converted into a regular classroom and two small-group instructional areas. Other work at Hilltonia would involve the conversion of existing space near the proposed library-learning center to provide a girl's restroom.

Remodeling at Hilltonia also would provide an audio-visual production area adjacent to the school's auditorium.

Budget for the Hilltonia project is $235,000.

demonstrations and workshops in crafts, including some for the little ones.

Refreshments from the on-going bake sale will round out a day of happy browsing among myriads of items, including indoor swings and trapezes, candles, potted plants and macrame hangers, stained glass items, a variety of aprons, beanbags, folded and dyed wrapping papers, and handmade candles.

Featured also will be astrological quilts, with a personalized horoscope applied in the center, which can also be used for wall hangings.

The Metropolitan School, well-known in the Columbus area for its unique program of individualized instruction for elementary school aged youngsters, opens its doors to children from a variety of economic, racial and cultural backgrounds who are prepared to benefit from its open classroom format, designed to foster inner-directed achievement and

Navy Honors Two Outstanding Men

Two Navy men were recently honored by the local council of the Navy League and the citizens of the Navy Recruiting District Advisory Committee (RDAC).

Senior Chief Petty Officer Tom Phillips and recently retired Chief Petty Officer Charles Wood were each awarded a $25 check and an evening of entertainment and dinner for "outstanding contributions to their command and the impressive image they display to the civilian community."

Phillips is the recruiter in charge of the downtown Columbus Navy Recruiting Station, and was selected for the honor as Navyman of the Month for October.

Wood, who just recently retired after 20 years naval service, was September's selectee.

He was the Navy Liaison at the Armed Forces Examination and Entrance Station at Fort Hayes.

John Loehnart, vice president of Dollar Savings, and Lieutenant Commander J.W. Shelton, commanding officer of the Columbus Recruiting District, made the presentations. Loehnart represented both the RDAC and Navy League. The two groups honor two Navy men of the Month in bi-monthly ceremonies.

New Plastic Product Prevents Serious Glass Injuries

FLEX-O-GLAZE, a rigid, safety-approved plastic developed by Warp Bros., pioneer manufacturer of plastics, is now being used to replace broken glass in storm doors, windows and in other hazardous areas around the home.

This new, break-resistant acrylic plastic is clearer than glass, is non-yellowing and can withstand sub-zero temperatures. It is easy to cut, saw and trim. Is available in 3 thicknesses and several pre-cut window sizes. FLEX-O-GLAZE sells in the same price range as ordinary glass.

The prime purpose of FLEX-O-GLAZE is to prevent severe injuries, and even death that may result from sharp, cutting edges and flying glass. The U.S. Health Service reports over 260,000 needless accidents occur each year to people walking into or falling against storm doors and other glass Half of these accidents occur to children under 15 years of age. Because of this high percentage of accidents, many states have passed laws now making it illegal to install ordinary glass in hazardous areas around the home.

FLEX-O-GLAZE meets all the rigid test standards as required by law for safety glazing and bears the ANSI Z97.1 safety approval insignia. It is sold by hardware, lumber and building supply stores.

Women Elect Officers

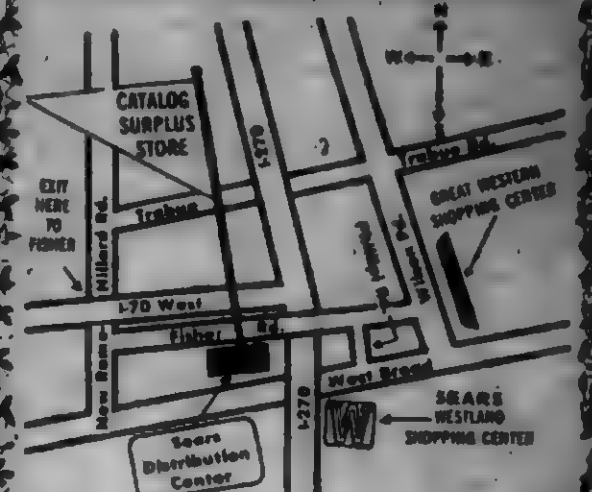

The new officers for the 1973-74 year for the Columbus Chapter of the National Organization for Women are: President, Anne Saunier; Vice President, Carolyn Barkhardt; Treasurer, Betty Powell and Secretary, Jean Petacca.

The Ohio State Legislative Coordinator for the forthcoming year will be Betty Carroll, of the Columbus Chapter, who was elected at the State NOW Conference in Cincinnati.

The Energy Crisis

THE ENERGY CRISIS that is upon us is a problem that can easily be turned into an opportunity for many residents and businesses.

Lower thermostats, less driving for pleasure, fewer lights and a general cutdown on all use of sources of energy is the apparent answer to the situation.

THIS IS NOT only our feeling on the situation but that of many leading business people in the Spectator community.

Last week Robert Lazarus, Jr., Executive Vice President, Lazarus Department Stores, held an open press conference on the energy crisis.

He outlined what Lazarus Department Stores were already doing and what they planned to do to save energy.

General reductions in store lighting and temperatures headed the list.

ENCOURAGEMENT of employees to use car pools and mass transportation and other energy saving hints are included in 400,000 shopping bags being distributed to customers. The explanation of the "air curtain door" (loses no more heat than your own door opening and closing in the wintertime), the elimination of the "Tree of Lights" that has been a landmark for visitors coming to Columbus from other areas and other energy saving factors were touched on.

THE RECENT suggestions by President Richard M. Nixon and implementation of fuel-saving rules will no doubt have an effect on how much energy is saved for more needy purposes.

There is also money to be saved by individuals and businesses when less light and heat is used - or is used more wisely.

The contributions of ideas from individuals and business leaders will go far in determining when this crisis will end.

IF EACH of us does a little there will be more for all of us in the long run.

Let's Keep The Coaches

THE BELL will toll this winter for some area football coaches (mainly in the high school ranks) for their apparent failure to produce winning teams in league and open competition.

We think the school boards should not submit to the pressures from booster clubs, principals and athletic directors and automatically accept these letters of resignation (let's face it this part because they hid on one and are being fired or forced into resigning) from some men who have contributed much to the young men within the system and not just the athletes.

WHEN THE Monday morning quarterbacks start tearing down the season perhaps they should look more deeply into the records of the men who did the interviewing and hiring of these coaches. At the time they were hired it was expected that they were the best available for whatever price the school wanted to pay.

Nothing is infallible - but to change coaches just because a team hasn't met the expectations of the principals and athletic directors and some high ranking boosters is folly and should be treated as such.

A WINNING or a losing season should not be the meter by which these men are judged. What they have contributed to the school and the community as a whole should be heavily weighed.

We say, school board, take a closer look at the athletic program as a whole and remove the zealous athletic director or principal who thinks that the "Leather Gods" must produce or be thrown to the lions.

Muscular Dystrophy Drive Most Important One Yet

"THIS MAY be the most important year in the history of America's volunteer battle against dystrophy and equally tragic crippling neuromuscular diseases," Raymond R. Fadley, campaign chairman of Franklin County's 1973 March Against Muscular Dystrophy announced in officially launching the final door-to-door drive to take place December 2.

"The intensive, worldwide research effort supported by the March has reached a definite turning point," said Chief Fadley. "We may well be on the threshold of the final scientific assault on these vicious diseases which kill and disable hundreds of thousands - most of them innocent children."

CHIEF FADLEY was referring to the stepped-up thrust in MDAA-sponsored research announced last month at the Association's International Scientific Conference in Phoenix, Arizona.

With funds derived primarily from this year's March, he explained, M.D.A.A. will seek to establish a number of university-related research nuclei where intensive multi-disciplinary studies of muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular disorders will be undertaken.

The new project will supplement M.D.A.A.'s already-existing program of grants to scores of individual scientists throughout the world.

THANKS To the first allocation of funds by a state government specifically earmarked for research into neuromuscular disease, the initial center in the new series will be established at the University of California at Los Angeles.

"Establishment of the centers," Chief Fadley said, "represents the greatest hope for victims of neuromuscular disease since the creation of M.D.A.A. That's why this year's March Against Dystrophy is perhaps more important than any we've ever held."

POINTING to the endorsement of this year's drive by George Meany on behalf of the AFL-CIO, Chief Fadley urged the all-out support of Franklin County residents. He noted that the funds raised by the annual Jerry Lewis Telethon represent only about half of what is required to maintain the Association's research and patient service programs.

As part of the program, Dr. Jerry Mendel, of the Ohio State University, is conducting research into the Duchenne form of muscular dystrophy, under a $10,000 grant from M.D.A.A.

IN ADDITION to its extensive research activities, M.D.A.A. supports 124 free clinics throughout the U.S. including one here in Columbus at Dodd Hall on the Ohio State University campus, which was recently provided with a new $16,000 electromyograph machine.

used during an evening. Gebhart added that diseased or punky wood burns much faster than sound wood.

OHIOANS will find wood buying much easier if only pre-split wood is considered. Although more expensive and averaging slightly less weight per cord, the buyer can check the interior of the wood for insects and disease. Split wood also burns better because of the increased surface area exposed to the air.

Byron Kent, division staff forester, said firewood is becoming more expensive although costs vary in different parts of the state. The cost generally is governed by the distance the wood must be transported for sale.

FIREWOOD is sold either by the cord or rick. Most dealers sell a rick or "short cord" measuring four feet high by eight feet long by the length of the firewood which usually is 16 to 24 inches.

"People should be aware that logs don't stack closely together, so in any stack of wood there is a lot of air," Kent said. For example, a standard cord usually contains about 100 cubic feet of wood rather than 128 cubic feet.

THERE'S NO secret to buying firewood," he said. "Everyone has the ability. All they need is a little knowledge and some common sense."

Firewood Gathering Has Method For Exactness

THE OHIO Department of Natural Resources has some suggestions for Ohioans searching for increasingly scarce dry firewood to burn in long-forming fireplaces and newly acquired woodburning stoves.

Possible shortages of home heating fuel have increased the demand for firewood, and until supply catches up with the demand there may be a shortage of dry wood in some urban areas, says Natural Resources Director William B. Nye.

GOOD firewood is heavy, well-seasoned and free of insects and diseases," Nye said. "Unseasoned or green wood has little heating value since most of the heat is needed to drive moisture from the wood."

Unseasoned wood can be detected by end cuts that are fresh. Leaves also may still be on green firewood if it was cut from branches.

DENSE WOODS, such as oak, beech, hard maple and hickory provide considerably more heat than lighter woods such as cottonwood, tulip tree or box elder. Logs of dense wood also burn longer.

Ernest J. Gebhart, chief of the division of forests and preserves of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), said firewood should be checked closely for evidence of rot and decay.

Gebhart advised that wood be stored outside the house and that only as much firewood be taken into the house as will be

Lazarus Estates Benefit Planned Parenthood Group

PLANNED Parenthood of Columbus has announced the family planning agency has received a total of $170,000 from the estates of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lazarus, Sr., from gifts in their memory and from Federated Department Stores, Inc.

At a press conference held at the Planned Parenthood building, 206 East State Street, Planned Parenthood President Charles E. Brant said the agency had received bequests of $75,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Lazarus, $10,000 from gifts to the agency in their memory and $85,000 in matching funds donated by Federated.

THE MONEY will be used to expand Planned Parenthood's counseling service. The program will be called the Robert Lazarus, Sr., Counseling Service, according to Planned Parenthood Executive Director Mary E. Harris.

"We are grateful," Mrs. Harris said, "to Mr. and Mrs. Lazarus and to Federated Department Stores for their generous gifts, and we are excited about our new counseling service."

Ralph Lazarus, chairman of the board of Federated, and a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lazarus, Sr., made the formal presentation today for Federated.

When Mrs. Lazarus died in 1971, she left Planned Parenthood a $50,000 bequest. Mr. Robert Lazarus, Sr., willed $25,000 to the agency when he died on February 4, 1973. Gifts in their memory given by hundreds of friends totaled another $10,000, making a total of $85,000.

FEDERATED Department Stores, seeking a proper memorial to Robert Lazarus, Sr., well known for his humanitarian works in the community, decided to match that amount.

"It is a fitting memorial," Brant said, "to a man who was so deeply involved and concerned with the community and the people of Columbus. I am certain that he would be pleased to know that this counseling service has been established in his name."

Robert Lazarus, Sr., was president of Lazarus Department Store from 1947 until 1956 when he became chairman of the board. He served in that position until 1968.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Lazarus worked for Planned Parenthood in Columbus. Mrs. Lazarus was a co-founder of the group back in the days when the very idea of birth control was a shocking subject. Mrs. Lazarus and a small group of daring women fought for public acceptance. The Planned Parenthood building on East State was a Lazarus family gift commemorating the 75th birthday of Hattie Lazarus.

THEY BOTH worked actively with Children's Hospital, Planned Parenthood and many other civic groups. In 1970 they were named Franklin County's "Outstanding Example of Human Brotherhood" by the honor committee of Temple Israel.

The Columbus Urban League gave its awards for community service, health, welfare and education, cultural arts, religion and humanity to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lazarus, Sr., and their family, "in appreciation for the many contributions they have made for the betterment of family and community living."

There were many other recognitions from retail groups, college groups and other civic organizations.

THE ESTABLISHMENT of the Robert Lazarus, Sr., Counseling Service will mean new growth for Planned Parenthood which currently operates its main clinic at 206 East State Street as well as three satellite clinics. The present program includes contraceptive services, infertility referral services, vasectomies, pregnancy testing, abortion referrals, venereal disease screening and referrals on marital, sexual and emotional problems.

Mrs. Harris says that over the last few years large numbers of persons have been turning to the agency for advice and help on sexual, emotional and medical problems. In many cases the agency is the only possible resource for teenagers, college students and those who can't afford private help. Because of program limitations and priorities, Mrs. Harris explained, questions in these areas often have had to be dealt with superficially.

IN AN EFFORT to meet the needs for these services, Planned Parenthood is establishing the counseling program which will be involved with family problems, marriage and family life education and training of counseling professionals.

In the first phase of the new program, direct counseling for family problems will be offered. Two counselors will work on a half-time basis at the 206 East State Street clinic and at the clinic at 1814 North High Street. Primary areas of concern will be pre-marital counseling, short-term crisis intervention counseling, family planning counseling including birth control and problems of pregnancy, and short-term family counseling.

Dr. Dennis Green is director of the Robert Lazarus, Sr., Counseling Service.

A MARRIAGE and family life education program will be developed in 1974-75 to meet the needs of pre-marital couples, professionals in the community and the general public. A "preparation for marriage" series will be offered quarterly. Additionally, a program for professionals will offer lectures on topics of interest to those working in the area of marriage and family life. For the general public there will be an annual lecture series and speakers bureau.

By 1975-76, it is hoped that graduate students in counseling courses at area universities will work in the four clinics to gain clinical experience for academic credit. Planned Parenthood in the past has worked with the OSU School of Social Work, College of Medicine and School of Nursing and the School of Nursing at Capital University and found it to be a very satisfactory arrangement.

Holiday's Warm Feeling Comes From Christmas Glow

By Marie Louise Dagnall

"CHRISTMAS is becoming too commercial!" For years I have heard this refrain and listened intently and tried to understand this point of view.

Nevertheless, I find that when I go into the stores and see the Christmas decorations beautifying the otherwise dull walls, I instinctively get a warm feeling.

I can't help smiling to myself as a surge of happiness penetrates me and, I must confess, I thoroughly enjoy the hustle and bustle of the pre-holiday rush.

PEOPLE ARE more friendly, too, and the desire to give permeates the atmosphere and naturally that is why the stores are full of shoppers as they are there to purchase their gifts for family and friends. And after all, that is the way it all began, when the Magi came to the Holy Child and presented Him with gold, frankincense and myrrh.

WHEN YOU loved ones receive and you know that it is your material expression of affection for them that has made them smile and brought them happiness, they, in turn, have bestowed upon you a great gift for you know that your special effort on their behalf has brought forth joy.

This pleasure of mutual exchange of both the tangible and the intangible brings a great deal of satisfaction into one's life. Remember when that little one jumped with glee because of a gift you had selected?

Your heart knew no greater fulfillment even though to him it may have come from that all-knowing giver of gifts - Santa Claus.

SO CONSEQUENTLY, every year about this time when I hear voices condemning the commercialism in Christmas, I tune them out. Instead, I plunge into the fun of buying so that I can give for in return, I receive my reward. What is that reward?

It is the deep down knowledge that I brought a smile. It is the return of a sincere thank you kiss or one of my children saying, "Gee, Mom, that's just what I have always wanted. How did you know?"

SOMEHOW, love knows. So turn on the lights in the town and in the stores. Decorate the streets and the shop windows the walls, the aisles and the stands. It will not take long until the excitement of Christmas spills over into your homes and into your hearts.

CARE Contributions Will Make Holiday Happier

BUDGETS for holiday gift lists may be a little tighter this year, and there always seem to be more people to buy for than we thought.

But a unique holiday gift plan makes a few dollars donated to CARE go a long way to help feed hungry children, heal the sick and equip needy people overseas with the means to help themselves.

BY MAKING a contribution in the names of friends, relatives and business associates, you give them a share in providing life-saving aid for the world's needy. Simply send CARE the names and addresses of those on your gift list, with your contribution - at least $2, or as much as you can, for each name. Keep a copy of the list so you can sign and address the "Season's Greetings" cards and envelopes which will be mailed to you in return.

The cards let each person know that you have given to CARE in his or her name, to help others less fortunate.

BE SURE to send your holiday donation and list of names as soon as possible, to allow ample time to receive the cards, to CARE, Ohio-Kentucky Regional Office, 8 E. Chestnut Street, Columbus, Ohio, 43215. Make checks payable to CARE.

Speed Limit Cutback Opposed By OMBA

To the Editor:

Recent proposals to reduce the speed limits on our state's highways to 50 MPH in an effort to conserve fuel, has received considerable publicity in the media. Such a proposal, related to the intercity bus industry, would actually have the opposite effect - wasting fuel.

Prior to your paper's taking an editorial policy on this issue I would appreciate your consideration of the following adverse effects of such a proposal on the bus industry, and more importantly, on the public it serves.

(1) Intercity buses are designed to operate most effectively at about 60 miles an hour at 1,000 r.p.m. They use either four-speed manual or automatic transmission with a rear axle ratio most compatible to give the most efficient speed ranges in each gear.

The shift point from third to fourth (high) gear is approximately 40 miles an hour. A speed limit of 50 at 1,400 r.p.m. would mean that a bus would be at the high point in the second curve when the bus is in high gear and minimum engine rpm.

This is a bad lugging condition, which not only reduces fuel economy, but damages the engine.

To gear a bus in proper operation at a top speed of 50 would require a change in the rear axle ratio at considerable expense, and the required ring gears and pinions are unavailable.

Bus fuel consumption would be reduced only if a maximum speed limit of 50 required bus schedules to be cancelled for lack of patronage or lack of equipment.

(2) To save gasoline, the objective should be to transfer passengers from automobiles to modes of public transportation that use less energy per passenger-mile.

If fuel supplies get tighter, more and more people will rely on public transportation. Therefore, any action making travel by bus less attractive would be counter-productive. Intercity buses are by far the most efficient consumers of energy.

Buses obtain 85 passenger-miles per gallon of fuel, railroads 48, automobiles 40 and aircraft 16 (Source: Eric Hirst: "Energy Intensiveness of Passenger and Freight Transportation Modes: 1950-70," published in April, 1973).

A study sponsored by the National Science Foundation.

(3) A sharp reduction in the maximum speed limit for intercity buses would require a corresponding increase in the size of the intercity bus fleet to provide just the current level of service to the public. (And during the time required to augment equipment, it would be necessary to discontinue some essential passenger service.) Thus, if we were required to put on more buses, due to decreasing the average miles operated per bus because of slower running speed, fuel consumption would rise.

(4) Sharp speed limit reductions would severely disrupt schedules and break connections throughout the country, resulting in much less efficient vehicle and manpower utilization.

To institute a 50-mile speed limit would require total rescheduling of 90 percent of the intercity buses throughout the country, causing undue hardship on the traveling public.

(5) A 15 to 20 percent reduction in the bus speed limit would increase labor costs by approximately the same amount. With bus drivers' hours of service limited by Federal Highway Administration regulations, new drivers would have to be hired to keep service at the present level.

Another factor is that with reduced maximum speed, many driver division points would have to be relocated. Present turn-around assignments would be disrupted. Some drivers would be forced to relocate their residences due to these operational circumstances.

(6) It goes without saying that our costs would soar if new equipment must be purchased, if schedules had to be substantially revised, if there is less efficiency per driver and if new drivers had to be employed.

Thus, at the very time it is in the national interest to conserve fuel by discouraging automobile travel, we would have to seek anti-promotional fare increases to cover these higher costs.

In many cases, these higher fares would have to be paid by those least able to afford them.

Sincerely,
Langdon D. Bell
Executive Vice President.

Township Trustee Sets Record Straight

To the Editor:

Congratulations to Trustees Quetzie and Shaffer on their reelection. They won despite the dirty tricks letter published in the daily papers the day before election.

I would hope the Franklin Township firemen did not condone this letter. It was signed by one of the firemen, and to my knowledge no attempt has been made publicly to deny it.

To set the record straight for the people of Franklin Township I feel a statement should be made.

The trustees, working with the fire chief, do have the personnel to cover 3 fire houses. There are 31 paid firemen, 4 paid dispatchers, and 32 volunteer firemen.

Furthermore, in the past five years their salaries have increased by 36 percent.

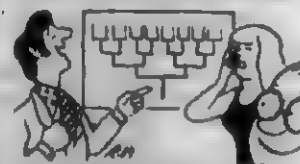

Our firemen now have the following wages and benefits.

- 1) Starting wage is $3,000 per year upward to $10,500.
- 2) Up to 90 days sick leave.
- 3) 9 paid holidays.
- 4) Up to 4 weeks vacation.
- 5) Fully paid Blue Cross and Blue Shield.
- 6) Uniforms and fatigue work clothes are furnished.
- 7) January 1973, a cost of living was voted upon to insure our employees would be covered against inflation thru 1976.
- 8) 13.7 percent of their salary paid by the township into Fireman Retirement Fund.

Finally the firemen are on duty only 2 1/2 days a week. This gives them 4 1/2 days a week to pursue their parttime jobs and businesses. I believe the published campaign letter was untrue, and hope this will clarify the situation for our township residents.

Francis Boehm, Trustee
Franklin Township

Other supportive services are offered by the social worker and part-time physical education instructor. Every Monday afternoon the school goes to the JWCA pool and parents help with the children in the water.

Assessing that "this has been an exciting year for us," Proctor pointed out other improvements brought about in the extensive remodeling.

The social worker now has a tiny but efficient office; the speech room was moved away from a noisy spot near the gym; an air-conditioner purchased by the Northwest Sertoma Club was installed in one area of the building, but best of all, the large open area that most nursery schools have was divided into several smaller rooms with hallways for more effective use by the school.

THE RABBIT AND guinea pig in hallway cages, Proctor says, "come in for a lot of loving." Children who are emotionally disturbed and have not yet warmed up to another child or adult have first shown love for one of the pets. Some who have no pets at home have had the treat of taking one of them home over a weekend.

Todd enters the pretend room with others and heads for a spaceman's uniform. Now, with a football helmet on his head, he is a spaceman. A little girl is typing on a machine behind the child-size stove and sink. How Todd is a father striding around the room in ankle-length overcoat and a hat down to his eyes. Perhaps he is imitating a father he loves; perhaps he is imitating a father he does not have.

Playing house with the huge collection of household items with others, or playing alone, the pretend room is a fun thing for the children, but a laboratory for studying progress in child development for the trained observer.

The objects in the room and its arrangement are changed often to provide for new discoveries and encouragement for social interchange.

LOOKING THROUGH the one-way mirror into the gym at a class of five youngsters and five volunteers in a semicircle around the master teacher, one sees the kids putting large red gloves on their right hands (a struggle for some), while the teacher repeats, "This is my right hand." They wave their right hands and repeat after her, "This is my right hand!" Now they walk in a circle to the strains of "Loopy Lou," while the adults sing the lyrics. Learning is fun in this class in Adaptive Education. One little fellow suddenly drags his feet and the volunteer must strain to hold up herself and him until the game is over. One is struck with the hard work and effort put forth by the volunteers and teachers in the training of children who could not be "coped with" in the normal classroom.

Not only is the pre-school educating the "whole child," physically, intellectually, socially and emotionally—the prime aim of educators—but at the Childhood League Pre-School they are teaching the whole family as well.

Mothers meet with the staff every week. Their sharing of problems finds sympathetic ears. The discussion of solutions, benefit the teller and listener alike.

PARENTS' meetings are held once a month. They learn what to expect from their children and how to deal with them in the best manner.

Meetings with siblings (brothers and sisters) of the pre-school students are held once a month. Their age range from seven to 16.

Proctor meets with the younger of the siblings. He helps answer questions like, "What do you do when someone calls your brother a dummy?" He says his advice depends on whether the sibling is a boy or girl and what type of neighborhood the family lives in.

Parents pay what they can because there is no tuition schedule. The differences between fees and costs are taken care of by Childhood League.

MORE THAN 600 Active, Assisting Board and Life Members raise monies through various activities, such as the annual Merry-Go-Round at the Ohio Theatre, seeing almost every business in the community for one of the two forms of League advertising on trash bins and on the Merry-Go-Round programs. They also solicit private individual's donations and those of families.

In an especially rewarding program, they encourage the giving, by individuals or businesses, of scholarships for a particular child. The sponsors are given progress reports on the child three times a year.

Volunteers from Childhood League assist the staff, who are trained professionally for their assignments. The League's Board of Advisors is made up of leaders in the field of child development, psychiatry, mental retardation, medicine, psychology and special education.

Thus the Childhood League has assumed the leadership to provide a program of early intervention to help both the special child and his family. The school also functions as a resource center for area universities and for the professional community. Its influence is felt, too, through the availability of the staff for outside counseling.

Telling something about the great need for such a school, and the dedication of parents of special kids, is the fact that some of the families have moved to Columbus from other cities in Ohio and even from outside the state, so that their children might attend it.

THE FUN BARREL gets a good workout as the kids climb in and out of it in the pre-school gym. Mrs. Cynthia Jeffrey, a Childhood League volunteer looks on, wearing her volunteer apron with the League emblem on it.

Columbus Board Commends Energy Crisis Committee

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Special Staff Writer

Energy, a vital subject today, was among the topics discussed at the Columbus School Board's Nov. 20 regular meeting. Also on the agenda was a resolution of recognition and an statement of retirement. At the meeting the Board emphasized its goal of "avoiding the closing of the schools." A resolution was passed commending the Energy Crisis Committee for its prompt and thorough work which outlined the energy problem and the proper ways it should be dealt with.

The resolution did say though, "The lack of energy could require that schools close or modify their schedules."

The Board also praised School Superintendent Dr. John Ellis for his work in appointing the Energy Crisis committee to deal with the problem as quickly as he did.

The retirement announcement was that of James Wade, the assistant superintendent of teacher personnel. Wade's retirement which will become effective Feb. 1, 1974, will culminate a distinguished 33 year career as a teacher, principal and central office administrator in the Columbus Public Schools.

Wade will become president of Piney Woods Country Life School in Piney Woods, Miss. The Board expressed extreme sadness upon hearing of his departure and Ellis said, "Mr. Wade will leave a gaping void in the school and community life of Columbus."

In other action taken by the board a 50 acre tract of land owned by Dr. and Mrs. Robert D. Patton of Galena, Ohio will be leased to the Columbus Public Schools for the sum of $50 for one year. The land will be used as a Nature Study Center.

The Board voted to accept an amendment to Section 110.11 of the Administrative Guide to the Columbus Public Schools.

The amendment limits the speaking of public participants to five minutes. Persons wishing to address the board must indicate their intent to address the board and the subject of their address prior to the scheduled time of the meeting.

The Board also established tuition rates for non-resident students. Monthly tuition rates are: kindergarten students $32.29; grades one through six $64.67; grades seven through nine $68.29; and grades 10 through 12 $85.77.

Preliminary drawings were passed for the Shepard Elementary School. The drawings were assessed by the Shepard Advisory Committee on Educational Program and Facilities.

Rejected were the bids for the proposed addition and remodeling of Walnut Ridge High School. The bids were all 20 per cent over the allowed budget. Revision in drawings and specifications will be made as necessary and the project will be rebid.

Walnut Ridge's football coach Vince Cahill and representatives from his championship football team were on hand for the meeting to receive copies of a resolution passed by the Board commending the team's season accomplishments.

Other items passed by the board were routine personnel changes and appointments.

Poco Pleases Wanda

WEST COLUMBUS-WANDA Baumgartner and her female German shepherd Poco recently completed training at Pilot Dogs Inc., 625 W. Town. Students spend four weeks getting to know their dog and mastering a number of maneuvers which sighted persons give little attention to. Her sight loss was gradual so she had mobility training early. If Wanda had lost her sight suddenly her time at Pilot Dogs would have been longer. Mrs. Baumgartner lives with her husband and two daughters in West Virginia. The only specification for a guide dog Wanda gave was that it be good with children. Wanda was able to come to the school because of the $1,800 scholarship provided by the East Columbus Lions Club Auxiliary. Above she plays cards with a Braille-marked deck with other trainees. Poco waits patiently beside her. Wanda takes complete care of Poco from the first day (Photos by Kathy Devaney)

WANDA must learn to care for her Pilot Dog, even to bathing it as she is doing in this picture. She must groom feed, and retrain the dog, for house living, for it has been in the kennel for three or four weeks waiting for its new master. It was originally raised and trained by a 4-H family.

POCO must learn to locate and lead her master to a phone booth, and Mrs. Baumgartner must learn to use a public telephone without the benefit of Braille figures and letters. Here they are practicing in a phone booth set up in the living room Pilot Dog headquarters.

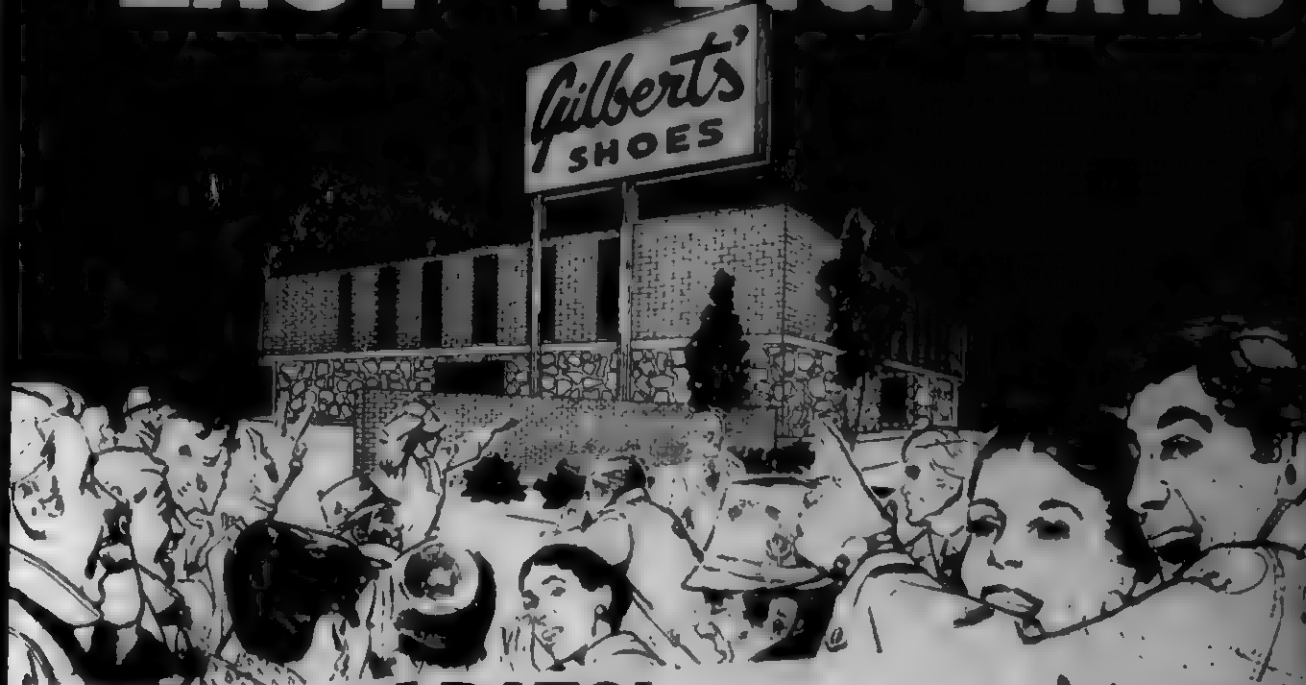

AFTER spending a few days just getting to know each other, Wanda and Poco go for short walks around the block, always to the right or always to the left. Then they try two blocks, and finally three blocks. Her trainer, Wayne Mathys is always near. They walk downtown and they ride buses. The final test is going downtown to a certain store and making a purchase. Here, Wanda and Poco walk past the Pilot Dog headquarters.

HERE WANDA and Poco practice going through a revolving door. This mock-up is in the basement of the Pilot Dogs offices. The officials study the pace of the blind person who is to be given a Pilot Dog, and place a dog with a similar pace.

Ceramics
The children's ceramics classes had their first fire glazing last week. In the Saturday morning class Jack Williamson made a large slab built pot with stamped design and Cheryl McCoy made a mushroom earring holder. In the Wednesday afternoon class Claude Millers made a slab piggy bank and Cheryl Lewis made a ceramic jug that was very good.

The Monday afternoon ceramics class has been working hard on a ceramics doll house and furniture.

Both classes of adults, which meet Wednesday and Friday nights at 7 p.m., have constructed huge slab planters and are now working on lanterns as well as perfecting their techniques on the potters wheel.

Drawing, Painting
The adult drawing and painting class has been working in mixed media. At the present they are working with pencil and charcoal sketches. Vickie Lamb and Loretta Novotny have produced some very nice drawings. Soon the class will be starting to paint with acrylics and are planning to make candles before Christmas.

They Call It Powder Puff ???

WEST COLUMBUS—The seniors (in dark jerseys) beat the underclassmen 20 to 0 in the Franklin Heights High School Powder Puff Football game Nov. 20. The winning senior team included P. Hogan, J. Brewer, D. Humphrey, M.

Giboney, C. Long, E. Hoebel, L. Brown, K. Hodegard, P. Rush, P. Rinehart, D. Brown and D. Ransburgh on offense and A. Robinson, K. Lewis, M. Sakay, K. Wynn, D. Masters, R. Charles and D. Della on defense only.

SOME OF THE girls tried the direct approach in pulling the flag from the back pocket of the ball carrier. When the flag is pulled from the pocket the player is out of the play as if tackled. Even though tackling isn't allowed, powder puff football is not a gentle sport.

Neat Neil

Last week I stepped into the cocktail lounge at Howard Johnson's East to catch a newswoman in show business. Not only is Neel Donnelly new in the business, but he is also a Reynoldsburg policeman. Since this was his second night on a professional stage, and playing a nice room like the lounge at Howard Johnson's, I had several thoughts in mind.

First, that this guy just couldn't be any good. No experience, and all of that. Secondly, I reasoned that he probably arrested one of the officials of Howard Johnson's and this was nothing more than a bribe to get off the hook. Thirdly, I have yet to see a real strong single act that consists of a guy playing guitar and singing.

Three strikes and I am out. I was wrong on all three counts.

Neel Donnelly is one of the best single acts I have ever seen. He is a lively performer with a dynamic voice. Since I was so sure that this was going to be a bad act, I only scheduled myself to catch one forty minute set. I stayed for two hours.

This handsome young man sings with a gush of spit and fire. Neil has excellent control of his voice, and can make it do just about anything he wants. And, Neil demands plenty from his voice. He has a literally fantastic singing voice. Sounding a little like Elvis at times, without even trying, Neil possesses a wide range.

Needless to say, Neil is a strong stylist. He attacks as if he were conducting his own six day war on stage.

Accompanying himself on guitar, Neil shows that he is an expert in this field, too. Playing a host of chords, along with a combination of a heavy melody line and strong rhythms, Neil provides plenty of excitement.

In fact, that is the secret to Neil's success. He gives you exciting vocals as well as exciting guitar music. You'll not grow tired of listening to him perform.

While this was only his second night as a professional entertainer, I'm sure the best agent in the country would never have guessed it. Neil knows how to work an audience, even to the point of putting down a heckler with class.

While he has been on the police force four years, this fellow has what it takes to turn his badge in for a star. With a little luck I feel this will be true.

Before this happens, stop into the lounge at Howard Johnson's East and give a listen to Neil Donnelly. I was there on a week night, and the place was packed, which goes to show you I am not the only one who thinks he is something special. You will, also.

Lincoln Is Swinging

Pat and Diann is the current attraction at the swinging Lincoln Lodge. Pat is a talented young fellow who plays the various keyboard instruments. Diann is the cute little bug in a rug that sings and plays a rather large cocktail drum set. Together, they team up with a host of delightful entertainment.

Pat makes with strong piano stylings. While he may not be the best that has ever come down the pike, his style and technique is more than average. You name it and he can play it. Filling in on piano, Pat also plays a portable electric organ. At times, playing both at the same time, it creates a full musical sound.

Diann not only fronts the duo, I say that not just because she stands in front of Pat, but Diann is the charmer in the duo. Not only does she possess personality plus, she also owns a darn good voice.

The total quality in clear with lots of good sounds. While she could develop a little more stylings to her presentations, Diann still is able to sell a song. The weakest part of the entire act is her drumming. While it is certainly not distracting, the act could be more lively and exciting if Diann could work the sticks and brushes better. As it is, Pat has to provide the basic rhythms with the organ.

All in all, I promise you an enjoyable evening with this pair. Their musical library runs the gamut of the music industry. However, it is safe to say that most of their selections appeal more to an older group, which is good because that is the make up of the audiences at Lincoln Lodge.

Stop out to one of the most popular motels Around Town this week, and you'll have plenty of pretty music.

SKIPPING AROUND TOWN

Before going on vacation last week, I dropped into the Charleston Club. Found out, that owner Hal Case now has a luncheon buffet consisting of roast beef, two hot items, a large salad bar and a fresh hot bread. It's all you can eat for only $1.79. While there I was treated to some of Hal's fine organ stylings. As many of you know, Hal used to be a big band performer, having worked with Louis Prima and others. Nobody, but nobody plays electric organ like Hal Case. To bad he doesn't treat his customers to a performance more often. Also, joining in with Hal was music store owner Larry Fresch. Wait until you hear

Wins X-Country Honors

The Cedarville College Yellow Jackets have just finished a fine season in cross country.

Contributing to the cause for Cedarville was Ron Thomas (Westland High) whose best time of the season was 27:40 in the Marion (Indiana) Invitational meet. Ron will now concentrate on the mile for indoor and spring track.

Westerville vs Westland

...THERE'S NO DOUBT about this rebound. It went to Westerville's Richard Lakeman even though two Westland Cougars battled him for it. That's Greg Stormont at left (30). The Cougars won their OCC opener.

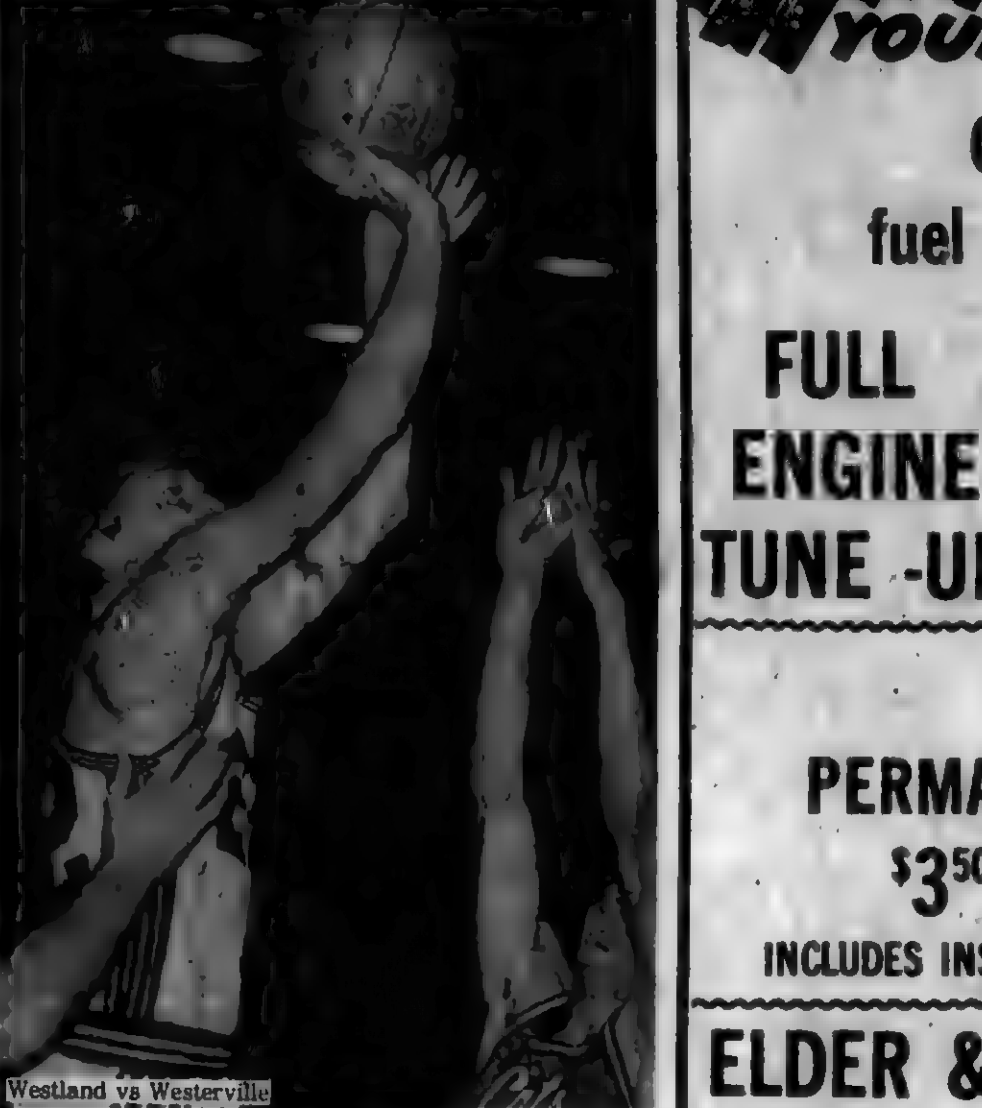

Cage Season Gets League Tests

Friday night's arena roundball action has Mt. Vernon at Worthington, Westland at Reynoldsburg, a Delaware at Whitehall, and Gahanna at Westerville in the Ohio Capital Conference.

Dublin visits Franklin Heights in a Metro League tilt, while Waterson travels to Northland and Hartley to Walnut Ridge in non-leaguers. Bexley and St. Charles renew a rivalry in another non-league scrap.

Saturday's action pits East and Withrow tangling in Cincinnati and Eastmoor and Chillicothe tussling in Chillicothe. Arlington will bus to Worthington in another rivalry contest.

Last week's OCC action found Whitehall downing Reynoldsburg, Westland nipping Westerville, Mt. Vernon zipping by Mt. Vernon and Worthington getting past Delaware.

Westland vs Westerville

HERE'S another two-pointer going up and away for Westland's Jim Cathbert against the Westerville Cats in an OCC opener won by the Cougars. That's the Cats Ed Cole attempting to block the shot. (Westland-Westerville photos by Craig Weaver.)

Deer Creek Reservoir Has Been Producing Fine Catches of Smallmouth Bass

Deer Creek Reservoir has been producing fine catches of Smallmouth Bass. An increase in stream flow due to recent rains is one of the major factors responsible for the increased angler success. Live nightcrawlers and crayfish, along with spinners and shallow diving plugs have been producing the best results. The stretch of Deer Creek from Mt. Sterling south to the reservoir proper has been the most productive.

Both the Big and Little Darby Creeks are also producing fine catches of Smallmouth and Rock Bass. Permission to fish in both the Big and Little Darby Creek can be obtained from adjacent landowners with a polite request.

Statewide Bag Check Survey

A bag check survey by the Ohio Natural Resources Department's Division of Wildlife indicates six out of ten hunters were successful on opening day of the Ohio upland game season.

Cards Will Bear 'Team' Label

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Spectator Sports Writer

LAUREL them a TEAM MAN. Them, is Otterbein's frisky 1973-74 cage squad and that TEAM MAN is personable Card roundball coach Dick Reynolds.

FOR AN example of just how important the entire team is to Coach Reynolds, flash back to last year's tilt with Baldwin Wallace. The Cards needed this win to grab a share of the Ohio Conference championship and just that they did using 11 of its 12 men in the process and having 10 men represented in the scoring column.

"The crux of our program is togetherness and teamwork," explains Reynolds. "You must do well as a team, not just one or two individuals, and this is what we strive for. Nor just a togetherness on the court, but also off the court."

AND YOU might just credit that teamwork and togetherness as a supreme ingredient that helped Otterbein win 11 of its games by four points or less during last year's 19-4 co-championship season.

The Otters lose Steve Traylor, Otterbein's all-everything for four years, but have four juniors who started as sophs a year ago back in Bob Decker, Mike Hays, Glenn Horner and Watterson grad Jim Reed.

"Jim (Reed) is small for a center (6-4) but he takes up a lot of room there and he really makes up for his size with his physicalness under the boards," evaluates Coach Reynolds.

AND THE physicalness and quickness which the Otters possess may be some great determining factor for the Cards' cage hopes. It should be a much harder road for youthful Reynolds and his crew this year as Traylor and his young playmates were not looked to as contenders last year.

"These kids know some people will be gunning for us and they are working hard to improve," Reynolds modestly cued.

And of course, the Otterbein strength which can't be overlooked is that tenacious hustle and desire which the Otterbein kids bank on.

"WE'VE GOT a better attitude and more hustle now than ever and the desire of these kids...well...just great," explains Reynolds. It will be a smaller group than most that they'll face, 5-4 across the front line, but, "We'll just have to harass and pressure on defense to make up for our lack of size," contends Reynolds.

Complimenting Reynolds' four returning starters on the hardwood will be a couple of dandy 6-4 forwards, Jim Martin a transfer, and Bob Buchan a Weststone product. Adding depth to the guard spot will be sophomores Terry Morrison and Dave Bromley. Scott Reall is also tabbed as a first line sub.

A pair of area hopefuls that Reynolds said were showing progress are Dan Wilmoth from Worthington and Eastmoor graduate Kim McCaskey. Both are being worked at guard, switching from their high school forward slots.

Reynolds labeled the OC as "unbelievably well balanced," as he named eight teams whom he feels "Can't be counted out." The boss man seemed enthused about the tough schedule the Otters face, small college power Akron in its initial December 1, encounter. And when you talk Otterbein don't forget that January 17, teaparty at the Fairgrounds Coliseum with Capital.

OH, DOESN'T that just send something down your spine?

Card Cagers Continue Winning, Winning

By Bruce Reynolds

WORTHINGTON had good luck with schools up north last week as they knocked off Buckeye Valley 41-36 and Delaware 53-46 to raise their record to 3-0. The JV's also won their double-header, bursting loose against the Pacers in a 57-point offensive spree.

The Cards' two big juniors, Mark Kline and Don Brough, were the spark for the victories. Kline was the mainstay on Wednesday against Buckeye Valley while Brough played a spectacular game against the defending Ohio Capital Conference champs.

At Buckeye Valley, the Cards started out like a house afire, moving to a 9-0 lead after just three minutes of play. But the host Barons, with six free throws, narrowed the gap to 13-8 at the end of the period. Worthington forward Doug Burkhardt and guard Ken Jones picked up two fouls in the first quarter.

IN THE middle of the second period, as Worthington began to have turn-over problems, Buckeye Valley gained the lead at 18-17. The Barons scored 10 points on their first six possessions of the quarter. The lead was exchanged several times before halftime, which brought a 23-23 deadlock. The third quarter remained close with Buckeye Valley taking a 31-29 advantage into the final eight minutes.

The Cards showed a definite height advantage throughout the evening, and this was a big factor in the final period. Buckeye Valley's fine outside shooting was cut off by the wide-ranging Cardinal zone.

This left gaps underneath the boards, but the Barons had no one big or good enough to balance their offense. The Cards won the overall rebounding battle 24-11.

Buckeye Valley had been capitalizing on Cardinal turnovers during the first three quarters, but the situation reversed in the last segment. The team that had lived by the turnover died by the turnover as the Barons had a streak of four errors in a row while the Cards played near-perfect ball.

THIS ALL resulted in a 13-6 Worthington fourth quarter advantage and a 41-36 final score. Kline was the star of the evening with 16 points, including eight for eight from the free throw line, and eight rebounds. Jones supported the totals with nine points. Murray Smith threw in 15 from long range for the Cards.

Brough and his mates did the damage in the opening quarter again on Friday, jumping to a 13-5 first period lead. By halftime it was 32-11. In the second half, however, Delaware fought back to make the score respectable. The Cards scored only seven points in the final period while their hosts picked up 15.

Brough, with 20 points and 13 rebounds, had his best game as a Cardinal. Burkhardt added six points while pulling down nine off the boards. The Cards nearly doubled the Pacers rebound total, 33-17. Mike Kinnaird had 14 points for Delaware.

THE RESERVES performed in opposite situations last week. At Buckeye Valley they could hardly make a shot, but against Delaware they hit 53 percent from the floor.

Wednesday, with the Cards shooting only 17 percent in the first half, they couldn't take advantage of the many Buckeye Valley turnovers. The Barons led 8-3 after one quarter, but the game was tied 10-10 at halftime.

Worthington, with several substitutes in the lineup, took a 19-16 lead in the third period, which they expanded in the final six minutes. The team had a shooting percentage of 77 percent in the improved second half.

Pivotman Mike Carr again led the Cardinal scoring with 11 points. Coming off an injury which kept him out of the Whetstone game, newcomer Murray Armstrong added seven. He was three for 17 from the field, however, which helped lower the shooting percentage. Homer Clark led all scorers with 12 points in a losing effort.

The offense had no problems on Friday, scoring almost as many points as their combined two-game total. The 57-44 final was basically achieved in the third period as the Cards outscored the Pacers 16-6. Delaware's high turnover rate was a factor in their loss.

Worthington's win came without Tim Arnold, who had started at guard in the first two contests. He never saw any action. Armstrong came back with 23 points this time, and Carr added 13. Mike Bull came off the bench to add 12 points. Jay Coffman was the Pacer leader, scoring 16.

This Friday the Cards host Mt. Vernon as they attempt to hold their share of the OCC lead. Saturday night Worthington will attempt to revenge two losses to Arlington last year, in another home game.

Frost and ice many times form sooner and linger longer on bridges and overpasses. Pete O'Grady, Highway Safety Director, suggests that even if the rest of the road is dry, be cautious when approaching bridges and overpasses in winter.

They're Turkey Winners

FOUR Worthington residents received certificates of complimentary Thanksgiving turkeys after their names were selected in a "Thank You Worthington" drawing sponsored by the Worthington Square Merchants Association. Shows from left are Mrs. Marvin W. Homan, 4822 Hawthorne St.; Mrs. Donald B. Lewis, 6780 Abbot Pl.; Cordy M. Russell, Worthington Square Merchants Association vice president; Mrs. J.W. Spratt, 243 Sandridge Circle E.; and Mrs. Robert M. Van Fleet, 6648 Maybush St. Five 15 lb. turkeys and 25 pumpkin pies were presented in the contest held to celebrate the first anniversary of Worthington Square Shopping Center, High St. and W. Wilson Bridge Rd.

Golden Age News And Notes

SHE'S THE first presiding officer we ever saw who greeted her luncheon guests, introduced the speakers' table, and served turkey gravy at the same time.

A large checked no-nonsense apron tied firmly about her waist, a ladle poised over a huge pot of turkey gravy by her side, Mrs. Ethel Furlough, supervisor of the Foster Grandparent Program for the Columbus State Institute, stood welcoming her delighted Foster Grandparents to a festive pre-Holiday Luncheon at the Institute.

THE UNUSUAL informality made everyone happy, the gravy was delicious, and very Foster Grandparent got an individual "hello" from her "boss" as she passed up her plate.

"She's the best boss you could ever have," said one of the Foster Grandparents. "She's never too busy to stop and talk and if you have problems, she helps you work them out. She believes in what we are doing and in us. I think she's delighted with us."

FOSTER Grandparents come in all shapes, sizes, colors and sexes but one and all they are cheerful, warm, outgoing Senior Citizens. There are 77 of them for the Columbus State Institute and Mrs. Furlough wishes there were more. She could use them. Especially she needs Grandfathers of which she is in short supply right now.

There are only four requirements for becoming a Foster Grandparent: you must be at least sixty years of age, you must be in reasonably good health, you must have a limited (not more than $2000 for singles, $2800 for couples), and you must have an unlimited love for children.

Foster Grandparents go through about 40 hours of training. They learn about mental retardation and work with an experienced Foster Grandparent before they are assigned their own children.

Foster Grandparents work 20 hours a week 2 hours a day with each of their two assigned children. They are paid $2 an hour.

THERE IS no thought that Foster Grandparents will replace the normal staff of this facility for retarded children. They are however in contact with the staff and made aware of any particular problems concerning their own foster children. Thus they are able to reinforce the staff in learning situations. Mostly, though, when they go to pick up their "grand children" in the unit, they will do such things as take the children on walks, teach them how to throw a ball, or talk about the nature they see together.

If it is bad weather, they can go to the recreation area and take part together in the on-going handicraft programs. Primarily, it's just becoming fast friends.

It's a one to one program and it's an adventure in love. "When I match the children and parents up, I go by chemistry-sort of who fits who," declared Mrs. Furlough.

"PEOPLE need people," she continued. "Children benefit from a meaningful relationship with mature adult. Persons near the end of their normal working life must have a constructive base for living out their years."

The Foster Grandparent Program evolved from this dual purpose base: The experience and wisdom of older adults can be a key ingredient in the development of a child. Every child needs to be cuddled and spoiled a little. The staff doesn't have time, so the Foster Grandparent becomes the special friend.

IT'S HARD to say who benefits the most: the child, his nose pressed against the window watching for his "grandmother to come and take him out or just see him or just have him, as the senior citizen hurrying to keep his meeting date and looking forward to seeing the happiness his arrival brings."

"If you are sick and can't come or have to go away a while," said one cheerful looking "grandmother" in her rosy dress, "they never forget you. As soon as you come again, they know right away who you are and show their delight. What do we do together? Oh well, there are hundreds of things depending on what your grandchild is able to do.

One of my children told me 'Grandmas are the only adults who have time'.

"THIS program is federally and state funded," said Mrs. Furlough. It's for the benefit of the children and for the Senior Citizens too. There's a growing number of our older citizens who would like to reach out for this rewarding experience.

I feel so good about all my "Grandparents" I wish I had a big Palace like the Buckingham Palace they have been showing on TV. I'd take all my Foster Grandparents to live with me and then I could enjoy them all the time."

Schedules Films

The era of the 20's and 30's provides both an entertaining and educational subject for the free weekend movies presented at the Ohio Historical Center for the month of December.

The schedule: December 1-3 - "The Jazz Age" depicts the gaudy life of the Twenties and is narrated by the late Fred Allen.

December 8-9 - "Life in the Thirties"

December 15-16 - "Herbert Hoover"

The Ohio Historical Society presents these films which are shown each Saturday and Sunday on the above dates at 2 and 3 p.m. in the Center's auditorium. Admission is free.

Fireplace Must Be Closely Watched

In anticipation of fuel shortages this winter, fireplaces are often thought of as an emergency means for heating and cooking.

RESIDENTS should be aware of the hazards that may be present in burning wood, coal, or other high temperature fuels in fireplaces designed only for gas appliances. Many homes built prior to World War II had these gas fireplaces installed in them.

Officials of the Columbus Division of Fire and Building Regulation Department have stated that this is a very dangerous practice which could possibly cost you your life or cause major damage to your home.

Gas fireplaces are generally more shallow and mirror in design and are sometimes lined with decorative ceramic tile.

Woodburning fireplaces would generally have an ash dump in the floor and a cast iron damper inside the top of the opening.

Fire officials caution that fire prevention should always be kept in mind when using any type of fireplace.

At The Parks This Week

Blackbird Woods: the film "Zoo of the World" will be shown at 2 p.m. Sunday, December 2 in Beech-Maple Lodge. This movie illustrates how modern zoos are using ecology as their basic concept in displaying animals.

A general nature walk starts from the lodge at 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 8.

Blondon Woods: An owl walk begins from the Visitor Center at 8 p.m. Saturday, December 8. Recordings are used to attract owls for easy viewing or to make them answer. Results are not guaranteed but chances of seeing or hearing an owl are good.

The Walden Wildlife Refuge continues open a weekend from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and weekdays from 3 to 5 p.m. for the observation of wild migrating waterfowl.

The Wiener Defends Itself (Or You Can't Keep A Good Dog Down)

AMERICA'S favorite food for a hundred years recently has come under much criticism.

Can it be it's taken Americans 100 years to discover what's in the hot dog?

It's time the hot dog had a chance to defend itself - purely on an objective basis, of course.

It's also time the public knew the real truth about the hot dog before they begin to cross it off their grocery lists.

THE MAIN attacks against hot dogs have been (1) they don't contain enough meat, (2) they contain the wrong kinds of meat, (3) they have little nutritional value, and (4) they're loaded with fat, sugar and preservatives.

Taking one complaint at a time, let's examine the real hot dog.

Wieners contain 65 percent meat, including protein, natural fat and moisture (which is nothing more than a fancy word for "water").

LET'S realize that natural fat is an excellent source of energy and vitamins A, D, E, and K. It is an essential part of any diet and provides the juiciness and flavor in meat.

U.S. government-inspected hot dogs may contain no more than 30 percent fat, and that is less than what is naturally present in peanut butter, most cuts of meat and many cheeses.

Okay, no hot dogs are 65 percent meat; what's in the other 35 percent? Five percent is seasonings and curing ingredients.

The remaining 30 percent is water, which serves the same purpose as moisture in meat loaf.

It facilitates mixing and assures uniform distribution of other ingredients.

SINCE ONE can't logically object to that remaining 35 percent, let's get back to the 65 percent of meat. Just what is the "everything" that some packers put into hot dogs?

"Everything" usually means the tongue, heart, liver and other animal parts generally known as variety meats. The use of variety meats in hot dogs has caused spirited debate.

On one side are some people who insist variety meats should be banned from hot dogs. Their arguments appear to be based on emotional reaction toward variety meats.

HOWEVER, the American Meat Institute has pointed out that variety meats are nutritionally rich. They are excellent sources of essential, complete proteins as well as vitamins and minerals.

Millions around the world consider "variety meats" gourmet delicacies. And in this era of high prices and shortages, many consumer advocates consider the use of variety meats an essential contribution to national nutrition.

THE United States Department of Agriculture permits variety meats as long as they are listed on the label along with the generic name of the product, e.g., "Frankfurters with Variety Meats."

Consumers have the choice of selecting wieners that contain solely raw skeletal muscle meat, or wieners made with variety meats. Labels clearly spell out the difference.

Just what do hot dogs have to offer nutritionally?

A WIENER averages 12 percent protein. To put it another way, one hot dog provides as much protein as one large egg, plus more thiamin, pectin and vitamin C.

Two hot dogs on buns afford a twelve-year-old with 42 percent of his daily protein allowance, based on recommended daily allowances established by the National Academy of Sciences. (A peanut butter and jelly sandwich would give him 37 percent.)

WHILE hot dogs have never claimed to be six-inch vitamin pills, they are a tasty and convenient source of essential proteins, B vitamins and minerals.

And hot dogs are not "loaded" with preservatives and sugar. Sodium nitrate, which has caused some controversy, is permitted by the USDA only 300 parts per million. This is strictly enforced.

SODIUM nitrate is also endorsed by the Food and Drug Administration because of its long history of safety. It simply gives the hot dog its appealing color and, more importantly, inhibits the growth of bacteria.

(And a little lesson on bacteria - bacteria grows naturally on any food.)

ALL ingredients are listed on the hot dog package in descending order of the amount used. No ingredient can be included without prior approval from the USDA.

The USDA stamp assures the consumer that the product has been examined by federal inspectors, is properly processed and packaged and truthfully labeled.

80 IT'S all right there on the label - everything the consumer needs to know. It's his choice which "hot dogs" to buy. And he's sure buying. Americans consume over 18 billion hot dogs annually, which roughly works out to 80 per person.

Statistics like these "bol" down to the fact the hot dog is still "red hot". It continues to be as welcome in American homes as mom's apple pie.

Darby Valley Has Garden Club Tour

Darby Valley Garden Club members will hold their 1973 "Tour of Homes" Sunday, December 2, from 3 until 9 p.m.

Five homes are being decorated by members for the pleasure and browsing of the public.

Included in this year's tour are the Werner L. Sloman residence, Zuber Road; the home of Jennie and Ralph Huffman in the Village of Harrisburg; the new country home of J. Berk and Rosemary Roach on Biggert Road; the country farm house of the Allen Grossmans; and the Timberlake home of Isabelle and Bill Lucas on Meadow Lark Lane.

Each features a different holiday theme expressing the artistic and individual talents of Darby Valley Members.

Those taking the tour will also be welcomed to Fellowship Hall of the Harrisburg United Methodist Church for refreshments.

Tickets at $2 each and tour maps will be available at the Church or advance tickets may be purchased from any member.

Mrs. Allen Grossman is serving as general chairman of the tour assisted by all club members.

Vision Center Industry Gives New Eyes To Many

"I'M SURE there are blind people who would never work if it weren't for Vision Center Industries," remarked Hattie Parrish, chairman of a newly formed employees committee at the sheltered workshop, 2470 Cleveland Ave.

The workshop is the industrial branch of the Vision Center at 1303 N. High St., a private, non-profit rehabilitation facility for visually handicapped adults.

Vocational evaluation, job training and employment opportunities are provided to blind persons at the workshop which engages in light manufacturing and assembly work for private industry. An aggressive contract procurement program enables Vision Center Industries to employ between 75 and 100 persons per year.

VISION CENTER Industries helps persons who are unable to work in outside industry, because of their blindness, to earn a decent living," explained Mrs. Parrish, who has been employed by the workshop since 1965. The workshop also maintains an active placement service which placed nine persons from the workshop into occupations in competitive industry within the last year.

In an effort to develop more industrial employment opportunities for blind persons, Vision Center Industries applied for and achieved certification status in National Industries for the Blind (NIB), a non-profit corporation which allocates purchase orders from the federal government to qualified workshops for the blind.

THE COMMITTEE's chief responsibility, Mrs. Parrish said, will be to maintain effective communications between employees and supervisory staff.

GROVE CITY—Sid Noblitt, baby Scott Noize and Karla Chew are fascinated by the talking "Learning Tree" and its puppet friends. Dopey Dan and Danger Man teach by example the dangers of smoking, playing with matches, stealing, glue sniffing and drugs. Dopey Dan is the one who ends up in jail or the hospital when he lets Danger Man talk him into doing things. The program sponsored by the Grove City Jaycee Wives has been endorsed for use in elementary through fifth grade by the Southwest Community Mental Health Center, Jackson Township Fire Department and the Grove City Police Department. "Learning Tree" Warns Of Dangers

By KATHY DEVANEY
Grove City—Warning very young children about the dangers of drugs and fire has been a problem in the past because materials are written for high school and junior high school ages, according to Linda Chew of the Grove City Jaycee Wives.

Part of the problem has been solved by "The Learning Tree", a giant talking tree with puppets in its trunk. Danger Man and Dopey Dan have been visiting schools in the South-Western City School District since mid-October warning elementary students about the dangers of playing with matches, glue sniffing, stealing and smoking.

"We don't preach to the kids. Danger Man talks Dopey Dan into trying things which lead him into the hospital or jail," Mrs. Chew said. The children are told that they should take medicine from parents or a doctor not from friends. Dopey Dan ends up in the hospital because of drugs and fire. He lands in jail for taking a ball that was "just laying in someone's yard," she said.

The "Learning Tree" was developed by a group of Michigan Jaycees. They in turn allow other groups to use their copyrighted tape recording and tree. The "Learning Tree" takes December off but will be available to teachers, scouting organizations and libraries in the South Western District in January.

Three people a month are in charge of the tree; two go to the school with the tree and one babysits, Mrs. Chew said.

The Jaycee Wives have been presenting puppet shows for four years as a money-making project, but have adopted the "Learning Tree" as a community service project, not charging schools, scouts or libraries for the informative show.

The "Learning Tree" has been endorsed by the Southwest Community Mental Health Center, the Grove City Police Department and the Jackson Township Fire Department.

The project has been approved for use in the District.

Anyone interested in scheduling a visit from the "Learning Tree" may call Mrs. Chew at 875-4617 or Mrs. Michael Noize at 875-8308. Mrs. Chew, Mrs. Noize and Mrs. Walter Adams are chairmen of the project.

The show lasts 15 minutes and the women hope it will be used in conjunction with study projects dealing with the same problems.

Meeting Change

New Rome—The regular meeting of the Prairie Township Trustees will be the second Thursday instead of the second Wednesday in December.

The trustees will meet Thursday, Dec. 13, at 7:30 p.m., at the fire house at 6725 Alkire Rd.

Results of the 1973 Student Opinion Survey and a comprehensive report of the pilot industrial arts curriculum project presented to the Columbus School Board at its Nov. 27 Committee of the Whole meeting.

It was disclosed that 74 per cent of the total 1973 high school enrollment took part in responding to the opinion poll. The survey contained 100 separate questions and included a number of queries in several broad areas such as curriculum, basic skills, vocational programs, human relations, drug education and general educational goals.

Ray Gugel, the professional assistant of evaluation, research and planning for the Columbus Schools, presented an outline of the survey to the board pointing out that "students want more help in planning their careers." Another area that Gugel said the students indicated that they wanted more help in was that of speech communications.

Sixty-seven per cent of the students recommended that greater emphasis on help in planning a career be made. Fifty-six per cent, though, said they had received information about career opportunities.

Thirty-eight per cent expressed dissatisfaction with their speaking skill before groups. This area was the one in which students seemed most dissatisfied.

Another area which proved interesting to the board was that of the total educational experience of each student. Fifty-five per cent of the students believe their schooling has done a good job in teaching them to use the knowledge they have, in solving problems and making decisions.

Fifty-three per cent of the students surveyed felt the schools are doing a good job in helping them think for themselves in this changing society. Surprising, perhaps, only eight per cent of the students rate their relationship with teachers as unfavorable while 67 per cent voted it as good or very good.

Concerning the subject of drugs, 70 per cent indicated that drug education should be taught primarily in the school; twenty-one per cent said drug education should be taught primarily in the home.

The report also disclosed that 33 per cent of the Columbus Public School students had tried marijuana, comparing almost identically to the 24 per cent national statistic. Forty-two per cent favor legalization of marijuana, again close to the national level where 41 per cent favor legalization.

The point that contrasted with the national level most was that of the availability of drugs at the school, where 42 per cent said drugs were available. The national level shows 64 per cent of the students saying that drugs are available to them.

The Board seemed pleased with the results of the survey and School Superintendent Dr. John Ellis said, "The results of the 1973 Student Opinion Survey portray a generally positive picture of the present generation of secondary-level students attending the Columbus Schools. The survey reports a student vote of confidence in the School System and points the way to areas requiring further improvement."

It was then reported to the Board that the new industrial arts program involves 10 secondary schools. Among the 10 are Eastmoor, Sherwood, Yorktown and Wedgwood Junior High.

The program presents broad concepts and principles. These principles are occupationally oriented and are designed to give the student a "taste" of an occupation.

Actual construction of such things as mini-houses to mini-cars are included in this program labeled in two parts as "The World of Construction" and "The World of Manufacturing."

Approximately 2,200 pupils are now being served by this program. Erwin Wagenknecht, Yorktown industrial arts teacher, was quite instrumental in developing this program, not only in Columbus, but throughout the United States.

A slide review narrated by Wagenknecht was included in the report. His presentation was concluded with a model car race between two junior high students. The model cars had been constructed by the students.

The Board seemed extremely pleased with the progress of the program and asked about possible expansion of the program.

WAY TO RUIN TIRES

Six driving practices most responsible for destroying tires have been listed by the American Automobile Association. They are: Driving at excessive speeds, turning quickly on curves and around corners, driving over curbs, chuck holes and other obstructions, "jack rabbit" starts and "panic" stops, driving on roughly-surfaced "washboard" roads and riding the edge of the pavement.

Trio Available

An Otterbein College faculty woodwind trio has been organized to provide chamber music in concert and make guest appearances in Ohio and neighboring regions.

The group is interested in performing for organizations and schools and will provide a special clinic for interested students if desired.

Offering a program of light music with standard pieces, the trio also provides the possibility of a quartet by Milhaud with the addition of Otterbein chairman of the department of music Dr. Herman Lavers at piano. The woodwind trio consists of Phyllis Hlaesten, flute, and Jim Prodan, oboe, both members of the Columbus Symphony, and Dr. Lyle T. Barkhimer, clarinetist.

The trio or quartet may be scheduled during the month of December by interested organizations or schools, or other appropriate groups by calling Dr. Barkhimer at the Otterbein College department of music, 891-3113.

Sponsor Christmas Auction

WEST COLUMBUS-The fourth annual "Billbilly Holiday" will be Saturday, Dec. 8. The event is sponsored by the pairs and spares Sunday school class of Chicago Avenue Christian Church, 33 Chicago Ave. The dessert smorgasbord starts at 6:30 p.m. A short program will be followed by a Christmas auction of handmade items. Admission is 25 cents. Shows here with some items which will be offered at the auction are (left to right) Bill Parber, Edna Ward, Ken Crooks and Tom Hankle.

Divided We Drive

A line is a line, unless it is yellow, white, solid or broken, then it is more than just a line. Nearly 1,900 miles of guide lines are painted on Columbus City streets each year.

Yellow lines indicate the other lane is for oncoming traffic; white means traffic in the next lane is going the same direction that the driver is. This is true regardless of whether the line is solid or broken.

The broken line is a permissive line. Changing lanes is permitted when the line is broken and other safety factors make the change possible.

The solid line is restrictive, no crossing permitted; safety factors make the crossing of the line dangerous. The width of the line indicates the degree of danger. Double solid lines indicate the maximum restriction.

The newest lane marking is the double white line. This indicates maximum restriction (no crossing) even though traffic flow is in the same direction.

An example of this is at a "T" intersection where one street dead ends into another. Traffic in the curb lane on the through street is continuous. Lanes will be divided by a double white line. Traffic turning left from the dead end street should turn into the center or closest lane to them. (Another traffic code also covers this regulation.)

The nearly 1,900 miles of lane marking is wasted unless the motorist knows and understands their use. Be sure and know why "Divided We Drive" and drive safely.

The Ohio Department of Highway Safety warns when driving on ice, be alert for possible rear end collisions. In stopping, think ahead... and watch out behind. Drive defensively.

Westgate Roundup

This elementary dance classes have already begun to experience the sounds of Christmas. They are learning how all of their individual skills may be applied and utilized to form a single unit. These dancers are also learning that dance performance involves not only accomplishing their individual skills, but that it involves and demands a total group effort.

The intermediate skilled first, second and third graders have been dancing to the tune of "10,000 Santa Clauses" (tap dance), while the beginners are preparing a dance involving ballet skills to "Santa Claus is Coming To Town."

To "Up On The House Top" one can hear the tapping feet of the beginner fourth, fifth and sixth graders. The intermediate group has been "jazzing it up" while dancing to "Jingle Bell Rock."

When someone comes to Westgate there is a good chance that they may observe quite a Christmas time menagerie. There is a miniature Mrs. Santa Claus working on her Christmas outfit, elves busily scurrying down the hallways and 10 reindeer prancing around in the Christmas spirit.

They are only the excited dancers who are looking forward to presenting their dances for a portion of a Christmas program to be held at Westgate Wednesday, Dec. 19. Come share in the Christmas excitement!

The Dec. 19 program will also include a style show, tumbling demonstration, a play and Christmas singing. A pot-luck dinner will be held at 8 p.m. and the program at 7 p.m.

Westgate Recreation Center has had several tournaments in different sports and activities.

The winners of these tournaments who have or are participating in City Wide Tournaments include Jene Henson, junior carrom champion; Kim Beard, junior carrom champion; Brad Bauer and Joe Donley, intermediate foul shooting champion; Deonita Jennings, junior foul shooting champion.

The next tournament to be held for Westgate members will be the billiard tournament that will start Wednesday, Dec. 5, at 7 p.m. for boys and girls 13 to 15 and 16 to 18 years old.

Christmas Seal Campaign Helps You Live And Breathe

AS YOU LIVE and breathe is the national Christmas Seal slogan for the 1973 Christmas Seal Campaign. It's a most important one to remember.

So often we take breathing for granted never realizing the miracle of life and breath. As you read this, take some time out of the pre-Christmas rush to think about the importance of each breath you take.

SECONDS AGO you inhaled a pint of air without even thinking about it. Just now you exhaled, and before a full minute races by you will breathe in and out about ten or 15 times...for as long as you live.

For you, breathing may be effortless, but for thousands of Americans, breathing easily is a luxury. For those who have emphysema and other lung diseases each breath is a struggle for breath and for life itself.

Emphysema is the second largest cause of social disability claims in this country. It is one of the fastest growing causes of death in the U.S.

EMPHYSEMA is only one of the many breath-robbing diseases that is being fought with Christmas Seal dollars. Much of the money collected locally, in fact 81 percent stays in local programs which serve the central Ohio area.

The Central Ohio Lung Association has many programs which serve the community. The following are just some of them: the emphysema screening program, professional education programs, anti-smoking educational programs for adults and children, a home care program for patients with respiratory diseases, films, leaflets and other educational materials, stop-smoking clinics, air pollution activities and fellowships and research monies for doctors in pulmonary medicine.

BY GIVING to Christmas Seals, you are giving a gift that works toward eradicating all lung diseases 365 days a year. Use Christmas Seals on all your holiday mail and help lick emphysema, TB, air pollution and other lung diseases.

United Community Council Helps Fill All Stockings

"I am the Christmas Spirit! I enter the home of poverty, causing palefaced children to open their eyes wide, in pensive wonder...In a thousand ways I cause the weary world to look up into the face of God, and for a little moment forget the things that are small and wretched."

FOR MANY, the Christmas Spirit this year may take the form of one of our city's many dedicated family-service organizations which are striving to bring the joy of Christmas into the homes of the less fortunate by seeing that each child's Christmas stocking is filled, that there is food for the table, that money is available for much-needed new clothes.

The United Community Council is operating a Christmas clearing file for the tenth season for agencies and organizations in order to assure that the Spirit of Christmas is felt in each and every home.

THE UCC CHRISTMAS Clearing House is a registry system which collects and gives out information or organizations so contributions will not be duplicated.

By clearing the families receiving checks or food baskets, the contributions can be spread more widely. Instead of one family receiving Christmas from four sources, four equally-needy families can be helped.

Experience has shown that Christmas contributions fall far short of meeting the needs of the physically and economically disadvantaged. But, the UCC clearing system helps close the gap between need and available service.

United Way agencies, schools, churches and other Christmas-giving organizations are cooperating with this program in the sincere desire to make Christmas a happy time for as many as possible.

THIS IS THE sixth year Mrs. Blanche Conrad has run the UCC Christmas Bureau.

Christmas is a time of shining children's faces filled with awe as they gaze on tinselled fir trees, glittering lights and Santa's long white beard.

It is a time for rejoicing; a time for singing and family togetherness.

THANKS TO the unselfish efforts of many good people and agencies in our community, like UCC, more children can know a Christmas filled with love and the Spirit of Giving.

Salvation Army Helps

THE SALVATION ARMY'S 1973 Christmas Cheer Committee finalized its plans at a recent meeting for its extensive program which is expected to touch the lives of approximately 20,000 individuals in the Greater Columbus Area, 2,000 families to receive food, more than 4,500 children to receive toys and treats, approximately 4,200 sick and shut-in of Convalescent Homes and Correctional Institutions to receive Christmas remembrances, about 150 single indigent persons who are detached from family life to receive a "traditional Christmas Dinner" on Christmas Day and thousands of Service Men and Women to receive gift packs at the time of induction.

ALL OF THIS will be dependent upon financial gifts to The Salvation Army's Christmas Cheer Fund this year through the mail and gifts in the traditional "Christmas Kettles".

Heading this year's Christmas Cheer Committee are Mrs. Nelson Lancione and Dayle Frazier, Jr., with Charles W. Doser serving as Treasurer. Other members of the committee include Robert D. Brown, James I. Graham, Dr. Frank P. Hall, Mrs. John G. Lambert, William A. Pepper, Saul Sokol, Clarence V. Tittle, Dr. Watson H. Walker, Martin J. Wickard and Lillian Yost.

APPLICATIONS for Christmas assistance have already reached more than 1,000 at the three centers receiving them: 138 East State Street, 28 E. Goodale Street and 2501 Pontiac Street. Volunteers have been working in the Christmas Office at 138 East State St. taking applications and will continue until Wednesday, Dec. 12, Mondays thru Fridays between 9:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. To avoid duplication of other agencies, organizations and individuals all applications for food and toys will be cleared with the Confidential Clearing Bureau at the United Community Council.

Persons or groups desiring to make their contribution by mail may send it to the Christmas Cheer Fund, 138 East State St.

Financial Need Key Supplemental Service Income Available

PEOPLE in financial need in three classifications: 65 years of age and older, the blind, the disabled, are guaranteed a fixed monthly income as of January 1, 1974. The amounts are $160 for single persons and $195 for married couples per month. Supplemental Security Income is the title of this new Federal assistance program. The Columbus contact is Mr. Lenzie Grube, his office is at 170 N. High Street, and his telephone number is 469-7414. He is accepting applications now.

WHO CAN qualify? Anyone in the above three classifications of people who does not receive this much in monthly income.

Income includes special security benefits, veterans payments, workmen's compensation, pensions and annuities.

The first $30 does not count. IN ADDITION, the applicant is allowed to own a home valued up to $25,000, a car up to $1,500, insurance up to $1500.

For a couple the additional assets provision rises to $2,250. Those already on public assistance do not have to apply since their transfer to the new program will be automatic.

"I AM anxious to get this information before the public," says Mr. Grube. "We want to start taking applications immediately. I want to be able to send them that first check as of January 1."

This is a great opportunity for those people who have been living on sub-marginal incomes and who have been reluctant to apply for public assistance. The new provisions for home ownership, possession of a car and other assets solves many of their problems.

"THE NEW payments will take the place of the basic cash payments now being made by state and local public assistance offices to the aged, blind and disabled. However, States will continue to provide other services and may add to the federal payment under certain circumstances."

The aim of the new program is to provide supplemental security income payments when they are needed so that everybody in these three groups will have this basic cash income. As of July 1, payments will rise to $140 and $210.

"You can have some money coming in-for example a social security check and still get SSI. The first $20 of income in a month won't affect your federal payment. You also may be eligible for the payments even though you work part time.

The first $30 in earnings during the month won't count against your SSI payments and only half of the rest of your earnings will count.

Apart from earnings, any other money you get after the first $35 will generally reduce the amount of the federal payment.

"EVEN THOUGH the Social Security Administration will run the new Federal program, Supplemental Security Income is not the same as social security."

The money to make SSI payments will come from general funds in the United States Treasury (collected from personal income taxes, corporation taxes, and other taxes).

Social security benefits are paid from contributions of workers, employers, and self-employed people. Social Security funds will NOT be used to make supplemental security payments. You can get both social security and supplemental income payments if you are eligible for both programs."

GRUBE PROPOSED the following two questions to help you find out for yourself whether you are eligible for SSI payments.

Question No. 1: If you are single, a widow, or widower, or married but living apart do you have an income of $150 or more a month?

(do not count earnings from a job or business but include all social security payments, veterans compensation, workmen's compensation, pensions and annuities).

Question No. 2: Do you have a bank account, stock, bonds, or similar assets worth more than $1500? (Do not count your home, car, furniture, clothing, or other personal effects). In the case of a married couple answering the same two questions, the income level is $215 and the assets amount increases to $2250.

"IF YOU answered no to both questions," concludes Mr. Grube, "You will probably be eligible for payments. However we will have to ask you for some more information as to supplemental earnings and whether you are living with other members of the family. Check right away on whether you are eligible. Write or call me at 170 N. High St. Telephone 469-7414."

Gold Star Mothers Help Veterans

Chapter One, American Gold Star Mothers, Inc. are helping the veterans at the Chillicothe VA Hospital today with their Christmas shopping for their immediate families.

The recreation room is decorated and tables laden with gifts donated by organizations and individuals. Gifts are being wrapped and made ready for mailing.

Members will meet at Duff's restaurant, Graceland

Shopping Center, Thursday, December 6, at noon for their Christmas party and gift exchange. Call reservations to Mrs. Ernest Gerber, 2154 Rankin Avenue.

Mrs. Lieselotte Wislow, hospital chairman, has planned a Christmas party for 100 veterans for December 12 at the Chillicothe VA Hospital. Members will meet at the Southern Shopping Center at 11 a.m.

New officers installed in November include Mrs. William J. Degenhart, president; Mrs. Perce S. Reed, first vice president; Mrs. Cora Beaver, second vice president; Mrs. Helen Herrell, recording secretary; Mrs. Ernest Gerber, treasurer; Mrs. Ray M. Windon, chaplain; Mrs. Albert Heitz, sergeant-at-arms; Mrs. Joseph Caray, Custodian of Records; Mrs. Lieselotte Wislow, historian; Mrs. Lieselotte Wislow, American Flag Bearer; Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, Banner Bearer and Mrs. Ethel Werner and Mrs. Fleeta Burns, Color Guards.

Saturday Postal Hours Will Help Speed Christmas Mail

Ralph E. Haffenden, Officer-In-Charge, Columbus Postal District, has announced additional window service hours on Saturday at area post offices and neighborhood delivery units of the Columbus Post Office.

The added service will enable customers to meet the advanced Christmas mailing deadline caused by the fuel crisis affecting both air and highway transportation.

NEIGHBORHOOD delivery units of the Columbus Post Office will be open from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, December 8 and 15.

The use of airmail, special delivery or priority mail should be considered for gift parcels which haven't been mailed and greeting cards for delivery outside Ohio deposited after December 8.

TO ASSURE pre-Christmas delivery, greeting cards should be deposited on or before December 8. It is important that greeting cards be separated bundled and identified with the appropriate facing label delivered to each household.

There are three greeting card destination labels: Local (Columbus) "In State" (Ohio), "Out-of-State". The addresses on the cards should be placed in one direction, separated according to the mailing label identification and tied both crosswise and lengthwise with string or heavy rubber bands, available at all postal service windows.

BUNDLING cards securely prevents their becoming loose and in scattered condition prior to receipt at the "Area" mail processing center in Columbus.

Postmaster Haffenden suggests the deposit of mail be at neighborhood postal stations or in one and two Star collection boxes located on main thoroughfares.

He suggests a morning deposit so that the cards can clear the mail processing lines prior to the afternoon and early evening deposits of business mail.

COLLECTION BOXES not identified by "Stars" are collected in the mid afternoon whereas "Star-ed" collection boxes are collected frequently throughout the day. The last collection of one "Star" boxes is 5 p.m. and two Star boxes are collected at or shortly after 7 p.m.

Every delivery address should bear the proper ZIP Code number. Automated mail processing of both handwritten and typewritten addresses is dependent on the use of ZIP numbers.

Items not bearing ZIP numbers are removed from the automated process for manual processing which is slower and more costly to the postal service.

SELF SERVICE Postal Units offer 24 hour, 7 day per week mailing service. SSPUs are located at: Main Post Office; Great Southern, Great Western and Graceland Shopping Center and banking facilities located at 2941 Glenangy River Rd., Morse and Missa Rd., 2385 S. Hamilton Rd., 2295 El Livingston Ave., and 1610 Fishinger Rd.

Glass Collection Bright

BUCKEYE Federal Savings and Loan Association is currently exhibiting a cut glass collection in the main lobby at 35 East Gay St. Most of the cut glass on display was produced during "The Brilliant Period", 1890 to 1905. During this period, more cut glass was made in America than in all the rest of the world. A feature of our cut glass exhibit is a Libbey Crystal Glass designed for the New York 1939 World's Fair. Another feature of the exhibit is a punch bowl, that would cost a minimum of $3000 to produce today, in 1912, $200 would have covered the cost of producing the same bowl. The exhibit is open to the public from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Whitehall vs. Mt. Vernon Tops Card

League Battles Highlight Early Season Cage Play

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
SPECTATOR Sports Writer

THEY'RE "The Toast of the East."

Yes, Whitehall, Eastmoor and Walnut Ridge are the talk of the east side, even at this early roundball date. Whitehall and Walnut Ridge scored impressive wins last week while Eastmoor dropped an air tight decision to state toughie Chillicothe, a team that could very well rank among the state's top ten. When the polls come out, Whitehall's Russ Gregg coached Rams come fresh from its 60-54, slapping of defending Ohio Capital Conference champion Delaware with all-state

High School Basketball Schedule

Friday, Dec. 7

Columbus City: East at West, Eastmoor at North, Brykshaven at Cental; Mohawk at Linden; Northland at South; Walnut Ridge at Whetstone and Marion Franklin at Mifflin.

Ohio Capital: Worthington at Westerville; Gahanna at Westland; Reynoldsburg at Delaware and Whitehall at Mt. Vernon.

Mid-Eight: Groveport at Bexley, London at Grove City and Hilliard at Urbana.

Metro: West Jefferson at Dublin, Marysville at Grandview, Franklin Heights at Olentangy and Hamilton Township at Teays Valley.

Central Catholic: DeSales at Ready, Waterson at Wehrle and Hartley at St. Charles.

Saturday, Dec. 8

Area-Non League

better candidate Terry Burris popping 28 through the hoop to lead the charge. Junior guard Bill Beasalski added 16 for the Rams while also aiding in the ball-handling department.

BUT THE big challenge for Burris and his young playmates comes this Friday night when they travel to Mt. Vernon to match 2-0 league marks and vie for the league lead. Its early in the calendar to label this a showdown but don't grade the idea totally invalid.

Mt. Vernon boasts an all-state center candidate Ted Williams. With the possibility of Burris and Williams offsetting each other it looms heavily that the performance of Beasalski, Chris Zag, Benton Teddie and Jerry Montgomery could be a real determining factor in this OOC headliner.

WALNUT RIDGE streaked to an 85-70 victory over Hartley in the Scot season opener. This group looks to be extremely well balanced for 24 year coaching vet Jack Moore. (12 years at East and 12 at Ridge).

This edition of Scot roundball not only has balance in the scoring column. The trademark of a Jack Moore championship squad is speed and this quintet doesn't lack there with Marshall leading the fast break down the floor. Vollman stands 6-7 and Lee 6-5 to head the height department.

Most have already labeled this Ridge Five as the City League favorite as they begin their league campaign Friday at Whetstone.

Eastmoor, tabbed as a darkhorse in pre-season pools, is now labeled a bonafide contender. A lopsided victory over Athens in its initial season opener, these "Red" Courtney coached men led powerhouse Chillicothe at the end of each quarter, except the one which counted, the final buzzer.

Baseball slugger mini Tim Kauffman, not so mini anymore at 5-0 155, is the cool cookie at the helm of this Warrior offense.

Rob Manning and Bob Pounds compliment the Warrior bounding pressure defense.

It will be a trip to North High Friday night for Eastmoor that helps kickoff the 61st running of City League basketball.

In other action creeping before us this weekend West will entertain East in the other City League encounter and Worthington will travel to Westerville, Gahanna to Westland and Reynoldsburg to Delaware all in the Ohio Capital Conference.

BEXLEY plays host to Groveport in the Mid-Eight and Franklin Heights jaunts to Olentangy in the Metro. Central Catholic play pits DeSales at Ready.

Waterson at Wehrle and another rivalry contest for St. Charles when they welcome fellow eastside buddy Hartley.

In other action last weekend East opened impressively with a 75-73 squeaker over visiting Cincinnati Withrow with the trio of Mike Hall, Hilton Hale and Terry Jamison doing the damage.

Worthington contracted a severe case of the turnoveritis dropping a weekend pair, to Mt. Vernon and Upper Arlington. Reynoldsburg's Ed Williams went on a 41 point scoring spree in helping the Raiders whip Westland while Larry Ferst's 20 markers couldn't offset a Franklin Heights loss to Dublin.

In an interesting rivalry staged in the community of Bexley Eric Stinson, Mike Husfeld and Jim Carlisle swished double figures in leading St. Charles over Bexley and perennial toughie Ready found the going tough in a 20 point loss to Marion Franklin.

East Stars Win, 8-6

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Spectator Sports Writer

A safety and a pair of field goals by Otterbein College's Lief Peterson lifted the East all-stars to 8-6 victory over the West all-stars in the second annual All-Ohio Shrine Bowl played before some 22,000 well entertained customers in Ohio Stadium last Saturday.

Peterson, a wide receiver and punter, took on place kicking duties for the East and connected perfectly from 20 and 30 yards for his three-pointers.

But the victory margin came when Baldwin-Wallace tackle Claude Butler and Akron's Rick Madden blitzed the West line in fourth quarter action to tackle West QB Tim Dydo in the end zone for the last two points.

Complimenting Peterson's brilliant performance was a fine showing by Otterbein end Tom Cahill and Capital's Mike Adams, the center for the West. Halfback Craig Snyder of Capital also chipped in for the West.

It was a fun-filled football day as all the proceeds went to the Burns Foundation. The Shriners staged a colorful halftime show which along with the roving clowns on hand seemed to entertain all.

FALL FINALS--After viewing both football spectacle's two weeks ago, the Ohio High School state finals in Akron and the Big Ten tussle in Ann Arbor, this reporter sees glaring resemblances in the running of Youngstown Cardinal Mooney's TED BELL and Ohio State's super back ARCHIE GRIFFIN. MIKE ADAMS capped his Capital University football career by being named MVP for the Crusaders.

Franklin Heights vs Dublin

A BATTLE FOR THE REBOUND was won by a Dublin Shamrock as Franklin Heights' Jim Wood (34) makes an effort to control the ball and fouls the Dublin cager in his effort. The Shamrocks won the game, a Metro-League encounter. (Franklin-Dublin photos by Craig Weaver.)

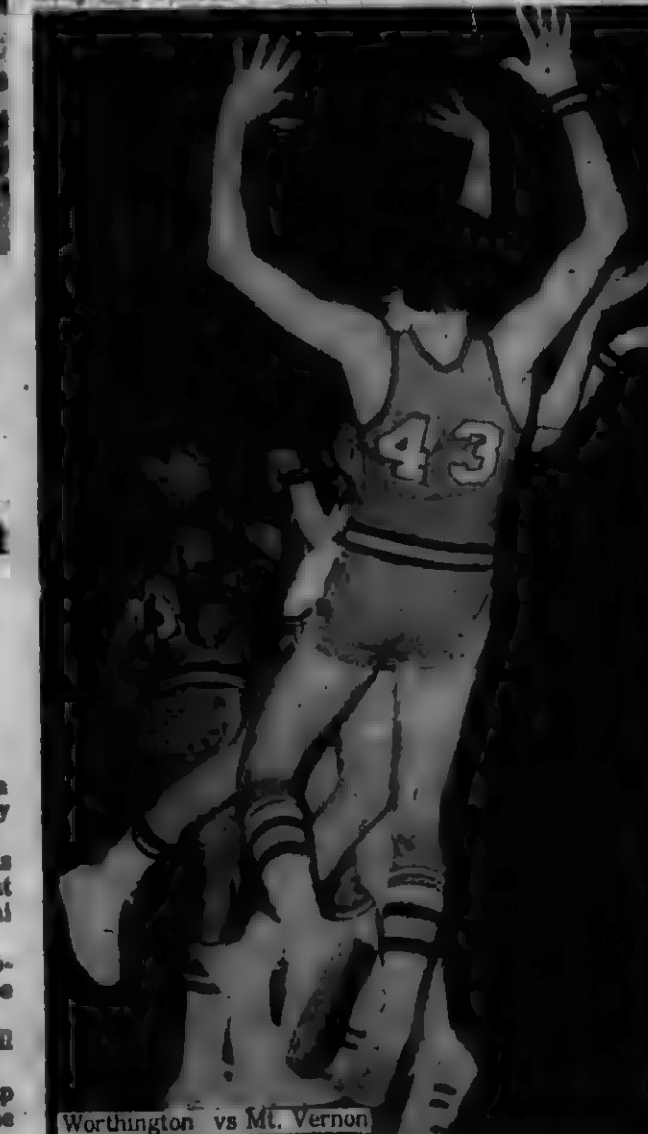

Franklin Heights vs Dublin

COMPETITION round the boards was tough and go all evening as Dublin and Franklin Heights fought for every ball. The Shamrocks' Bob Termeer (43) hung onto this one against competition from Franklin Heights' Jim Wood (34). Franklin Heights lost the Metro Loop game.

Worthington vs Mt. Vernon

FOLLOW THE BALL and you'll notice plenty of pairs of eyes doing the same thing. This rebound was contested for by (in white) Worthington's Don Brough (50) Mark Kline (40) and Doug Barkhart in the center while Mt. Vernon's Mike Kelly (43) also reaches.

Worthington vs Mt. Vernon

BALL DANCERS had nothing on this group of cagers as six hands (count 'em) show in this action photo. Four of the hands belong to Worthington players (which ones we're not sure) and two belong to Mt. Vernon competitors. That's Mt. Vernon's Ted Williams (43) and Tim Peppers (33) in letter view. (Worthington-Mt. Vernon photos by Ray Adams.)

Deer Creek Tailwater
Recent survey efforts conducted by the Ohio Division of Wildlife indicate the presence of an excellent game and panfish fishery immediately below the Deer Creek Dam. Muskellunge, Walleye, Largemouth and Smallmouth Bass, Channel Catfish, White Crappie and Carp exist in good numbers, along with excellent populations of forage fish.

THE ABOVE listed species were found to be concentrated along both shorelines and in the turbulent area at the base of the dam. The midstream section of the tailwater area contained large numbers of Gizzard Shad and other forage fish, but very few game fish. Suggested baits include minnows, crayfish, spinners and an assortment of both shallow and deep diving plugs.

Deer Creek Reservoir is located approximately 2 miles east of State route 207, 9 miles south of Mt. Sterling. The tailwater is that area immediately below the dam.

Shining Prohibited At Night
It is unlawful in Ohio to use artificial lights at any time from a vehicle to locate wild animals while having hunting implements in possession. Ohio law further provides that from the first day of September each year through the following last day of February, it is unlawful from 10 p.m. until sunrise the following day to shine, whether there are hunting implements in the vehicle or not.

Planting Stock Available
Trees and shrubs for wildlife food and cover are available from the Division of Wildlife, Ohio Department of Natural Resources. Interested farmers and rural landowners should contact their local game protector by February 1, 1974 to apply for wildlife habitat planting stock.

A SHORTAGE of food and a lack of well distributed cover make the winter and spring a critical period of the year for wildlife. Supplemental plantings of desirable wildlife habitat are important to the maintenance of existing wildlife populations.

Farmers and landowners with 30 or more acres, who permit some hunting on their land, are eligible to receive planting stock. Planning services and several publications on wildlife food and cover plantings are also available.

Several varieties of trees and shrubs including white pine, autumn olive and multiflora rose may be obtained from The Division of Wildlife. Anyone desiring to receive the planting stock, be sure to contact your local state game protector or the Wildlife District One Office, 1800 Dublin Rd., Columbus, Ohio 43215, phone 466-3337. Application period ends February 1, 1974.

Hey Kids

Color Santa WIN A PRIZE!

Hey Mom— Read This!

The SPECTATOR WANT AD DEPARTMENT can't imagine Santa without a red suit! They'd like our boys and girls to color his picture and maybe win a new toy for Christmas.

While the youngsters are busy you can check around the house—Maybe you have some "good as new" toys, trains, bikes etc. which you would like to sell before Christmas. Your "DON'T NEEDS" can be turned into "CHRISTMAS CASH" in time—if you will call right away!

KIDS, be sure to fill in the entry blank so we may reach you if you win! Winners will be notified and names will be printed in the paper December 27. Your entry must be in our office for the judges on or before Dec. 19. You may enter both weeks the contest appears in the paper if you wish.

SANTA will leave candy canes at our office for any boy or girl who brings their entry in.

William Fitch

Two National Leaders Speak At Boulevard

William C. Fitch, President of the American Association of Retired Persons and National Retired Teachers Association, will be a featured speaker at Boulevard Presbyterian Church, 1235 N.W. Boulevard Tuesday, December 11.

Fitch has represented the rights of older Americans for thirty years. Prior to his appointment as President of Senior Advocates International, he was Executive Director of the National Council on Aging, a non-profit organization responsible for promoting the economic, social and personal interests of older Americans.

His previous position was Executive Director, of the American Association of Retired Persons and National Retired Teachers Association. Mr. Fitch will participate in both the afternoon and evening sessions of the Columbus Conference of Concerned Adults of America.

Mrs. Leland Schmitt, a former Tri Village resident, who is coordinator of CAA said that Dr. Lowell Russell Ditzon, Director of the National Presbyterian Center in Washington for the past ten years will speak at the noon luncheon. Dr. Ditzon's theme is "Developing a Closer Relationship Between Pulpit and Pew."

The Reverend Mr. Ditzon is well known in church circles because of numerous books he has written, his national radio and T.V. programs, plus innumerable articles and sermons published in many church periodicals.

Mayor Tom Moody has been invited to give the welcoming address at the evening session, while former Mayor of Columbus, Maynard Sensenbrenner, will give the welcome at the noon luncheon, along with Dale Bordner, Mayor of Grandview Heights.

Reservations for the noon luncheon, or evening dinner, may be made with Mrs. Helen Seick, 1152 Norton Avenue, Columbus, 43212 by December 8. The public is invited to participate in any of the afternoon or evening sessions of this Columbus Conference.

Promoted

Tom Pomeroy, shop foreman for Classic Cars, Inc. Volkswagen, has been promoted to Service Manager of the dealership.

Prior to coming with Classic Cars, Pomeroy was a quality control supervisor and training instructor at Midvo Volkswagen Distributors for 3 years.

Apartment Complex New

A $1.75 million apartment complex, Scarborough Square, with 144 luxury units, will be built in the 6100 block of Trabue Rd. by Heartland Investments, Ltd., according to William S. Cecutti, president.

The new community, west of the outerbelt near Walcutt Rd., will be two-bedroom townhouses and garden apartments. They will feature large bedrooms, air conditioning, one and one half baths, shag carpeting and patios or balconies.

The buildings will be of contemporary architecture with stucco and wood exteriors. Sliding glass doors will lead to balconies on the upper levels and patios on the first floor.

Santa Claus Is Visiting

Santa Claus is visiting all his little friends at Westland Mall through December 15th.

Santa will be in his big cozy home to listen to requests from all the boys and girls and give them a free coloring book.

Santa's hours at Westland are: Sundays - Noon to 3 p.m.; Monday thru Friday - 1 p.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday - 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Crucial Corner

"Lisa - Bright and Dark" ... What About Her?

Recently the Hallmark Hall of Fame brought to the attention of millions of American television viewers a story about an emotionally disturbed teenager. Working through their own sense of crisis, Lisa's parents finally became able to accept her as a real one, and summon a psychiatrist. The story ended there, unfortunately.

Many things were not told in the story of Lisa. Most crucial of these was the continuing role of her parents in counseling.

Of course these two had taken a giant step in simply acknowledging Lisa's problems. Families, however, function as wholes. The children's problems affect parents; the parent's problems affect children - and all must participate in resolution of these problems. Lisa's parents may have to take at least one more giant step and participate in some of the same counseling sessions their daughter attends.

Another unfortunate impression left by this dramatization was the notion that a psychiatrist is the ultimate answer to serious emotional difficulties. In fact, psychiatrists in traditional practice have not met the mental health needs of Americans. The movement toward community mental health centers arose in consequence.

And it discovered that psychiatric social workers, psychologists, psychiatric nurses, pastors, indigenous community workers and many others are often better able than the psychiatrist to foster healthy resolution in the emotionally troubled.

Of course the shining positive note emerging from the story of Lisa was that mental illness need not - and must not - be hidden in the closet. Emotional turmoil is not shameful; indeed, it's a condition of all of us at one time or another, to a greater or lesser extent, under different degrees of stress.

Perhaps we should learn to applaud that healthy core within us which can shout, "I need help!" As we saw in Lisa's story, prejudice and blindness to these very human problems smother our healthy as well as our painful selves.

Cuts Suggested In Use Of Heat, Electricity, Gas

Columbus-The Energy Crisis Committee of the Columbus Public Schools, appointed recently by Dr. John Ellis, superintendent, has submitted a set of specific recommendations for saving energy. They are under consideration by the school board.

Detailed recommendations for conservation of heat, electricity and gasoline follow:

CONSERVATION OF HEAT

Students, parents and all staff members should be informed in advance of plans to reduce temperatures. This will permit all concerned to dress accordingly and should serve to avoid some negative reaction to the change.

Specific heat-saving suggestions given by the committee are:

BE SURE windows are closed tightly.

Keep classroom doors closed.

Pull available blinds on windy, cold days. If sun is out, open blinds.

Pull blinds after school to reduce heat loss.

Pilot lights on stoves and incinerators should be shut off on weekends.

Outside doors should be kept closed as much as possible. Elementary pupils, particularly, like to hold outside doors open.

In rooms or areas of buildings that are overheating due to thermostat not working or out of calibration, the teacher should notify the principal and head custodian and a work order should be turned in for adjustment. Work orders will be processed as rapidly as possible.

VANDALISM of thermostats is common in the secondary schools. Everyone's help is needed with this problem. It results in wasted fuel, discomfort for all, costly hours for repair and an expense to the system for new thermostats.

Avoid setting thermostats higher than the desired room temperature. A room will not heat faster. It will only overheat.

The State Board of Education has recommended the following temperature guidelines: Classrooms, 66 degrees; Auditorium, 66 degrees; Cafeteria, 66 degrees; Gym, 60 degrees; Locker and shower rooms, 68 degrees; Shops, 68 degrees or lower; Laboratories, 68 degrees; Unoccupied areas, 56 degrees.

CONSERVATION OF ELECTRICITY

Specific suggestions for the conserving of electricity offered are:

Turn off incandescent lights as soon as they are not in use.

TURN OFF fluorescent lamps rather than allowing them to burn continuously. School custodians must turn off lights room by room as they complete their cleaning assignments.

Turn off the bank of lights nearest the window when outside light is adequate. Reduce the number of lights used for lighting hallways and other large areas to the degree practical. In many cases the fluorescent bulbs can be removed from half the fixtures.

Christmas displays should not include electric lights.

EXISTING AIR conditioning units should be operated only when room temperatures are extreme and only when the room will be used for an extended period of time by the same people.

The consumption of electricity can be more easily regulated than the consumption of heat. At least modest savings can be achieved in all facilities by careful attention to the above suggestions.

CONSERVATION OF GASOLINE

Reports are to the effect that the shortage of crude oil will directly affect the availability and price of gasoline. Potential savings may be obtained by more efficient operations in the transportation of school children. To accomplish this goal consideration should be given to:

Tune and maintain engines, plugs and points.

Clean pollution control devices.

Reduce warm-up time for buses to three minutes prior to starting routes. Drivers should dress warmly rather than running engines at full idle to heat their buses.

The engine should be shut off during the loading or unloading of pupils at schools. Vehicles should not be operated in excess of 50 miles per hour.

Maintenance and repair jobs should be geographically grouped so as to reduce required driving.

COMMUNICATION

IN THE EVENT schools must be closed as a result of the energy crisis, all possible advance publicity should be provided through the public media as well as through internal communications.

Careful liaison should be maintained with employee organizations, utility companies and the State Department of Education.

Heating plants should be lowered to night-time settings at the close of the normal school day. Additional heat should not be furnished for after-school activities except where absolutely essential. The normal retention of heat should be adequate for most after school and evening activities including basketball games.

THE MONTHLY cost of natural gas and electricity for each school should be reported to each school staff. This report should include such costs beginning with January, 1973, so that an energy "scoreboard" can be established in each school.

A committee should be formed to develop comprehensive curricular programs and materials related to the conservation of energy.

Discussions should be initiated with the employee organizations related to the possibility of providing an alternative calendar for the remainder of the present school year.

The developing energy crisis should be carefully monitored with the possibility that all after-school activities which require heat should be discontinued.

The recommendations contained in this report are based on the limited factual information available at this time. The Energy Crisis Committee should be convened whenever additional information indicates that more severe measures may be required. In addition, the Committee will continue to meet on the second Wednesday of each month in order to monitor the progress being made throughout the school system.

MEMBERS

Members of the Energy Crisis Committee appointed by the superintendent are the following from the Central Administration office: C. L. Dumaree, Deputy Superintendent; William Cooke, Director, Business Services; Walter Allis, Chief Operating Engineer; Charles Hall, Assistant Superintendent, Business Affairs.

PRINCIPALS are: Alan Trotman, Easthaven Elementary School; Paul Katterhenrich, Everett Junior High School and James Ferguson, Central High School.

Teachers on the committee are: Dave Pence, Brookhaven High School; Paul Kenreich, Yorktown Junior High School; Ruth Brown, Franklinton Elementary School and Don Pierce, president, Columbus Education Association.

Classified employees are represented by: William Lillard, head custodian, Berwick Elementary; Robert Olay, head custodian, Mifflin Junior; Evelyn Orndorf, secretary, Eastmoor Senior; John Lovely, Operations Department, Starting Street Building (Electronics); Fred Molter, Maintenance and Painting, 600 East 17th Ave. Workshop; and James Coffield, Maintenance (Machinery for Practical Education Dept.) 800 East 17th Ave. Workshop.

REPRESENTING the Parent-Teacher Associations on the committee are: Mrs. Pat DeWitt, president, Columbus Council of PTA's, and Mrs. Rose Morris, first vice-president, Columbus Council of PTA's.

Holiday Homecoming At Westland

GALLOWAY-WESTLAND alumni will share their college experiences with present juniors and seniors at the second annual "Holiday Homecoming," Wednesday, Dec. 13. The program, which is scheduled from 5:30-11:30 p.m., will feature two panel discussions and a mixer. Topics ranging from college expenses to dorm life to academics will be covered. Directed by Westland Counselors Dan Wittenman and Richard Curtis, the event is sponsored by the National Honor Society and the Student Action for Education (SAE). Shown here with some college catalogues are (sitting) Jan Smith, National Honor Society; Bob Iresson, president of SAE; (standing left to right) Christy Grimes, Senior Seminar and National Honor Society; Linda Emmelhain, president of National Honor Society; and Melanie Pinn, Senior Seminar. Any Westland alumnus wishing to share experiences should contact Wittenman at 573-7215. This program was initiated last year by the Westland Guidance Department in an effort to better communicate knowledge of college to interested students. It was found that students can learn a great deal from someone who has recently attended their school. In addition the college students enjoy returning to Westland to see former teachers and friends.

Board Disapproves Code Revision

Addition To Hilltonia Approved

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Special Staff Writer

Columbus-The Columbus School Board voted to have included in the minutes of the Dec. 4 regular meeting, a resolution saying that the Board of Education is opposed to a City Council approved criminal code revision dealing in part with the sexual orientation of prospective employees.

The code revision would prohibit any type of discrimination against homosexuals concerning employment practices. Columbus Mayor Tom Moody vetoed the City Council approved code last week.

Board Member Paul Langdon introduced the resolution which was accepted by the board saying, "Great care and vigilance must be exercised in the screening, selection, appointment and assignment of all employees of the Board of Education."

The resolution also said, "The Board recognizes that parents expect the Board and School Administration to place in direct contact with children or in positions of influence only those persons whose personal characteristics performance are of the highest order."

WE CAN'T GIVE these people a chance to promote their views to the students of our schools," Langdon said.

Langdon also said that the council legislation would give homosexuals an opportunity to promote their views to students because children learn indirectly as well as directly from their teachers. Vote on the Langdon introduced resolution was 4-1. Dr. David Hamler cast the only disagreeing vote saying he was against such discrimination. Board member Mrs. Marie Castleman was not present for the meeting while Dr. Watson Walker exited before the vote.

In other Board action, preliminary drawings for an addition and related improvements for the Hilltonia Junior High School were passed. The drawings had been assessed by the Hilltonia Advisory Committee on Educational Program and Facilities. The committee included two students.

PLANS FOR HILLTONIA will include a total of 5,250 additional square feet, 4,500 square feet being a library-learning center. Also included is expanded lunchroom seating. The proposed addition would be constructed on the east side of the two-story wing and adjacent to a one-story addition built in 1963.

The $335,000 project also includes remodeling which would convert the present library into a regular classroom and two small-group instructional areas. An audio-visual production area adjacent to the school's auditorium is also planned.

Project architects Deebie, Boyes and Underwood will now proceed with preparation of design development drawings and working drawings of the proposed remodeling.

The school board also approved hospital and medical insurance rate changes for all school employees. The new rates are a reduction for Blue Cross and a 4.9 per cent increase for Travelers Insurance. The rates which are guaranteed for one year will go into effect Jan. 1, 1974. Officials say this change will cost the school system an additional $400 in 1974.

THE BOARD ALSO voted to raise the maximum limit of the replacement fund to $2,000,000. It was pointed out that this amount is less than one percent of the present value of buildings and content.

Also agreed to was, "The replacement fund will be used only to repair buildings and/or equipment damaged or destroyed by sudden and unexpected incidents producing losses of a catastrophic nature." No claim will be considered from the replacement fund unless it exceeds $15,000."

Temperatures in buildings will be lowered to 45-50 degrees during vacation, and in order to save fuel, school, which was scheduled to reopen Thursday, Jan. 3, will remain closed until Monday, Jan. 7. The time off will be made up later.

The following policies have been adopted:

Big "Newsboys" Hit Street

WEST COLUMBUS-The Hilltop Kiwanis Club and some friends will be going door to door Thursday asking for donations for their Christmas newspaper. The big "newsboys" will number 400 people and are asking Hilltop residents to leave their porch light on and to give a donation. All the money from the newspaper sale goes back into the community through service projects. The street sales will be kicked off with a luncheon at Lincoln Lodge at noon Thursday. The first issues of the paper will be auctioned off to the highest bidder. The club has already raised $4,240 by selling ads for this 27th annual edition. Kiwanis President Joe Goodwin is shown buying the first street sale copy from Jim Brunner and Abner Thomas, vice presidents.

Santa Visits Westside

WEST COLUMBUS-The West Side Kiwanis Club staged their 10th annual parade to help Santa visit the handicapped and little children in the Franklin area Sunday, Dec. 9, between noon and dark. His clown, members of the West Side Kiwanis Club, gave bags of candy to some of the children along the route. Some of the children talked briefly to Santa as the parade made stops at various places in the near west side community. Now Santa will check his orders, again, in an effort to make sure he has every request filled. Shown here with Santa are (left to right) Leland Beall, Parade Chairman Ralph Oberleitner, Austin Hutt, Austin Hutt Jr., President Orville B. Chadwell, Past President Charles B. Davis, Beryl Hatfield, Jerry Wilhelm and Ralph Burrell.

Trustees Meet New Union President

By Kathy Devaney
West Columbus-The

Franklin Township Trustees denied members of the firefighters union the right to attend a union meeting once a month, while on duty. The firefighters from station three requested permission to attend the meetings at Station 2.

"Township protection is more important. The time and distance factors affect fire protection," Board Chairman John Quelletto said.

The new president of the firefighters union, Darryl Oakes, came before the board and said he hoped the trustees and firefighters could work together to solve the problems between them and to forget past problems.

In other action Fire Chief M.E. Olney asked the board to consider giving firefighters compensatory time when they are required to work beyond their quitting time.

Olney will present statistics to the board so they can study them and make a decision. Olney is also working on specifications for a 100-foot aerial ladder which will cost approximately $85,000. The chief asked the board to consider making the aerial ladder a multiple unit, including rescue equipment. This would eliminate one squad, he said. Alternate bids (with and without the additional equipment) will be received.

Township Attorney Tom Applegate was scheduled to attend an annexation hearing Dec. 5. Ashland Oil has asked that an 80 by 190 foot piece of property be annexed to the city in order to receive sewage and water.

Applegate was asked to make the commissioners aware of the problem of providing fire protection to the facility if part of it is under two different governmental jurisdictions.

In other action the board gave dispatchers permission to ride the squad and observe procedures on their off duty time. Chief Olney hopes this will improve dispatching procedures.

The trustees will meet again Monday, Dec. 17. The final meeting of the year will be Dec. 27 at 7 p.m. at the fire house, 4100 Sullivant Ave.

Chatfields Guest

The Singing Chatfields will present services of Gospel music and song at The Cypress Wesleyan Church, 80 S. Cypress Ave., Sunday, Dec. 16, at 9:30 a.m., 10:30 a.m. and at 7:30 p.m.

The Chatfields are evangelist singers of The Wesleyan Church who travel across the United States to revivals and camp meetings. The pastor of the local church, the Rev. William Gilkerson, invites the public to these special services.

Energy Conservation...

to turn light on and off room by room as they perform their cleaning assignments. ELIMINATE LIGHTS in Christmas displays.

Conserving Energy II Transportation

Reduce warm-up time for buses to three minutes prior to starting routes. Drivers should dress warmly rather than running engines at full idle to heat bus.

The engine will be shut-off during the loading or unloading of pupils at schools.

As of Nov. 26, South-Western City School buses will operate only when their schools are in session. This will affect parochial and special schools for which the district provides transportation.

Parents of high school students should encourage their children to ride the bus to and from school to conserve fuel.

CONTINUE TO TUNE and maintain bus engines to get maximum mileage.

Closely scrutinize all routing to make sure routing is the best possible with essential stops.

The school system has contracts which will provide gasoline for the rest of the year, but if a point is reached when the system cannot get gasoline, parents will have to assume that responsibility.

State law only requires transportation of elementary students who live more than two miles from school.

Drivers Ed

Reduce freeway speeds to 50 m.p.h.

After starting automobile, drive at low speeds until automobile warms up rather than idling the car.

Do not start automobile until preliminary instruction has been given.

Do less city driving and more suburban driving to eliminate so much stop and go driving.

CONTINUE TO maximize the use of the stimulator. Make sure that four students are available and participate at the same time in the "in car" instruction to maximize efficiency.

In other action the board honored Dr. Roland E. Long for 13 years of service to the board at his last meeting.

Dr. Long was appointed to the board Dec. 13, 1960. He chose not to run this year.

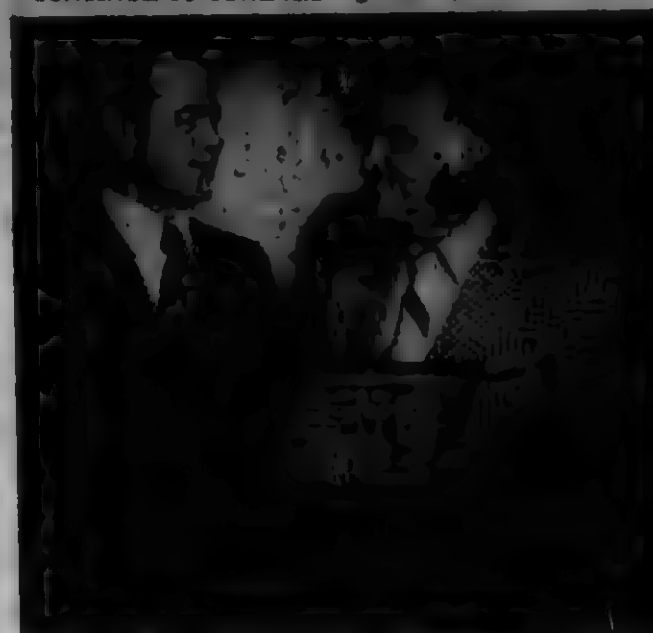

During Dr. Long's tenure the school system has grown from 9,529 pupils to 17,100. The number of buildings grew from 20 to 28.

He was instrumental in bringing about the construction of the Administrative Services Center opened this year.

FARNSWORTH SAID, "Dr. Long's interests always centered on the welfare and the education of boys and girls. It would be impossible to acknowledge all his many contributions to the growth and development of the school system."

Mrs. Jean Williams was appointed to another term as a member of the Grove City Library Board.

The next meeting of the board will be Monday, Jan. 14, 1974 at which time the board will be reorganized and a meeting date for the new year will be set. The regular monthly meeting of the board will follow the reorganizational meeting.

GROVE City-Board President John C. Farnsworth presents Dr. Roland E. Long a plaque in appreciation for 13 years of service to the board and the South-Western City School District.

Fireplace Facts!

IN AMERICA TODAY, THE NUMBER OF HOMES WITH FIREPLACES REACHES ABOUT 20,000,000!

Few people may realize it, but since man-made logs are derived from sawdust and waste products of the lumber and petroleum industries, no new trees need be cut for firewood and using artificial logs is more beneficial to the ecology than using the real thing!

MANUFACTURED LOGS CAN ALWAYS BE TREATED LIKE WOODEN ONES! YOU NEED A CLEAN FLUE, AN OPEN RAMPER AND LOGS THAT FIT THE FIREPLACE.

BUT WITH MAN-MADE LOGS YOU SHOULD FOLLOW THE MANUFACTURER'S INSTRUCTIONS, PLACING ONLY ONE WRAPPED LOG ON A GRATE AT THE BACK OF THE FIREPLACE.

NEVER BREAK, MOVE OR ADJ. LOGS TO AN EXISTING FIRE. EXTINGUISH WITH SAND, WATER, OR A CHEMICAL FIRE EXTINGUISHER. NEVER USE FIRE SCREENS!

DURING THE NEXT 12 MONTHS MANUFACTURED FIREPLACE LOGS WILL BE USED TO MAKE OVER 30 MILLION FIREPLACE FIRES!

Ohio National Bank Expands 24-Hour Service

Ohio National Bank has placed an "Anytime Bank" automated banking machine into operation at its Sharon Woods office, 1850 E. Dublin-Granville Road, to increase the availability of 24-hour banking service to residents of Columbus' far north side, according to an announcement by Walter C. Mercer, president and chief executive officer.

Installation of the additional automated facility in this area was prompted in part by rapidly growing customer use of the Anytime Bank at Ohio National's Morse-Maize office, 1200 Morse Road, Mercer said.

"Many customers who have been meeting their around-the-clock banking needs at the Morse-Maize unit since its installation in 1972 will now find the Sharon Woods facility even more convenient," he noted.

"We also have found that the demand for automated banking is increasing as customers discover that the Anytime Bank is a simple, reliable way to do most of their banking."

The automated facilities provide 24-hour availability of the most frequently used banking services, including withdrawals of cash from checking or savings accounts or by Master Charge cash advance, as well as making of deposits, payments for loans and utilities, and transfer of funds between accounts.

OSU Alumni Affairs Director Selected

Dan L. Heinlen, 1886 Norwood Rd., Columbus, has been named director of Alumni Affairs at Ohio State University, officials of the alumni association have announced.

Heinlen also becomes executive director of the Ohio State University Development Fund.

Announcement of the selection was made by Dale B. Baker of Columbus, national president of The Ohio State University Association.

HEINLEN was the unanimous choice of the organization's board of directors and the recommendation of a specially appointed search committee, Baker said.

The search committee had conducted a three-month nationwide search for a replacement to fill the post vacated by the death of Dr. Richard M. Mall last August.

The five-member search committee was headed by Walter S. Klevay, Cleveland, first vice president of the alumni association.

BAKER SAID, "The qualifications of over 40 individuals, recommended or likely candidates for the position, were screened by the search committee. There was an overwhelming consensus that Dan Heinlen has the personal and professional qualities necessary to fill successfully the position of Director. In retrospect, Dr. Mall is to be credited for the selection of his successor, because it was under Dr. Mall's tutelage for six years that Dan developed the outstanding qualities and gained valuable experiences so necessary to job understanding and know-how."

"I AM very pleased with the selection of Dan as director and am sure he will not only carry on the great traditions developed and fostered by the association and its former directors, Lou Morrill, Jack Fuller, and Dick Mall, but, also, that he will help guide and direct the association to meet the challenges of our changing times and lead the association to newer, distinguished levels of service to higher education and alumni."

Heinlen, who joined the alumni organization in 1965, was associate director responsible for general internal administration and supervising alumni field activities.

He was named acting director after the death of Dr. Mall as the directors began their search for a permanent successor.

A 1960 graduate of Ohio State, Heinlen majored in the field of social work. He was associated five years with the YMCA of Pittsburg before joining the Ohio State alumni organization, which has nearly 60,000 dues-paying members.

HE SERVED in the United States Army Reserves for six years as a medical corpsman.

He is a vice president of the Franklin County Forum, a director of the Kidney Foundation, an honorary member of the Rotaphos, a member of the Rotary Club of Columbus, St. John's Episcopal Church, Ohio State, Inc., Sphinx, the Ohio Society of New York, and the Faculty Club.

He and his wife, Bobbie, have a three-year old daughter, Stephanie Sue.

Eco-Holiday Will Ring Out In Many Households

LIKE THE SPELL of an old Currier & Ives print, remembrances of past Christmases glow in the memories of modern Americans. If twentieth century man views the coming holiday season with mixed emotions and longs for the simpler traditions of his forefathers, he forgets that the industrial and economic prosperity he enjoys is unique.

Given material wealth and expanded leisure time, he now has the opportunity to combine the best of the old and new holiday traditions.

MORE AND MORE families are rediscovering the meaning of the holidays by working together to create their gifts, indoor and outdoor decorations, and gift wrapping.

And, in addition to bringing families closer together through hours of shared effort, the partial return to old holiday traditions has economic and environmental benefits.

EACH YEAR the Christmas holidays generate mountains of trash. Wrapping paper, Christmas cards, shopping bags, packing materials, gag gifts, and poor quality presents usually wind up in the trash after an incredibly short life span. Even the Christmas tree becomes a bulky waste problem in the New Year.

For the second straight year, the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency (Ohio EPA) and concerned citizen action groups across the state are promoting the adoption of an "Eco-Holiday," in which the special message of love, giving, and brotherhood is not buried beneath a pile of trash. Eco-Holiday tips are a mixture of traditional customs resurrected to meet modern needs and wholly new ideas. Best of all, they're easy on the family budget.

RATHER than outline your home with strings of lights, which use up valuable electricity, the Ohio EPA Eco-Holiday program suggests you try decorating trees and shrubbery with natural materials that also serve as food for birds. Popcorn, raisins, cranberries, and other stringable fruits make bright and attractive chains. Pieces of apple, orange, cookies, donuts, ears of corn, and suet can be cleverly used to decorate outdoor greenery.

Stale bread, cut with cookie cutters, and suet, a hard fat found in the meat sections of supermarkets, can be tied to branches with bits of colored yarn.

Melt suet in a double boiler and mix it with birdseed. Pour the mixture in a mold of coconut, walnut, orange, or grapefruit shells. Fill pinecones with suet or peanut butter and hang them on shrubbery. You will be pleased and amazed at the number of birds that pay you a visit.

EVEN Christmas wreaths can be made from natural materials like pine cones, fruit grains, pine boughs, milkweed pods, holly, cranberries, and ears of corn. Decorating the yard can become a fun family outing, rather than a tedious, lightstraining experience for Dad.

Decorating the house with greenery is a custom that can be traced to the earliest civilizations. Deck your halls with boughs of evergreen or holly. Some outdoor decorations work equally well indoors.

Gather the family in the kitchen and create your decorations out of cranberries, popcorn, cookies, candies, whole fruits and nuts.

Exercise your artistic talent during those long winter nights by cutting brightly-colored paper chains out of scrap paper, bells and baskets from egg cartons, and painting tin cans that have been shaped to resemble bells.

FABRIC SCRAPS can be transformed into snowflakes, stars, and bells, and hung on the tree with string or yarn. If your tree is not already fully decorated and you decide to add a few strings of lights, conserve energy by using them after dark and before 10 p.m.

ONE OF THE greatest wastes of the holiday season is wrapping paper. You can save a lot of money and add a personal touch to presents by creating gift wrappings.

Hint at the gift or the personality and tastes of the recipient by wrapping your packages with pages from magazines, comic books, newspapers, old road maps, and scraps of cloth.

Plain white tissue paper decorated with old holiday greeting cards, colored twine and yarn, old tree decorations, or other, smaller gift items, can create a striking, attractive package.

If you're feeling particularly artistic, draw a design of your own choosing on a plain white box with crayon or magic marker. The wrapping will attract as much admiration on Christmas Day as the gift inside.

SOME OF THE BEST presents are those you make yourself, and they are particularly appealing if you're on a tight budget. Make-it-yourself suggestions that are sure to be enjoyed are home-made bread, cookies, candies, jelly, and jams.

You can give potted plants, a terrarium, herb garden, bulbs, and seeds for Spring planting.

Memberships in environmental organizations, subscriptions to conservation magazines, and recreational and hobby equipment make unique presents. Gifts like these are suitable for everyone on your shopping list, even the man who has everything.

A MAJOR concern of this year's Eco-Holiday program is the Christmas tree. Stripped of its holiday trappings, the tree becomes a trash problem that often confounds the best efforts of community collection and disposal systems. One common disposal method of burying trees in a sanitary landfill can use up huge amounts of valuable space.

The Ohio EPA suggests that cut Christmas trees could be chipped by municipalities for use as mulch. The pine chips, which sell in garden centers for 75 percent per cubic foot, retain ground moisture, control weeds, and can be used in parks or distributed to homeowners. Last year, at the suggestion of the Ohio EPA, more than 50 communities undertook a tree chipping program.

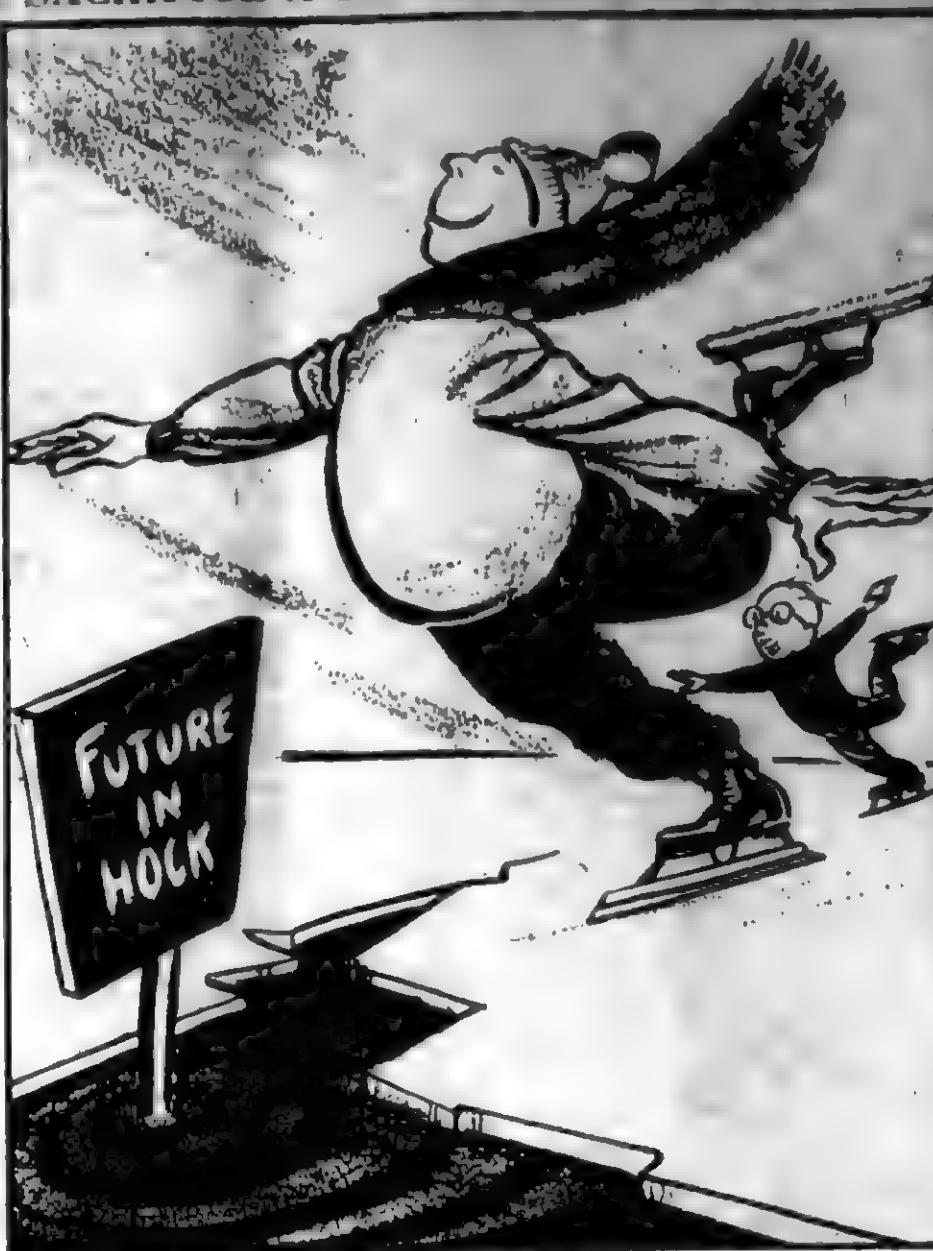

A SECOND Eco-Holiday suggestion is to purchase a live tree that can be planted in the yard when the holidays are past. To give your tree a good start, keep it well watered, prepare the planting site, and keep it indoors no more than five days.

After the tree is planted, assemble the family and take a group picture. It's a tradition that can continue for years to come, as you gauge tree and family growth.

After the holidays, save non-perishable decorations and wrapping for next year. Keep this year's card collection for next year's decorating needs. If you find yourself with a surplus of non-returnable gifts, donate them to a local charity, children's home, or veteran's group.

Fill this holiday season with memories your family will cherish for years to come.

A PACKET of information filled with Eco-Holiday ideas and with detailed instructions for making 18 gift and decorating items, all made out of scrap materials, is available free of charge from the Ohio EPA Public Interest Center, Box 1049, Columbus, Ohio, 43216.

TIME TO SLOW DOWN

The energy crisis has begun to add real meaning to an old word in our vocabulary which, even though it may be understood, has not been experienced by a majority of Americans. The word is sacrifice.

We have demanded (and gotten) immediacy both in our work and play. If we don't have the cash, we demand instant credit. If we can't get the color or style of a particular item in one place, we move on to another to shop.

While we have been busily shopping for today, the public till at the federal, state, and local levels has been over-extended as if there wasn't any tomorrow.

Let's include the word sacrifice in our public and private vocabularies for 1974. Rather than insisting on instant solutions by putting future generations even more into hock than we have been, let's slow down a bit and be prepared to sacrifice here and there.

Urge the legislators at federal, state, and local levels, to establish priorities on projects requiring your tax money, and eliminate those which can be effectively accomplished by private initiative.

You know, we might enjoy the change and future generations will appreciate it too!

God With Us Means Christmas

By Lois L. Sherend

THE SPIRIT of Christmas is in the air and it's very contagious, the first symptom of being infected is that, "good-will among men" feeling.

What the heavenly angels sang about we can also sing, for in three short words the angelic messenger described the miracle of the manger, as "God with us," for "In Him dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily" Col. 2:9.

OUT WONDER grows as we stand amazed before the manger, this small, new born infant doesn't look like the Omnipresent, Omniscient, Omnipotent God but that's what the Holy Writ says He is. "A V-A virgin...shall bring forth a son and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, "God with us" Mat. 1:23.

God with us, turned the world upside-down for He brought a new redemptive revelation of God, and opened the doors and rent the veil to make an access to God by a new and living Way for all the sons and daughters of Adam. For the birth of Jesus Christ is the greatest event ever known and all the facts of history cannot compare in importance with the Advent of our Lord and Saviour, who made our earth His visited planet.

The one unchanging doctrine of the Bible is that Jesus in His incarnate appearance among men was, "God's only begotten Son" which was revealed at Bethlehem, for without a doubt God became Man at Bethlehem.

WE TOUCHED Him, we looked upon Him, our brother full of grace and truth. He bridged the gulf for us, He stepped down to our level. He didn't reach down from a majestic throne in pious condescension to our humble needs but He did this; "He emptied Himself." He gave up His heavenly glory and came down and moved in among us.

He understands our feelings, He shares our sorrows and cares, He knows what it is to be tempted, He knows what it is to be hated and misunderstood. He like us suffered physical pain and more than all else, we didn't think much of Him-for "We esteemed Him not" Isa. 53:3.

THE WORD made flesh was GOD reaching down to lift our burdens, forgive our sins and walk beside us as friend and Saviour.

The mystery of the incarnation remains and it's the greatest paradox imaginable. It makes a servant of men out of the Ruler of the universe. It places the Creator in a crib. It puts a here not there in experience of the Omnipresent. The mighty Creator of the universe became subject to all things He created. The One who stored earth's granary became hungry and He who built homes for birds and beasts, found for Himself no resting place!

"He died upon a cross of wood, Yet made the hill on which it stood." He was born in a manger, is a fact, but has He been born in you? "It is Christ in you, that is your hope of glory" Col. 1:37. Has "God with us" become "Christ in you"?

Volunteers Needed In Many Programs

Volunteers are needed to assist with the COTA senior citizen registration program beginning January 2nd. This is a daytime placement opportunity from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The registration centers are located in several areas of the community-you may be placed at one closest to your home.

If you have considered being a "Significant other" in the lives of teenage boys and girls call the Volunteer Action Center to find out the details of several programs.

These placements have flexible hours; however, in most of them you must be at least 18 years of age.

Orientation programs are being planned for January.

A special area of the Columbus Public Schools is in need of a secretary and a typist. This placement is during the day, weekdays.

Are you 60 years of age or older? Do you live in Franklin County? Do you have some time to give to your community? Do you enjoy meeting people and helping someone else? If the answers to these questions are "Yes" the Retired Senior Volunteer Program is tailor-made for you.

Call the Volunteer Action Center and ask about these various programs, 228-7306.

Birthright Recognizes Residents For Activity

Mrs. John Hoelker and Mrs. Bruce Whitacre recently received certificates of recognition for the Respect Life Observance.

They were honored because of their dedication and belief in the dignity of life and the contribution they make to the community through Birthright of Columbus.

In early 1972 Mrs. Hoelker and a few volunteers began the groundwork for the founding of Birthright of Columbus.

In April 1972 the volunteers began their work helping girls and women with problem pregnancies. Birthright offers all alternatives to abortion.

Because of the dedication and enthusiasm of Mrs. Hoelker, President, and Mrs. Whitacre, Vice-President, and other volunteers, Birthright is successful. It is an everyday operation and the volunteers need the guidance of the two officers in getting medical, psychiatric, or legal aid for the clients. In some cases, material help is needed, or perhaps a temporary home.

Enlisting volunteers and conducting training sessions are other important duties of the two women. Their home phones ring constantly as their advice is needed in many situations.

Because Birthright is a phone-in service, it is necessary to have a volunteer's phone number on the phone tape every day of the year.

Mrs. Hoelker's and Mrs. Whitacre's names are frequently on the tape and they are busy at all times with clients.

Anyone interested in knowing about Birthright may call the Birthright number, 221-0644. Speakers are available, and new volunteers are welcome.

Winter Weather Hazardous

Winter weather may soon turn Ohio roads into danger zones, State Highway Safety Director Pete O'Grady has warned and drivers will need to adjust speed accordingly.

The first and best defense against snowy, icy and slushy roads is to slow down,"

O'Grady said. "Lower speed will help the driver keep control of the car and prevent dangerous skids."

The highway safety director said drivers should be most cautious while driving on bridges and underpasses, since these areas frequently harbor patches of ice not found on the rest of the road.

O'Grady offered the following tips for safer winter driving:

Keep car in top mechanical condition. Brakes should work well; windshield wiper blades should be replaced if necessary; exhaust system must be free from defects.

Snow tires and chains offer better traction in deep snow or ice. Studded tires are legal in Ohio from November 15 to March 15.

Avoid sudden changes of speed that could cause a skid on ice or snow. If a skid develops, turn the front wheels in the direction of the skid. Break gently or not at all until the car is under control.

Wear safety belts and harnesses on all trips. They're a motorist's best means of keeping a minor accident from becoming a major one.

"A properly-equipped car and careful, slow driving can lessen the dangers of Ohio's winter weather and the road conditions it produces," O'Grady remarked.

SBA Approvals Hit High Mark

Frank D. Ray, Director of the Columbus District Office of the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA), has announced approval of 46 loans for a total of $3,627,432 in the 45 northwest, central and southern Columbus District counties during the month of November.

Ray said that 32 of the approvals were regular business loans for a total of $3,571,582. Franklin County led the list with 30 loans, including 12 business loans for $1,195,000. Disaster loans to home and business owners in four counties totaled $225,850.

Ray noted that most of the 193 SBA business loans included in the five month total have been made under the bank guarantee program in which private financial institutions provide the funds, with SBA guaranteeing repayment.

"Our financial assistance capability, making more money available to more small businesses, is multiplied by the enthusiastic participation of the banking community in Ohio."

Human Goals Training Planned By U.S. Navy

The Navy Human Goals Training Plan has been signed, tasking the Chief of Naval Education and Training (CNET) with implementation of a human goals training curriculum.

This plan outlines the basic training criteria for all personnel who volunteer for consultant and instructor billets in the human goal program areas, which include race relations, equal opportunity, organizational development and management, intercultural relations, and drug and alcohol education and control.

Current training has been expanded at Recruit Training Commands, Officer Candidate School and other officer source schools. This training will provide personnel entering the naval service with the basic knowledge of the Navy Human Goals programs and policies.

To further enable middle grade enlisted personnel of the Navy to understand the programs and policies set by the Navy Human Goals Plan, a leadership and management course will be offered, commencing April 15, 1973. Emphasis in this program of instruction will be on problem identification and solving as it relates to efficiency of command operations.

To ensure that all Human Goals program areas are staffed with quality personnel, a curriculum has been developed to provide common core training to both male and female officers and senior enlisted. This course is built around those management skills that will enable graduates to assist the chain of command in implementing the Navy Human Goals Plan.

PLAYGROUND

Win Battle For Sign

WEST COLUMBUS—The parents of children attending John Burroughs Elementary School, 2585 Sullivant Ave., won their fight to get a playground sign put up next to the school. The parents felt the school crossing signs weren't sufficient to warn drivers. The parents, lead by the PTA, also registered their concern for drivers obeying school patrols. There is a law with a $25 fine for running a patrol flag but this is not taught in drivers education and is not in the driver's manual. The Columbus Council of PTAs passed a resolution to show support for teaching students in drivers education about obeying school patrol flags and having something in the Ohio Driver's Manual about obeying patrol flags. Shown here admiring the new sign are Don Deity, Vicky Talmadge, Mary Johnson, Helen Miesse, Juanita Ord and Principal Don England. Others who helped to get the sign are Howard Wilson, safety director for the school system; Truman Allison, traffic engineer; and Jim Davis, chief engineer of operations.

Lincoln Baptist Shares Bounty

Lincoln Village—A free turkey dinner with all the trimmings will be served this Sunday, Dec. 16, at noon at Lincoln Baptist Church. The dinner is part of the day long celebration called "Matthew Sunday".

The day will begin at 9:30 a.m. with the Sunday School Christmas Program in the sanctuary followed by the worship service at 10:45 a.m. Then at 12:00 the dinner will be served to all those who attended the Sunday School hour.

Preparations are being made by members of the church under the direction of Mrs. Betty Goudy, Mrs. Gloria Daum and Mrs. Marilyn Handford. Approximately 500 people will be served at each sitting. All members are encouraged to bring their relatives, friends and neighbors to share in the family Christmas dinner at Lincoln Baptist.

After the Christmas dinner everyone is invited to stay and visit just as long as they like.

T.V. will be provided so that the men will not miss their football game. There will be films and games for the children and a surprise gift will also come to visit Lincoln Baptist Church.

For the nibblers after the meal the cooks will provide left-over turkey throughout the afternoon.

The idea for Matthew Sunday is based on the account of Matthew's conversion as told in the ninth chapter of Matthew's Gospel. There it states that as Jesus was in the house sitting at the dinner table a good many other people came on the scene and joined him and his disciples. (Matthew 9:10 Phillips Translation) So the members of Lincoln Baptist like Matthew extend an invitation to all to come and share with them the good things of Christ.

For further information or reservations for the dinner please call 878-5695.

Huntington National Bank Name Change Due In 1974

The Huntington National Bank of Columbus will change its name early in 1974 to the Huntington Midland National Bank of Columbus, according to an announcement made by Arthur D. Herrmann, president of the $788 million-asset bank operating 29 offices in Franklin County.

The move is part of a statewide name change to Midland Banks for the 12-member banks of Huntington Bancshares, an Ohio based registered bank holding company in which Huntington National is the lead bank.

The Corporation also announced its proposed name change to the Huntington Midland Corporation.

HUNTINGTON Bancshares with $1.3 billion-asset is the sixth largest bank holding company in Ohio and the first to adopt a unified name for its member banks. Huntington operates 75 offices throughout the state and an off-shore office in the Bahamas.

The announcement of the unified corporate identification program was made at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the affiliated banks. The name change will be proposed to shareholders for ratification the first quarter of 1974.

"Complete corporate unification is essential to our organizations' future growth, development and profitability," said

Bancshares president Clair E. Fultz.

TOTAL support for the name change of the 107-year old Huntington National Bank of Columbus was expressed by Herrmann.

"We are in enthusiastic agreement with the proposed name change to Midland Bank, as it relates to our own bank and to our customers, and also to the goals of the Corporation," said Herrmann.

"The easily identifiable Midland Bank name will extend the marketing impact of the Corporation across the state, help us to achieve system-wide efficiencies and enable us to retain our leadership among the Ohio banking community," said Herrmann.

HUNTINGTON office signs, marketing programs and other identification will begin to reflect the change to Midland Bank early in 1974 in conjunction with the statewide implementation of the unified identification program.

Affiliated with Huntington Bancshares and affected by the change in addition to the Columbus bank are The Washington Savings Bank, Washington Court House; The Savings Bank Company, Chillicothe; The Farmers Bank and Trust Company, Ashland; The Bank of Wood County Company, Bowling Green; Lagonda National Bank, Toledo; First National Bank and Trust Company, Lima; The Woodville State Bank, Woodville; The Portage National Bank, Kent; The First National Bank, Wadsworth; and the First National Bank, Kenton.

Employment Services To Meet Dec. 13

The Central Ohio Employment Service Association COESA, will hold their monthly meeting at the Worthington Inn Dec. 13, at 5:30 p.m. An approximate anticipated attendance is 85-100 consisting of owners, managers and employment

For the first time in the history of the association, the entire meeting will be devoted to the education of its members on the common problems facing its industry.

The Theme of this month's meeting is "Advertising and the Applicant"

Firewood Is Now Important

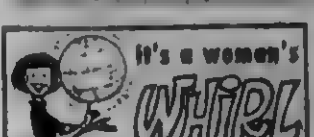

With less energy available this winter, more families may rely on firewood as a supplemental heating source.

Among the better fireplace woods are hickory, oak, ash, and hard maple. Hickory and oak are the best heat producers. A cord of hickory or oak produces more heat than a ton of coal.

If you want action in the fireplace, osageorange and mulberry make things happen. Both burn well but spark, pop, and crack. A fine mesh screen is needed if either is used.

Families who use the fireplace each day may want to purchase a cord of wood to begin the season. If the fireplace is used only weekends, a smaller amount will be sufficient. An accurate measurement of a cord of wood is stacked wood 4 feet high, 4 feet wide, and 8 feet long. Since the length of a piece of wood may vary from 18 to 24 inches, depending on what the user wants, you may or may not get a full measurement.

For the most part, a fireplace isn't a very efficient home heating system. An ordinary fireplace will deliver only a 10th of the heating value of the wood to a room, with the rest going up the chimney. Too, when the fireplace is not being used, the damper should be closed (after all coals are dead) to prevent loss of heat out from your regular heating system.

by MARY LEE THOMPSON

No doubt about it, a freezer can save you time and money when you take advantage of in-season products and special sales. But good planning is needed to gain all the benefits and avoid some of the problems you could have with freezing food.

For example, foods vary in the degree of temperature and moisture needed to retain their fresh quality. So, keep a thermometer handy to check your refrigerator and freezer for proper temperatures. Refrigerators should be below 40 degrees F., and freezer units should be maintained at zero degrees.

According to the Food & Drug Administration and Agriculture Department, food begins to thaw and cannot be safely held for any length of time over 10 degrees above zero. In the regular part of the refrigerator, meat should not be held over five days. However, in the freezer at zero degrees meat can be held for several months or longer, depending on type and cut.

In case of electrical power failure, do not open the freezer unless absolutely necessary. If it has been properly operated, food should keep for about 24 hours if freezer is not opened. You may safely refreeze most thawed foods if they still contain ice crystals or if they are still about 40 degrees and have been held at this temperature no longer than one or two days after thawing.

If you are going to buy large portions of meat such as a quarter or half of beef, keep in mind that there is a substantial loss in trimming. For instance, a quarter of beef weighing 125 pounds could trim out to about 87 pounds. So figure cost per pound on the trimmed meat.

Next, be sure to wrap meat properly for freezing. Wrappings should be sealed carefully to keep natural moisture in and air out.

WITH MUDDY SHOES

RATHER than make you sit through hours of all-day viewing, I'll tell you of my vacation. Having fished and hunted from Manitoba to the Amazon, I have started to try to fill in the states, provinces and countries unknown to me. It's like trying to collect a complete set of stamps or coins, the farther you go, the tougher the collecting gets.

Through the 1960's, I fished up and down the east and west coasts of Florida. Earlier in life, I had tramped the beaches of Nag's Head and the rest of North Carolina.

In between lay the mysteries of South Carolina and Georgia. 1973 was the year to see the "Low Country" of South Carolina. While in the hospital for a short stay this spring, I was roomate with a man who had found an island off the coast of Carolina to his liking.

It was called Hilton Head Island. Just a few miles north of Savannah, Georgia, Hilton Head boasted every possible type of fresh and salt water fishing found the Atlantic coastland.

Jamming my family in the station wagon, I drove down to Hilton Head where I had Joe Holley of the Hilton Head Company waiting to prove his brag of good fishing. Having had my fill of dredged and canaled developments in Florida (knowing now that they are ruining the water table of the Everglades).

TSWORE I would not stay at the Head if I found the same condition, I was not to be disappointed. Less than ten per cent of the beautiful island had been changed by dozers.

The original live oaks, strung with great grey fronds of spanish moss, were evidence that nothing had changed for many years. Great piles of shells were in evidence that had been placed there by the original inhabitants - the Indians.

THE ISLAND was a veritable paradise of wildlife. Alligators swirled in the ponds and bass and trout took many styles of artificials and live baits. For the golfers there are nine courses to choose and championship tennis was viewed by tv watchers from the Head in September.

For the less than athletic types, there are many fine restaurants serving every delight in seafood, with the shrimpboats just thirty feet outside the restaurant window.

History is easy to study in that low country. Forts and ports still stand as a reminder of our colorful past.

Not too far away is Boone Plantation where a large part of the movie Gone With the Wind was filmed. Although many of the properties on Hilton Head are built for private occupancy, rental rates are available.

Each May, a billfishing tournament is held and in 1973, 17 record marlin were brought into the quiet of Harbor Town, Hilton Head, South Carolina.

Music Keyed At Holiday

THE NEW Holiday Inn-OSU, is currently a two ring circus. No matter what your musical tastes may be, you'll find them one of the two lounges at the Holiday Inn-OSU. In the first floor Heritage Lounge, Rick Walker is presenting some pretty, pretty music with his organ and vocal moods.

Playing for your dining pleasure as well as for casual conversation over cocktails, Rick is one of the best I've heard in these parts.

His total approach, be it singing or keyboard offerings, is to provide beautiful music in such a manner that is entertaining, yet not over powering. It's there if you want it, or you can tune him out if you prefer to talk.

However, not many people can tune him out. Not because of volume, but Rick is super as a musician and singer. The tones and sounds he produces while playing on the revolving stage is simply amazing. A stylist is every sense if the word, you just won't believe the beautiful music Rick creates with his complicated electronic equipment.

Even without the addition of electronic drums, harmonica and such, Rick makes the electric organ sound like an entire orchestra. The music you hear is well worth the trip to the Heritage Lounge of the Holiday Inn-OSU. But wait until you hear him sing. Again, it is beauty in rare form. Rick has a nice easy-going, smooth style with a great sound. His phrasing and approach is first rate professional.

Coming to the Holiday Inn form his home in Knoxville, Rick has turned out to be a worthy import from south of the Mason Dixon Line. I could listen to him all night, relaxed and in a happy frame of mind. For you lovers of good music, and I do mean music, make sure you catch Rick Walker in the Heritage Lounge between now and Dec. 22. Rick performs between 6 p.m. and 11 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Paper Highway Sophisticated

After listening to Rick, then head to the eleventh floor University Lounge and catch the sophisticated music of Paper Highway. This is a quartet that has a blend of othe old, new and contemporary, ending up with a classic approach to all of the music.

With John Dihenes on drums, Bobby Stevens on bass, trumpet and violin, John Miller at the organ and also sax and flute, and Bob Jeffrey playing guitar, you have four talented men who are outstanding musicals and vocalists.

Yet none of them tries to overshadow the other, and show off their talents. Paper Highway is a group, and these four fellows play as one. It is a strong, tightly knit unit.

With amplified bass, guitar and organ, you might expect them to be loud, as is true with so many outfits.

Not true. Paper Highway has created a perfect combination vocal and instrumental volume and harmonies. These four fellows sure know the meaning of entertainment, that's for sure.

Their vocal harmony is closer than a four bladed shave. Presenting a good variety of music along with pacing that keeps things moving all the time, Paper Highway's music is excellent for dancing or enjoyable listening.

If you are wondering how they got the name, "Paper Highway," it's from the movie, "Cabin in the Sky," and means the long troublesome road that men must travel to achieve their goals in life. I can assure you Paper Highway has achieved their goal, that of being top notch professional entertainers.

Paul Click At

Howard Johnson

Stopped in at the new Howard Johnson's the other evening, and spent an enjoyable hour or so listening to Paul Click entertain. Paul plays piano and sings. Both are done by Paul with gusto and a flair for showmanship. His vocal stylings, alone, makes him an outstanding performer. He sings with so much dynamics, that you just sit there waiting to hear more and more. Owning a big, full sound, Paul incorporates a strong individual attack. Not only is his voice big and full, it is also very pleasing to the ear.

Add his voice to his musical library and you end up with a high class country and western entertainer. His voice, of a quality and musical approach reminds me of Jerry Lee Lewis.

JUST REMEMBER one thing, there is as much difference as night and day between country and western and plain old and out hillbilly music. Paul does the best material of the C&W idiom. Be it a ballad or a up tune, he handles them all with charm, the end result being vocals that satisfy. I'm not a great lover of much of the C&W music or performers, but there are some gems in each category. Paul is one example, and the music he plays and sings is the best in the field.

Accompanying himself on piano that is played with a style that is similar to the old fashioned gritty bar room keyboard, Paul makes plenty of good music. His black and white soles keeps things stirred up in the lounge at the New Howard Johnson's on Stringtown Road.

His keyboard approach is a good mixture of bar room and country and western sounds. His music as well as his singing is lively, fun and entertaining. Even the slow numbers are pure toe tappers.

Paul is versatile, while his main music is C&W, he throws in old standards, like "I Left My Heart in San Francisco," for nice change of pace.

New to the Columbus area, Paul is not new to entertainment. He has worked with the Grand Ole Opry and was the personal accompanist for Jean Sheppard. He also has a record which has met with some success, "He'll Have To Go."

To sum it all up, Paul Click is a must for your entertainment schedule. His voice, his piano stylings and his songs are a sure fire delectable smorgasbord of entertainment.

Skiping Around Town

Remember Joe Bechara, who use to own and operate the Moulin La Rouge? Ran into him the other evening at the Charleston Club. Joe tells me that he was in town to put together another night club. The only thing he would tell me is that it will open around March on East Broad St., near his old place. Will try to pry more from him the next time I talk with him. Another new spot that's about to open is Sirocco, a new supper club on the east side, on Hamilton Rd., across from Eastland Shopping Center. The place was designed to Earl Stewart & Associates. That right there tells me that the place has to be beautiful. This firm specializes in restaurants, lounges and supper clubs. Sirocco means the wind that blows from the Mediterranean across the boot of Italy. Earl Stewart & Associates has captured this Italian theme and it is reflected throughout the interior of the restaurant. The theme is highlighted by the front walls resembling the Roman Coliseum with its arches and stone. Opalescent glass fills the arches lending beautiful warm colors to the area. The back dining room overlooks a relaxing mall area which is dramatically lighted and the front dining room can be easily converted into private party rooms. The hex shaped sunken bar with raised lounge gives you an excellent view of the stage and dance floor. Sirocco will serve steaks, chops and Italian specialties. Knowing the owners, I can assure you, the food will be fantastic. Mrs. about Sirocco later. The New Scioto Inn is doing a good business. The people love the place, including the group Easy Feelings, featuring John Pond. Plan on stopping in during these busy holidays. I promise you, that you'll have a barrel to fun... Something new in music stores has just opened at Eastland Shopping Center. Called Eastland Keyboard Center, the stores sells keyboard instruments only. Owned and managed by Steve Dyer, a graduate in musical education at OSU, Steve has a full line of all types of keyboard instruments with complete teaching facilities. Steve and all of his staff are experts in their field. This week at Lincoln Lodge you'll find two boys who are knocking them dead. Overly & O'Connor is the name of the duo. They sing well, have excellent instrumental numbers and do lots of comedy. Take my advice and head out to Lincoln Lodge this week. It's a fun twosome.

Kings Island Will Open Lion Country

Ed McHale, General Manager, of Kings Island Amusement Park has announced the opening of the New Lion Country Safari at Kings Island in April of 1974.

McHale said park guests will board an on-the-ground monorail system on the northern edge of the park to tour the 110 acre animal preserve.

He said the air conditioned monorail system was chosen to provide both maximum safety and maximum viewing capabilities for the patrons. Unlike the four other Lion Country preserves, there will be no auto traffic here, McHale said.

The specially constructed monorail system will travel over a two-mile track that has been designed to give the viewer the best "animal show" possible. The ride, during the park's season, is expected to take about 20 minutes.

The monorail trains will stop frequently so passengers may take photographs of the animals in their near-natural habitat.

In all, about 800 wild African animals will be contained in the area next spring. The preserve will be operated as another attraction of Kings Island during the park's season and as a separate attraction during the off-season. Located along I-71 north of Cincinnati, the Kings Island complex consists of the theme park, motor inn, campground and two 18-hole golf courses.

Worthington vs Westerville

A BACKWARD PASS by Westerville's Ed Cola, in white, went into Worthington's sharpshooter Don Brough, who then managed to take the ball and go basketward for another two-point in the Cards 53-52 OCC win. (Worthington-Westerville photos by Ray Adams.)

East vs West

ONCE AGAIN it was West's quick Wes Redd (10) in action as he heads around East's No. 25 Philip Nixon. Redd played his usual outstanding floor game but East's height and all-around marksmanship was West's downfall. (East-West photos by Craig Weaver.)

Worthington vs Westerville

A THREE-LEGGED Westerville player fought for this rebound against Worthington in the Cards 53-52 win in an OCC game last Friday at the Cat gym. It wasn't a trick by the camera but somewhere in the action one leg of a Cat player disappeared. The No. 44 is Dwight Nader while Cards players are Mark Kline (31) and Don Brough (51).

Season A Long One

Upsets Mark Weekend Of Odd Cage Bounces

By Sandy Schwartz
Spectator Sports Writer

SO YOU SAY that you are going to play it safe this year and just lay the dough on the favorites of these area schoolboy roundball races. The advice is "Don't post up!"

After just finishing the third week of high action things look tangled and twisted and most of those favorites are saying, "What happened?"

Take the City League as a supreme example where Walnut Ridge was the clear choice. The Scots dropped a 67-57 decision to unheralded Whetstone last week prompting Ridge coach Jack Moore to say, "We just couldn't find the basket."

Northland a solid contender dropped its initial outing to defending South and West a team mentioned quite often in champ talk took it on the chin to East 66-59.

Eastmoor, 95-57 victor over North, now looks to be for real in that confused City Circuit.

"Red" Courtney's Warriors placed six men in double figures in that North route. Pete Liptrop led the parade with 18 followed by Dave Potter (14), Bob Pounds (11), Steve Manning (11), Brian Stertzer (10), and Tim Kauffman (10).

Mini Kauffman, not so mini anymore at 5-9 155, is the cool cookie at the helm of this Warrior offense not to mention his hounding works on defense.

THIS full-court pressuring defense of Eastmoor has just become a recent trademark of the Courtney quintet. Front line subs continuing the pace are Rob Hunter and Jody Hurt in the backcourt and Parris Gaston in the front line.

Kauffman's ball wizardry usually finds classy Stertzer in the corner or Potter, a jumping jack who could some day jump out of the gym, under the hoop.

That Ohio Capital Conference race has Whitehall, coming fresh from its 49-43 slapping of league favorite Mt. Vernon, sitting alone atop the loop while Worthington overcame its bout with turnoveritis to nip Westerville 53-52 and Westland outshot Gahanna 45-41 to remain a game behind the Rams.

THE CENTRAL Catholic League race began as anticipated last week with Ready bombing DeSales but the Silver Knights dropped a Saturday date with Cincinnati Elder to drop their record to 2-3. The big challenge comes Friday night as Hartley invites Ready to a shoot-out. Other key action and sharpshooters last week saw Reynoldsburg drop an OCC'er to Delaware 70-56. Ed Williams canned 23 in the losing effort. Jim Cuthbert, Mike Riggs and Greg Spellman popped double figures in that Westland win.

Terry Burris was again the big star in the Whitehall win which saw the Rams outscore Mt. Vernon 22-9 in the final stanza. Burris outdueled all-state candidate Ted Williams dropping in 23 points and grabbing 11 rebounds. Bill Besalski helped with 16.

HARTLEY outpointed St. Charles 56-53 in the CCL as Mark McNally, Ron White and Mike Gilliland all hit twin digits for the Hawks. Eric Stinson (18), and Mike Hausfield (20) paced St. Charles.

Franklin Heights popped Orlentangy in the Metro League while a last second layup by Mark Liefeld gave Bexley a one point win over Groveport in a Mid-Eight opener.

NEXT WEEK'S slate finds a full set of games as City League action has West at Eastmoor and South at Walnut Ridge in the double Friday feature. Other Friday action sees East hosting upset minded Whetstone.

In Ohio Capital Conference action Whitehall entertains eager Westerville in the biggy while Gahanna travels to Worthington, Mt. Vernon to Reynoldsburg and Westland to Delaware.

Central Catholic League warfare has St. Charles visiting Watterson to compliment that Ready Hartley scrap.

Bexley and Urbana tangle in Bexley in the Mid-Eight while Franklin Heights trucks to West Jefferson in the Metro League.

Saturday night shooting sees Eastmoor at Whetstone, Walnut Ridge at Linden and East at South in City League games. In Non-League action Ready will jaunt to Middletown to face Monroe while St. Charles hustles to Zanesville to keep an engagement with Rosecrans.

AREA ACTION finds Worthington at Grove City and Bexley at Grandview.

Wildlife Conservation Stamp

Ohio's non-hunters and non-fisherman, along with sportsman, can contribute to the preservation of the state's natural heritage by buying an Ohio Wildlife Conservation Stamp, and Natural Resources Director William B. Nye suggests the stamp makes an interesting holiday gift.

"The Wildlife Conservation Stamp makes a unique Christmas gift," said Nye, "and it gives Ohioans an opportunity to help us in our efforts to protect non-game species and to improve the land and its resources."

THE STAMP, which costs $5, portrays a pair of Cardinals on a snow covered pine tree branch against a sky-blue background. It was designed from an original painting. When the original plates were ceremoniously broken, Ohio's first Wildlife stamp became a collector's item. For holiday giving, the stamp is mounted on the inside of an attractive greeting card. There also is a message about the purpose of the stamp.

"Sportsman finance most of our conservation activities through their purchase of hunting and fishing licenses," said Nye. Those interested in nature studies, hiking and photography should also have an opportunity to contribute to the effort.

That's why the wildlife stamp was created. "By purchasing the stamp for themselves, or as a gift for someone, Ohioans can show their personal commitment to our conservation efforts," Nye said.

The stamps with the special Christmas card is now available. They can be purchased by sending a $5 check to any one of the five Wildlife District offices. Checks should be made payable to the Division of Wildlife. Phone orders will not be accepted. The stamps also can be ordered from the Publication Center, Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Columbus, Ohio 43224.

Winter Fishing Derby

Late fall fishing for Northern Pike and Yellow perch is expected to be good for Central Ohio anglers at Indian Lake. The shallow marsh areas located on the North side of the lake should produce some fine catches of Northern Pike. Sand bars and other sandy bottomed areas should prove productive for both Northern and yellow perch.

As a bonus to anglers, the Indian Lake Fish and Game Club is sponsoring their third annual Winter Fishing Derby. A total of $60 in prizes will be awarded for fish caught between December 1, 1973 and March 1, 1974. Ten dollar prizes will be awarded for the heaviest fish caught in each of the following categories: Largemouth Bass, Bluegill, Crappie, Walleye, Northern Pike and the largest fish of any species not listed previously. Official weighing stations are located at the Indian Lake State Park Office, Flemings Landing and Stephenson's Bait and Tackle.

Gymnastics Team Loses At Boardman

The Worthington High School boys and girls gymnastics teams traveled to Youngstown Boardman recently for their first competition to the year but could not overcome the opposition's effort.

The Boardman boys outscored Worthington 102 to 90, but good performances were given by the Cards in long-horse vaulting and floor exercises. Torn Atha took second in long-horse vaulting with 6.6, and Dave Shaner placed third with 6.15.

In floor exercises Mike Emrich placed second with 5.5, and team captain Jeff Litteral took third with 4.8. Jeff Milburn and Litteral tied for third place on the horizontal bars with 3.8.

On trampoline, Emerich took third with 5.1, and Rex Birkmire, on rings grabbed a third place with 4.2.

Although the girls put together a fine effort, their best was not enough as Boardman defeated them 80 to 63. Sherry Rice placed third in vaulting with 6.4 and third in the beam with 5.6.

Each of the team members, Debbie White, Sharon Alley, Jill Roth and Sherry Rice, competed in all four events: floor exercises, bars, vaulting and the beam.

WINTERIZE YOUR CAR

Are you ready for winter? Make sure your tires are in good condition, anti-freeze is in the car, brakes and exhaust system are working smoothly, and check your battery fluid. Highway Safety Director Pete O'Grady says get in tune NOW with a tune-up and a safety check.

Capital Looms Strong With Balanced Effort

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Spectator Sports Writer
THAT'S SOME Chick they've got over at Capital University.

That Chick, we're referring to is slumped down cage coach Vince Chickarella, Chick has just welcomed in a new basketball season, his sixth as roundball boss at the Beasley campus, and he collected this 100th coaching victory Saturday night with a 68-53 win over Point Park College.

Entering the season with an amazing 98-26 won lost slate Chickarella, ranks third among the nation's small college coaches.

AND IT should be a whole new story this season the way Chickarella describes it. Losing Scott Weekly and small college All-American Mike Stumpf due to graduation, Chick is streaming patience with this edition of Crusader basketball.

"We expect to improve as the campaign goes along," he answered when questioned about this team's chances. "I think we can be in the thick of things by tournament time."

HEADING the elite group of Cap bouncers will be the only holdover from last year, Co-Captain Gene Gaslin, known around the Crusader barracks as "Go Go Geno."

Eastmoor High grad Gaslin is a slick ball-handling sharp eyed 6-2 shooter who averaged just a notch under 10 points a game last year (9.9) for Cap co-championship team. "He's had a very fine preseason and he should be one of the best guards in the conference," Chickarella confidently says.

"Red" Kalk looks to be the starter along side Gaslin in the backcourt. Kalk is a bit of a surprise to the Cap onlookers and with his speed personable Chick says, "We will be quicker than last year and that should help us."

A PAIR of area quickies will be adding depth to the backcourt. Six-four Walnut Ridge graduate Brett Little and 6-0 Whitehall product Dave Steele will be ready for action. Chickarella clues, "Stelle has good speed and moves," while he labels Little as a man of "Hustle and determination."

Co-Captain Vic Wolfe, a 6-6 Gahanna Lincoln grad, looks to have the lock on one of the forward slots while senior Denny Dickensheets junior letterman Mark Shaw and soph John Drews battle it out for the other forward slot.

FINDING a sturdy steady for that center spot that Stumpf vacated seems to be the main worry around the Cap gym right now. Freshman Pat Moeller from Grove City is making a run for much playing time but 6-4 Linden McKinley product Tommy James will probably get first crack.

A couple of area grads who've made impressions on Chickarella are Eastmoor's Gary Powell and Beasley's Knell Costello. Both are transfer students and Costello will become eligible in January while Powell will have to sit it out until next year.

AREA FROSH raising eyebrows are 6-4 forward Carl Kraft from Beasley; Dave Cecutti, a Waterson grad and Terry Grady, a Hartley finisher.

Its tough to figure when Chick says, "on paper we don't match up as a contender, probably not even a flat division finisher." (You are not deceiving us are you Chick?)

"But we plan to improve, and like I say, we hope to be ready about tournament time," he concluded.

Chickarella labeled about five or six as contenders to take the Ohio Conference marbles. Other sources also agree saying that the loop would be real balanced from top to bottom.

SCHEDULE WISE, the next home assignment won't be until the December 21-22, Capital City Classic being played in Capital's Alumni Gymnasium. Capital will with Grove City of Pennsylvania after Depauw and West Virginia State tussle in the tourney opener.

And that little holiday tournament over there in that quaint east side gym might just be the right time to find out if that Capital basketball dynasty with Mr. Chickarella, better known as "Mr. Basketball" around Capital, will continue.

BETCHA IT WILL...

birth defects are forever, unless you help.

MARCH OF DIMES

The Ohio Department of Natural Resources opened a 20-mile section of what eventually will be a 50-mile backpack trail at Shawnee State Forest in September, 1973.

Worthington vs Westerville

Brough Caught In Rough

TWO CATS managed to keep this ball from the reach of Worthington's Don Brough, right, but that's about the only one Brough didn't get as he played the boards to perfection for the winning Cards, 52-52. Cats from left are Bryant Myers, Richard Lakeman and Jay Kogley.

"An official wants and needs to hear every point of view on an issue. An eight-cent stamp is a small price to pay for freedom."—John Hudler, The Burlington (Colo.) Record.

"The trouble with moralists is that they want to reform someone according to their ideals."—H. A. Barnhart, The Blair (Holidaysburg, Pa.) Press.

Driving Hints From Auto Club

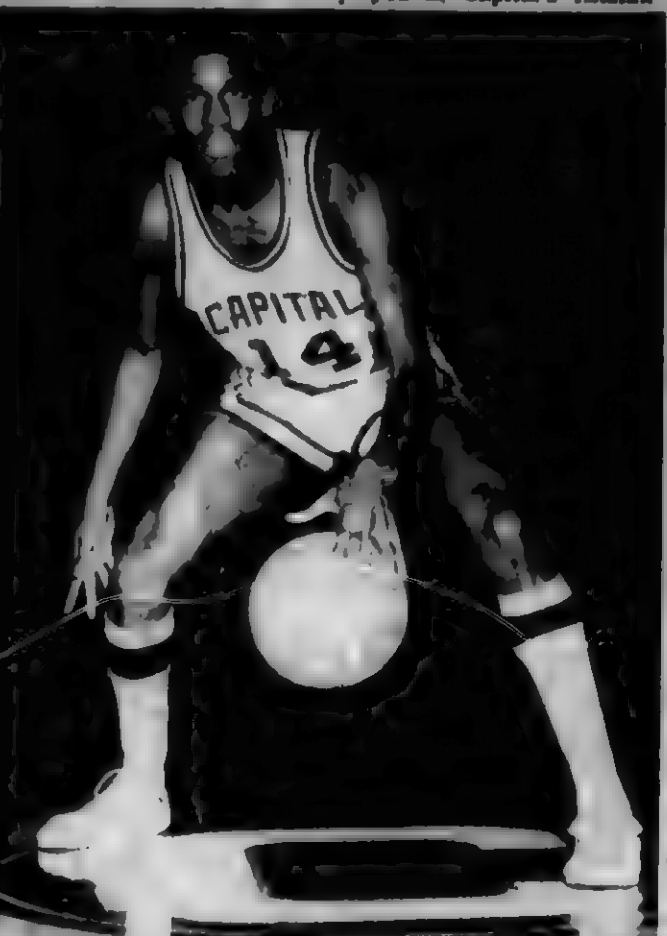

Studies show that the peak accident periods are the morning and evening rush hours, according to the Columbus Auto Club-AAA. Your familiarity with the route to and from work can lull you into a false sense of security setting you up for an accident when the unexpected happens, cautions the Automobile Club.

There is no time for day dreaming while driving a car, says the Columbus Automobile Club-AAA. Failure to pay complete attention to the job of driving is a serious mistake and an underlying cause of many traffic accidents.

All drivers may not agree with every traffic law, says the Columbus Auto Club-AAA, but all drivers are expected to obey these laws. It's a good idea to remind yourself that the basic purpose of traffic laws is to prevent accidents and save lives.

Veterans, Families Questions Answered By VA Officials

EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q - Can I pay more than market value for a home I'd like to buy with a GI loan from the Veterans Administration?

A - Yes, provided you pay the difference in cash between the VA appraisal and the price of the home. The agency cannot approve a loan which exceeds the reasonable value of the home.

Q - Can I use tutorial assistance provided by the Veterans Administration after my GI Bill entitlement expires?

A - No. Unused tutorial assistance expires with GI Bill entitlement.

Q - I draw compensation from the Veterans Administration for a 30 percent disability. Since I will soon be 66 and retired, can I waive compensation and switch to pension?

A - Yes, if you apply to VA and it is to your advantage. VA will make determination based on information you provide, and pay you the higher benefit.

Q - I am a recently discharged veteran with a service connected disability, who'd like to attend college under the Veterans Administration's vocational rehabilitation program. What benefits would I receive? (P.S. I have a wife and child).

A - If you attend full time, you will receive your tuition, fees, books and supplies, plus $248 monthly.

Q - Is there a limit on how much I can pay for a home purchased with a loan guaranteed by the Veterans Administration?

A - No, but there is a limit on the amount of guaranty the agency can have—60 percent, up to a maximum $12,500. Also, the loan cannot exceed VA's appraised value of the property.

Q - Do Veterans Administration hospitals and clinics take care of reservists injured reporting to, or returning from military training?

A - Yes. VA provides medical care for injuries and illnesses which occur during travel time as specified in the reservist's military orders. Both active duty training and inactive duty training are considered active duty, for this purpose.

Q - An explosion killed my son during military service in Vietnam, and his body was never recovered. Will the Veterans Administration provide a memorial marker?

A - Yes. The memorial may be erected in private cemetery in a plot provided by the applicant, or in the memorial section of a national cemetery. Apply to the nearest VA office.

Ohio has four state-owned areas for trail bike riding. They are at Pike State Forest in Pike County, Richland Furnace State Forest in Jackson County, Maumee State Forest Fulton County and Perry Reclamation Area in Perry County.

Brotherhood Photos Will Be On Display

A photographic exhibition candidly portraying brotherhood and a collection of 20 works of art drawn by children from 20 different countries highlight a special December display in the lower level of Columbus Public Library, 66 S. Grant Street.

The outstanding photographic exhibition, a project of the Youth Art Committee of the United Nations International Festival, features photographs taken by Central Ohio school ages who this past summer were asked to focus on brotherhood and through the lens of their cameras capture the universality of human emotions.

display which was previously featured at the UN International Festival held last month at the Fairgrounds was selected on how well it expressed the theme, "With all beings and all things we shall be as relatives" (Sioux Indian proverb).

Entitled "Youth Focuses on Brotherhood," the large display features the black and white prints of children ranging from Grade 4 through High School.

The UNICEF-sponsored children's art show features the impressions of youngsters from around the world in crayon, water colors and pencil.

Six of the featured paintings in the library display are included in the UNICEF book, "Have You Seen A Comet?" This exhibit presents the art of youngsters between the ages of six and fourteen from Martinique, Burma, Tunisia, Israel, Poland, the Netherlands, Sweden, Angola, Japan, Brazil, Swaziland, Hungary, El Salvador, Germany, Senegal, India, Morocco, Austria, Ethiopia and the U.S.

HCC Elects Officers ; Burke President

By KATHY DEVANEY

West Columbus-Homer Burke was elected president of the Hilltop Community Council at the Thursday meeting. Those reelected were Milous Keith as vice-president; Richard Jones as treasurer; and Lois Neff as recording secretary. Mrs. Kay Casan was elected corresponding secretary. The new officers for 1974 were sworn in by guest speaker State Senator Donald L. Woodland.

Woodland's topic was his first 343 days as a state senator.

"The 110th General Assembly has been a very productive one. The lottery was hotly contested; the Vietnam veterans bonus was approved; the first bill in the history of the state was passed creating a minimum wage; bills were passed for workmen's compensation and unemployment compensation.

"Education had top priority and the Assembly appropriated more money for Aid to Education than ever before. This was a percentage increase. Not just an increase in inflated dollars."

Mental health has also been given priority and humanism is on the way, he said.

"Treatment and care in the past has been poor. A great impetus has been placed on mental health. The humanization of the state school and Orient is costing money, but it is well worth it. The changes have been tremendous."

At first Woodland was frustrated by the fact that 1,400 pieces of legislation were introduced but only 15 per cent were passed to become law.

"This is a safeguard because it is not easy to pass laws. It makes one proud to be able to pass the 'acid test' of having a bill passed."

Woodland explained the procedures involved in getting a piece of legislation through.

Before a bill is introduced it must be put in proper form. It is then given to the clerk of the senate for a first reading.

Then it goes to the Rules or Reference Committee which refers it to the proper standing committee.

The sponsor of the bill talks to the committee chairman to try and persuade him of the importance of that particular bill.

The bill is put on the agenda. Hearings are held—at least twice for proponents and twice for opponents.

The bill is voted out of committee with five of nine affirmative votes.

It goes to the Senate Rules Committee where it may never be heard of again. If the chairman wants to kill it, he can.

From there it goes to the floor of the senate. An affirmative vote of 17 of 33 senators must be secured.

The job is then half done. It then goes to the house for the same treatment. Then to the governor.

If the bill is amended in the House it must go back to the Senate. If the changes are not approved the bill goes to a conference committee which tries to work out a compromise bill.

"The process was frustrating at first. But this is democracy in action. Democracy moves at a snail's pace.

"The more people who have a chance to speak about and look at a bill the better the end result will be," he said.

Democracy will survive all the Watergates, he said. "Society has a way of cleaning itself. There may be bad individuals in the government, but the system exposes them."

The next meeting of the Hilltop Community Council will be the second Thursday of January, Jan. 18, at 8 p.m. at Westgate Recreation Center.

(For a picture of the new officers for 1974 see page 14.)

Vocational Aptitude Test To Be Given

Galloway-The Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery (ASVAB) will be given at Westland High School, Tuesday Jan. 15 and Wednesday, Jan. 16, 1974.

This series of tests is designed to measure student interest and possible future ability in a variety of occupational areas.

Any student may take the ASVAB, and it should be emphasized there is no military obligation. The Armed Forces and The Westland Guidance Department are cooperating on this activity. According to Dan Grondon, Westland testing coordinator, any student in grades 9-12 could find this test a meaningful experience in vocational planning.

Provisions have been made to accommodate all interested students.

Again this year the church is asking each member of the family to bring a can of food, wrapped as a white gift. Upon entering the sanctuary, they are asked to place their gift under the Christmas tree and then be seated.

"Underneath the tinsel and toys, the glitter and gaiety, the feasting and festivity, the real essence of Christmas is sharing—sharing the story of the holy babe of Bethlehem who came to bring light to the world, and sharing of ourselves and what we have with others," the Rev. Robert W. Gish, pastor, said.

Board Affirms Position On Contracts

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Special Staff Writer

Columbus-The Columbus School Board reaffirmed its position of awarding building contracts to the lowest bidder, regardless of union or non-union affiliation, at its Dec. 11 Committee-of-the-Whole Meeting.

"If the company has demonstrated that it is able to perform adequately, we have a legal obligation to award them the contract regardless of whether the company is union or non-union," stated the school system's legal council, attorney William Brooks.

Brooks indicated that the Board need not even know if a company bidding on school construction is union or non-union.

The controversy apparently stems from the pickets which have been placed at school construction work sites where non-union companies have received contracts and work has begun.

Work has been halted at different times by pickets at the Alpine Elementary School where a non-union company is doing the construction. This comes in the midst of the School System's $9.5 million dollar building program.

School Superintendent Dr. John Ellis said that the reason for discussion of this issue was "to explain the procedure the school system uses in accepting bids and explain the legal aspects the Board must function by."

Ellis also said that at next Tuesday's regular meeting the Board will be asked to award a construction contract for the addition work to Yorktown Junior High. The lowest bidder for this particular job is non-union.

In other discussion the Board heard a report of the proposed Developmental Learning Center at Franklin Junior High. This center will test and search for new educational programs.

Although concrete plans have not yet been established Franklin Jr. High Principal Amos White did say, "We want this center to be a learning and study center enabling cultural enrichment for students and adults."

"It must call for the spectacular and must be innovative," added White.

Board members were assured that one goal in mind was reducing the student teacher ratio.

Central High In Christmas Spirit

Central High School's music department began its Christmas activities by participating in the Kinder Key caroling drive held last week.

Sunday, Dec. 16, the concert choir, under the direction of Dr. Frederick Eisenburger, and the concert band, under the direction of Robert D. Rockey, combined to present an afternoon concert of Christmas music in the school auditorium.

The brass choir taped a 15-minute program of Christmas carols at WOSU-TV as a segment of the program "Perspective" to be aired at 7 p.m. Christmas Eve and again Christmas Day at 1 p.m.

Throughout this week the brass choir will present a program in the front lobby of the school before the start of classes—a custom of many years at Central.

Vincent, James Cartwright, Dwayne Adkins, Greg Walker and Jeff Milliken. Their director is Mr. Rockey.

The climax of the Christmas season at Central will come Friday morning, Dec. 21, when first period class students pack baskets of food and gifts for the 42 needy families they have "adopted" this year. This keeps alive a tradition which has been uninterrupted since its beginning in 1942.

Campfire Girls Design Own Uniforms

Jenny Heins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Heins, 4851 Taunton Way. Not pictured is Sherry Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown, 4851 Annhurst. Girls in the Camp Fire organization are allowed to design their own costumes as part of the new Camp Fire Girls, and this group is the first to do so in Columbus. The girls in the Wau-Ke-Ya group wanted the new skirts to go with their dark blue hats. Their leader, Mrs. Bostard chose several material samples and the girls made their choice from these. The material they chose is red, white and blue cotton, the skirt is gathered at the waist and has a wide elastic band.

Golden Ageders Have All Decked The Halls With Holly

"CELEBRATE a 'Castle Christmas,' join the medieval merriment at McDowell Manor" reads the spicy invitation from McDowell Senior Citizens Recreation Center, 275 McDowell St.

"McDowell Manor" is just one of the first of these happy beehives of Senior activity to get its Holiday news in the mail.

Among the others are the Senior Citizens Center at Second and Summit, Sawyer Towers, 975 Caldwell Place, and Linton Gardens, 2385 Mock Road.

McDowell Center, with its 3,099 members, began the Season the first of the month with a decorating party at which they "decked the halls with Holly and Ivy" for the Twelve Days of Christmas.

The Christmas Party itself is set for December 21, and will get under way at two o'clock in the afternoon. "Why go home for dinner that day?" they ask and go on to suggest "join us for Christmas pot-luck bring your special holiday salad, vegetable or dessert."

Meat will be provided at a nominal cost. The final attraction is evening dancing to the tunes of the "golden-agers."

SECOND and Summit started off its Christmas celebration with a special holiday shopping trip to Eastland Mall. Lunch was optional.

Throughout the month the Center will have its own creative exhibit, The Holiday Everyman Art Show.

The actual Christmas Party will expand this theme of originality with a Christmas pageant written by the Creative Writing class and featuring the Center Singing and Speaking Chorus.

They have chosen December 19, as their date.

SAWYER Towers Senior Center has put its emphasis a little differently. Their Christmas project is the collecting of soap to sent to patients at the State Hospital. Trinkle Treat is how they fill their Christmas Party which they have scheduled for December 20.

They will celebrate birthdays, anniversaries, and have a special program all in one night beneath their shining Christmas Tree.

"HOLLY HOP" is what they call the Christmas Party at Linton Gardens and they are having it December 20 too. They promise a "skit", caroling and fun, fun, fun.

In a more serious vein, they go on "We are asking everyone to bring a piece of fruit when they come to the party, thus can we share the spirit of Christmas and bring joy to those folks who are sick and shut-in during the Holiday Season."

We could go on and on with the other Senior Centers who will be just as busy celebrating the season of goodwill, giving and sharing of their cheer.

Who says Christmas is just for children and Santa Claus?

SPEAKING of Christmas, the place in town with the most original gifts, gift wrappings, decorating materials, tree ornaments and ideas, ideas, ideas, is the Golden Hobby Shop at 906 E. Broad St. The Shop is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Parking is free - front and back.

There are tree decorations of stained glass, wood, felt, fabric and paper; beautiful wooden tops, toys and games; story dolls, Raggedy Ann and Andy, and hand made puppets; painted china, wood carvings, and work in silver; and the original knitted work is gorgeous.

SENIOR Citizens throughout the community, serving others and being served, take this opportunity through their Council on Aging to wish the warmest of Holiday Greetings to everyone.

12 Days Of Christmas Can Be A Happy Time

THE "12 DAYS of Christmas" are normally a joyous time of year. But not for the millions of Americans who suffer from lung disease.

Harold Throop, executive director of the Central Ohio Lung Association (formerly the Tuberculosis Society), revealed some sobering statistics covering the traditional 12 days of Christmas, which are the design theme of this year's Christmas Seals.

Scaling down the figures from yearly estimates, Throop predicted there will be 19,300 new cases of chronic bronchitis and emphysema in this country from December 25 to Epiphany, January 6, which commemorates the arrival of the Magi into Jerusalem. These diseases will cause 900 deaths during the same holiday season.

DESPITE a steady decline over the years, there will be 1,080 new cases of tuberculosis and about 150 deaths during the 12 day period.

A lot of the holidays will go up in smoke, as 10,726,027,000 cigarettes are smoked. That averages 12 cigarettes a day for each person in the U.S. over 18 years, according to Throop. As many as 9,860 persons may die prematurely from diseases related to smoking during the 12 days. Happily, some 65,750 Americans will kick the habit during this period, and reduce their risk of emphysema and chronic bronchitis, Throop said.

SANTA WON'T be the only thing in the sky this Christmas. According to the Environmental Protection Agency, cars, incinerators, factories and other sources will spew about 9,238 tons of waste into the air while we're celebrating the Christmas Season.

Exposure to air pollution can make individuals more susceptible to colds, flu and pneumonia, and can aggravate more serious disorders such as asthma and emphysema.

"Forgetting about lung disease during the holidays would be nice, but these cripples and killers don't take holidays," Throop warned.

NEITHER DOES the Central Ohio Lung Association. Christmas Seal contributions are used 365 days a year in Franklin Delaware and Union counties by the Central Ohio Lung Association. 81 per cent of the locally collected funds stays in the central Ohio area to support the following programs: an industry based emphysema screening program, designed to help prevent a certain type of emphysema which is inherited; monies for lung disease research locally; anti-smoking programs for children and educational help for the teacher to teach comprehensively about the respiratory system; general and professional education; fellowships for students in the pulmonary disease areas; a home care program for patients with breathing difficulties; comprehensive hospital surveys on respiratory disease facilities and counseling services for hospitals to help upgrade their facilities; air pollution activities; smoking clinics; fine TB tests provided to schools, an x-ray unit serving the inner city area where TB incidence is the highest; and an air pollution multiple image slide presentation available to groups of 100 or more.

THROOP explained that this year's goal of 275,000 dollars may not be met if the campaign remains 21 per cent behind last year's totals at this time in the campaign. The Christmas Seal organization believes that part of the dramatic drop in contributions stems from the fact people are still confused by the name change.

Many notes and phone calls have come in this campaign wondering why the Central Ohio Lung Association is sending the Tuberculosis Society's Christmas Seals.

THE PROBLEM is that in a direct mail campaign such as the Christmas Seal effort, many individuals either don't open the envelope containing the seals or take the time to read the accompanying letter of explanation.

Throop stressed that the reason for the change in name was to better reflect what has been the purpose of the TB Society and now the Central Ohio Lung Association for 6 years...to prevent and control all lung diseases. Christmas Seals are an important cause. It is a matter of life and breath...support Christmas Seals.

Star of Glorious Beauty...

"We Three Kings of Orient are...bearing gifts we travel afar." Guided by a star most bright, the Magi came upon the Christ Child. Bearing precious treasures of gold, frankincense, and myrrh they paid homage to the Infant. Christmas continues to bring starry excitement, enchantment to young and old...a feeling of brotherhood. It is the time when people of the world are brought together with their gifts of praise. May this Yule be a blessing for all. Come, let us adore Him.

Careers Conference Will Benefit Graduate Students

COLLEGE STUDENTS and servicemen from the Franklin County Area may sign up for as many job interviews as they wish at the 1973 Columbus Careers Conference set for Dec. 26-27-28 at Scott's Inn on Sinclair Road.

That's the word from William Christensen, chairman of the event which is open to college juniors and seniors who expect to get their degrees by Jan. 31, 1974, and to college graduates who expect to get discharged from military service by the same date.

THERE'S NO FEE or obligation of any kind for participation in the Columbus Careers Conference which is sponsored as a public service by the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce.

Christensen pointed out that "an excellent variety of potential career opportunities with local business and industrial firms, and with social and governmental agencies, will be showcased" at the three-day conference.

"THE CAREERS Conference," he said, "is convenient because college-trained people can explore many career opportunities in their hometown with a number of leading employers in a relatively short time, and in one location."

Christensen said that "in these uncertain times, students would be prudent to explore career prospects early, and whenever there's an opportunity. They can do this at the Columbus Careers Conference."

PERSONAL interviews will be given by 30 leading employers based in Metropolitan Franklin County, or with major facilities in the community.

Registration for interviews will be conducted from noon until 5 p.m. on Dec. 26 by the Eastern Kiwanis Club which will also handle other functions during the three-day affair. Private interviews will be given all day Dec. 27, and from 9 to noon on Dec. 28.

INTERVIEWS were given to 600 registrants from 77 colleges and universities at the 1972 Conference. Ohio State University had the largest turnout with 236 students. Franklin University was second with 49, Ohio University third with 30, followed by Miami University with 20, and Otterbein and Ohio Dominican with 14 each.

Christensen said the Conference would be beneficial to students from a variety of academic backgrounds. He said they can sift through a wide range of job prospects in finance, research, data processing, communications, business administration, marketing, engineering, and others.

There were 74 different majors represented at last year's Conference. The five largest groupings, in order, were business administration, marketing, accounting, psychology, and economics.

Energy Crisis May Lower Accidents

The energy crisis may result in lower traffic fatalities during the Christmas holiday, Ohio Highway Safety Director Eugene P. O'Grady has predicted.

"Department statisticians project 25 persons will die on the state's highways during the 4 1/2 day holiday this Christmas," O'Grady said. "This figure may reflect the lower fatalities we have been recording the past few weekends since travel has been discouraged, and gasoline stations have been closed Saturday nights and Sundays. Last year, 30 persons were traffic victims during the 3 1/2 day period."

The reporting period begins at 6 p.m. Friday, Dec. 21 and ends at midnight Christmas day.

Highest toll recorded in Ohio for a 4 1/2 day Christmas holiday since 1961 was 49, recorded in 1966. Lowest toll occurred in 1961 when 20 were killed.

"The number 25 is projection, not a quote," O'Grady commented. "We hope the holiday can be death-free so families will not have their happy time saddened by unnecessary tragedy. If each driver does his part to drive defensively, to keep speed well suited to road and traffic conditions, and to make sure all car occupants buckle safety belts and harnesses, the actual toll can be far less than the predicted 25."

The highway safety director offered these suggestions for a safer trip:

Allow plenty of time to reach your destination. Remember that the trip will take longer at 55 miles per hour, and plan accordingly. Don't try to make up time on the road.

Make sure car is in good mechanical condition, and equipped with snow tires, new windshield wiper blades, and emergency equipment.

Don't drive after drinking. Let a non-drinker do the driving.

Fasten safety belts and harnesses. They're your best protection in case of a crash.

Energy Savers At All Post Offices

Ralph E. Haffenden, Officer-In-Charge, has advised that all 110 post offices and 30 stations, in the Columbus Postal District, have taken steps to reduce energy consumption in the face of the national energy crisis.

Building temperatures have been reduced to 68 degrees on workdays and several degrees lower on weekends. Approximately 20,000 light tubes, at the Main Post Office representing a 50 percent reduction in administrative offices and 30 percent in fringe areas of the mail processing plant, have been removed.

Vehicle speeds have been reduced to a maximum of 50 miles per hour. Cleaning operations have been rescheduled to daylight hours and a criteria for immediate shut-down of mail processing support equipment, when not in full use, has been established.

"We are constantly reviewing energy consumption in the face of the national crisis," Haffenden said.

Christmas Pets Can Be A Real Joy

IF YOU are planning to give your children a pet for Christmas, the American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA), has a few suggestions which can make the gift a joy for the entire family.

Decide what size pet you can accommodate in your house or apartment, allowing enough room for the animal to sleep, eat, play and

Be sure to select a pet that will fit into your family's style of living.

EXOTIC animals such as monkeys, skunks, jungle cats and certain reptiles rarely make good pets.

They are usually expensive and difficult to care for.

Pets cost money. Be prepared for the day-to-day expenses of food, health care and other essentials.

"Free" pets from animal shelters also involve some expense. Any animal you bring into your home should be thoroughly examined by a veterinarian and vaccinated against infectious diseases.

Depending upon local laws, your pet may also require a license.

LIKE ANY member of the family, a pet needs medical attention.

Regular visits to the veterinarian will help keep your pet happy and healthy.

It is a good idea to have your pet spayed or neutered as soon as your veterinarian says the animal is ready.

Spaying will free you from the burden of trying to find homes for kittens and puppies—an increasingly difficult problem.

You probably will find that the operation also makes your pet healthier and a better companion. Neutered animals are less likely to roam or "spit" furniture and carpets.

YOUR NEW pet will be with you for a long time. Careful selection, proper planning and responsible care can make pet ownership a wonderful experience for the whole family.

Display Is At Library

A SINGER sewing machine constructed about 1923 and a china tea set made about 1880 are among the toys included in a colorful antique toy collection on display in the Columbus Public Library, 96 S. Grant Ave.

This is the fifth year the toy display has been shown in the library. The private collections of several persons, the exhibit contains many items dating back to the 1880's.

Among the toys is Radio Rex, a dog who can be put into his kennel and will rush out anytime his name is called; china dolls made about 1870, steam engines and cast iron cars and trucks.

Also exhibited is a toy stove used as a sales promotion by the Newark Stove Company and presented as a gift to children when their parents bought a kitchen stove. The toy exhibit will continue through Dec. 27 in the library's glass showcase on the ground floor.

Also displayed at the library is a representative display of puppets and photographs of famous puppeteers. This display will continue in the library's second floor lobby through Dec. 26.

State Memorials Closed For Holidays

All state memorials administered by The Ohio Historical Society, including the Ohio Historical Center, Interstate 71 and 17th Ave., Columbus, will be closed Tuesday, Dec. 25, and Tuesday, Jan. 1.

The holiday closures will not affect free film offerings the Dec. 22 and 23 and Dec. 29 and 30 weekends preceding the two holidays. Playing the former dates is "The New Deal," Franklin Roosevelt and the depression years; and the latter dates, "The Legend of Valentino," more on film's romantic hero of the silent era.

The Ohio Historical Society presents "The New Deal" as the free weekend movie shown at the Ohio Historical Center, I-71 and 17th Ave. to be shown at 2 and 3 p.m. in the Center's auditorium on Saturday and Sunday, December 22 and 23. Admission is free.

Crucial Corner

Last week I was returning to Columbus from a trip in the east. It was unusually cold, and the airline schedules were delayed because of the snow storms. People were impatiently waiting around, awaiting the announcement of their flight's departure.

Off to the side, away from the jostling crowds, sat a young mother and her newborn child. The mother was wearing a worn-out summer dress and a tattered winter coat, while the sleeping child was wrapped in the mother's head scarf, curled in her lap. She sat there patiently watching the lumbering child.

Finally, the flight was called and the crowd strung out in a single file to leave the building to board the plane. As the mother joined the other travelers, the line seemed to open up to make way for her. Several people helped her board the plane, and one man helped to protect the baby from the falling snow. Soon everyone on the plane seemed to be aware of the presence of the unknown mother and her child.

As hour later, we landed in order to make connections with another flight before traveling on, only to discover that flight had also been delayed. Since it was late at night there was some apprehension whether we could continue on at all, or have adequate accommodations for the night.

During the time we waited, almost everyone took turns making sure that the mother and her child were comforted and cared for. Both seemed to represent something for all of us traveling that night. Our flight did arrive and we all continued on to our final destination, but as we traveled there seemed to be an unspoken but recognized mood throughout the plane. Christmas is a mood. It is something that happens to us, although I'm never sure whether due to our own efforts of planning or in spite of them. However, a mood appears to come in its own time frame, and seems somewhat cloaked in an aura of mystery. Regularly recognized concerns usually temporarily fade away, and a person feels touched or called into some deeper encounter of human experience.

While cradled in the midst of that experience the person becomes suspended between the ways he uses to parent his life, and the disorientation with this new presence that is being born into his life at that moment. As a result birth can be a mood-weaved together with both fright and exhilaration.

Christmas then can also be a contrast of experiences. At first thought, the Christmas season becomes a time of excitement, anticipation, festivity, mirth, closeness, warmth, family and good memories. And these elements are usually there. But it is also a time when many people experience anxiety, separation, loneliness, distance, brokenness and memories of things no longer the same. These elements are reflected in the original Christmas story in such imagery as "traveling afar," the danger that seems to destroy the new born, the dark winter night, "no room in the inn." Most of the heart stirring stories repeated during Christmas are expressive of experiences of tragedy.

Perhaps in the stables of our own consciousness, where sometimes there is little light the contrast of opposite experiences come together, out of which something new is born and becomes nurtured and is wrapped in the hope of touching that "something" which is special.

Christmas is a process and a discovery of meaning. Almost each year I find myself asking "What does Christmas mean to you?", whether directed to other people or in the quiet moments of my own thinking. Something unfolds that goes beyond statistics, analysis, issues and thought concepts, and perhaps is one of the reasons that stories, legends, symbols, songs, rituals and traditions are so important. In fact, each Christmas seems to have a story of its own, and collectively becomes the event of Christmas for the individual.

What are some of the stories of your Christmas past? What story is being told for you this Christmas? Where are the areas of your mood, contrast of experiences, and areas of meaning being born?

For me this year I look forward to participating with so many people in an event that is common to all of us, for there seems fewer areas of common concern that are a heart's around which we collectively gather. There is a subjective and collective experience whereby individuals gain a perception of mankind.

Let me take this opportunity to express for the Lincoln-Hilltop staff of the Southwest Community Mental Health Center our desire that you have a Merry Christmas and wishes for full life in the coming New Year.

Merry Christmas

To All

Before I get into what's going on Around Town this week, let me take this time to wish each and everyone of you, the most happy and joyous Christmas ever. To all my friends, associates at the Spectator, the entertainers and owners and operators who help make this column possible and most of all, you, my readers, may you and all of your loved ones share a Merry Christmas and a beautiful New Year.

Hinton A Hit At Ramada Inn

He's faster than Lightning, he shakes, shimmies, oodles, with an obnoxious on-aloud of show business verve that literally knocks you off your chair. His name is Don Hinton, fronting a quartet of musicians at the Ramada Inn-South. Don Hinton is one of the most electrifying singers to hit the Columbus area in many a moon.

Don is a showman's showman. Take away his fluid gyrations, and Don Hinton is still a fascinating performer, because he is also a singer's singer. Singing with a voice that is as big and deep as the Grand Canyon with an attack more devastating than a herd of stampeding elephants, Don Hinton keeps your eyes and ears glued to everything he does on stage. It's not surprising that Don can take rock and contemporary songs and splatter them all over the lounge with his sensational stylings. But, just wait until he sings some beautiful old ballads. His vocal renditions on these, even songs like, "White Christmas," are simply beautiful. He sings with so much feeling, that he creates an emotional aura throughout the lounge at Ramada Inn-South.

Backing up Don is a group called the Originals, comprised of L.D. Stamp on electric guitar, Clyde L. Farrow at the drums, Allen J. Ballweg with fender bass and Randy Moore playing organ and electric piano. All four are excellent musicians. L.D. Stamp and Clyde Farrow are also fine vocalists in their own right. They, along with the other members of the quartet, add some nice vocal harmonies behind Don. When Don is not on stage, The Originals provide plenty of good entertainment. But, let there be no doubt about it, Don Hinton is the main attraction.

Some people in the business have said that if you like Elvis, you'll love Don Hinton. I feel that Don is more of a classic and sophisticated performer than Elvis was at the height of his career. Sitting in the audience reminds me of an old Sinatra performance when the girls swoon at everything he did. Hinton will be at the Ramada Inn-South this week and next. Take my advice, it is a must on your entertainment schedule. Don't miss Don Hinton and The Originals while they are Around Town.

Scioto Inn Is Exciting

Dined at the New Scioto Inn the other evening. What a fine meal. Not only was the food fit for the proverbial king, but the intimacy and decor created a pleasant atmosphere for dining. While many of you may think of the New Scioto Inn as a swinging night spot offering top notch entertainment, don't forget the food. The dining room and lounge are completely separated.

I began my meal with a carafe of wine. Next came the salad. This was a very fresh, tossed salad with their own homemade Roquefort dressing. Now, here was a treat that made the trip to the Scioto Inn worth it all. I have never tasted such a delicious Roquefort dressing as was served to me here. It did not have a strong Roquefort taste, but had just a tinge of sweetness to it. I think I could have made a meal just on the salad dressing.

Then came the entree, which was prime rib of roast beef au jus. I have dined on prime rib many times in my travels Around Town, but this was, without a doubt, one of the very best I have experienced. And, that's just it, was a truly wonderful dining experience. Not only was it extremely tender, but it was exceptionally flavorful. When you think of a succulent, tender piece of beef, with a taste out of this world, the prime rib of beef au jus prepared by the New Scioto Inn meets every requirement.

The amazing aspect of it all, was the price. Considering the quality and quantity it was very inexpensive. There are many other fine entrees on the menu. So, all in all, the New Scioto Inn is a dining place I have to recommend. The same is true for the other half of the operation. Their lounge is also lovely and features first rate entertainment. The Chuck Dailey Trio, featuring sexy Betty Helsel is the current offering. More on them later.

For dining, dancing, top entertainment and an all around good time, make the New Scioto Inn one of your night spots.

Take Two Are Unusual

Currently tearing things up at the King's Inn at the Imperial House Arlington, is Take Two. This is a duo made up of two well known entertainers Around Town, Bill Star and Scott Steelman.

Both are excellent musicians as well as being first rate vocalists. Bill, as always, plays a tasty set of drums. His work on the skins and cymbals shows me a lot of creativity along with a set of speedy hands. In the vocal department, Bill can and does sing up a storm. Possessing a pleasing tonal quality, Bill has the ability to handle his voice well.

Partner Scott Steelman is no slouch either. His is absolute boss of the black and whites showing off a fine style and technique. Playing all types of music which presented with first rate arrangements, Take Two ends up being a fun type, exciting duo. They keep things moving at a fast clip, never leaving a dull moment. The duo plays music that is excellent for dancing. Or, you can sit back and enjoy some way out sounds.

Take two will be at King's Inn of the Imperial House - Arlington Motel the rest of this week. So why don't you take two, or three or four and spend some time with Take Two. It's a swinging duo that will take your mind of the problems of the day.

Skipping Around Town

The new group at Lincoln Lodge is a foursome that's loaded with talent. All I'll tell you now about Sterling Silver is that they are fantastic. Make sure you see them...Colours have been held over at the swinging Marco Polo's Lounge. This is an explosive, highly unusual group. For you who love top flight contemporary music, then you must catch Colours at Marco Polo's Lounge, on W. 5th Ave. Hey Kids, get your Mom or Dad to take you to the Holiday Inn-North this Saturday morning and breakfast with Santa That's right, old Santa is making a special trip to Columbus, so that he may have breakfast with some of the boys and girls in our area. He will be at the Holiday Inn-North from 8 a.m. until noon. Then he has to head back to the North Pole and get ready for his big trip. Look for me, I'll be there...I'm sure to read next week's column. As for the past many years, we will give you a complete listing of what's going on Around Town, New Years Eve. You read all about the various packages deals offered by various establishments, their costs, and what all you get, I'll tell you who is playing where, and if there is a special cover charge. This is where you'll find out where to go New Years Eve.

Don Hinton and The Originals, a dynamic group of performers, perform nightly at the Ramada Inn - South. Don, a vibrant singer, presents three shows nightly, this week and next.

In Our Time

WITH ENERGY CONSUMPTION OF THE U.S. SIX TIMES THE WORLD AVERAGE AND STILL GROWING, WE MUST USE OUR FUEL RESOURCES AS EFFICIENTLY AS POSSIBLE UNTIL NEW SOURCES OF ENERGY ARE CREATED.

ORDINARY STORM WINDOWS, FOR EXAMPLE, CUT IN HALF THE HEAT THAT A HOME OTHERWISE NEEDLESSLY LOSES THROUGH ITS WINDOWS. THE ALUMINUM KID WITH SELF-STORING SCREENS ARE ESPECIALLY CONVENIENT... RUST-FREE, REQUIRE NO MAINTENANCE.

TURNING DOWN THE THERMOSTAT IN THE HOME JUST FIVE DEGREES IN THE WINTER MONTHS CAN LOWER A FAMILY'S HEATING BILL AS MUCH AS 20 PER CENT.

Into The Symphony Swing Of It

PAUL HENDERSON, chairman of the Symphony Grand Ball steps to visit with a group of volunteers who had been addressing invitations at the home of Mrs. Dean Jeffers, seated, 2900 Clairmont Ct. The gala event given for the benefit of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra will be held January 12 at the Sheraton. Theme for the ball is "Una Noche en Venezuela" and the Ambassador of Venezuela to the United States Government, Dr. Andres Aguilar and his wife will be guests of honor. Standing, from left, are Mrs. Roy Wentz Jr., 2237 Brydon Rd; Mrs. Roger Berlin, 700 Marburn Drive and Mrs. Frederick Laird, 200 S. Parkview Ave. (Symphony photo.)

Insurance Leaders Meet

AMONG the over 100 leaders of the Ohio Association of Insurance Agents who attended Committee Organizational meetings recently in Columbus were: (Seated) Frank Lechnert, Jr., treasurer and Edwin L. Overmeyer. Standing are: Jack W. Hoffman, R. Lee Ayotte, Milton J. Outcalt, Robert Klie, Jr., Donald L. Geary, and Charles Brubaker, all of Columbus. Robert E. Woods, Warren, president of the Association, stated that the meetings were held to formulate plans and action for the 8,000 member association of independent insurance agents (whose symbol is the "Big I") for the group's 77th year. Other officers for 1974 are: Howard B. Somers, vice president; Douglas N. Avery, Columbus, executive vice president and secretary; and Robert M. Bell, Springfield, state national director.

Employers Seminar Scheduled

John F. Marshall, president of Snelling & Snelling employment agencies of Columbus and ParTime temporary help service, has announced an all-day employers seminar has been set for December 19 at the Marriott Inn on South Hamilton Road. The seminar, "Management By Objectives," features Louis

A. Seiberlich, Jr., senior partner of Omnisystems, Brookfield, Wisconsin. Seiberlich received his B.S. and M.B.A. degrees from Marquette University. He formerly served as chairman of the National Conference Steering Committee for the American Society for Training and Development and was one of four individuals to be nationally recognized for his contributions to the training profession. The all-day seminar is free to employers, Marshall said, and is designed as a community service to improve managerial competence and awareness of practical techniques for motivation.

Recreational Vehicle Show At Fairgrounds In January

THE MANY facets of owning and operating recreational vehicles will be widely demonstrated and discussed at the All America Camping and Recreational Vehicle Show January 2-6 at the Ohio Exposition Center. More than 300 of the latest models of camping and recreational vehicles, including motor homes, travel trailers and truck campers, will be displayed. The huge showing of campers and related accessories is being sponsored by member-dealers of the Central Ohio Chapter of Ohio Recreational Vehicle Dealers. ITS QUITE likely, however, the big interest of the show will be the word from campground operators and association experts who will be on hand to discuss with owners and prospective buyers how to get the most from their recreational vehicles during the uncertainties of the energy situation. "Our dealers and exhibitors will have the answers and many helpful tips," said Gene Keener, executive director of the Ohio Recreational Vehicle Association, producer of the show. "WE KNOW for sure," continued Keener, "that in spite of the energy problems, people will continue to seek and enjoy outdoor recreation." Keener points out there are some 350 privately-owned and 43 state operated campgrounds in Ohio available for the enjoyment of outdoor recreation-minded Ohioans. Many of these are situated near sports and recreation areas having numerous winter and summer activities, and most are within a "thankful of gas" range from the Central Ohio area. KEENER'S association is strongly suggesting that vehicle owners place their campers and motor homes permanently, or at least for the duration of the energy shortage, at a favorite campground, and use the vehicle as a meeting place for family and friends. "The recreational vehicle can be the family's headquarters for recreation during the energy shortage," Keener added. THE ALL America Camping and Recreational Vehicle Show, largest of its kind in the area, opens at noon on Wednesday, January 2 and closes at 10 p.m., Sunday, January 6. The entire show will be under roof at the Exposition Center's Multi-purpose building.

Silver Center Display Is At Ohio National Bank

A "Silver Center" displaying rare and unusual coins, commemorative medals and other collectors' items made of silver has been installed at Ohio National Bank's Great Western office, 3500 West Broad Street in the Great Western shopping center. The six-sided display features newly-created products struck by the Franklin Mint, Franklin Center, Pennsylvania. The world's largest private mint, it is known for its Proof-quality coins, medals, ingots and sterling silver collector plates and is the only private mint in the United States that produces official coin of the realm for the monetary authorities of other governments. The Great Western office Silver Center is one of three such exhibits now placed in Ohio National offices; others are located at the bank's Main office, 51 North High Street, and Grandview office, 1530 West First Avenue. All items on display are available to collectors for purchase on a postage-paid direct mail basis. Exhibits will be changed approximately once a month. Collectors' items currently being shown at the three new Silver Centers include the famous Piastrelli Waterloo Medal; the Franklin Mint Presidential Ingot Collection; the First Official Coinage of the British Virgin Islands; and the American Heritage Medallic Treasury of American History. Ohio National is the only authorized exhibitor of Franklin Mint medallic art in the Columbus area.

Citrus Fruit Sale Achieved By FFA

The Eastland FFA has concluded another outstanding sale of fresh Florida citrus fruit. The Chapter sold over 1200 cases of oranges, grapefruit, and tangelos. Profits from the sales campaign will be used to help finance the annual Parent, Son, Daughter, and Cooperator Banquet. Top sales awards went to Jack Hartley, Gahanna; Craig Plstner, Gahanna; and Larry Taylor, Canal Winchester. Among the three agricultural programs at the Eastland Vocational Center (Agricultural Business, Horticulture, and Agricultural Mechanics), the top sales record was made by the Junior Agricultural Mechanics Class.

VA Benefits To Increase For 2.7 Million Veterans

INCREASED benefits will be reflected in February Veterans Administration pension checks for nearly 2.7 million disabled veterans and survivors of deceased veterans, L. M. Merritt, director of the VA Regional Office in Cleveland, has announced. A cost-of-living increase in these VA benefits is authorized by a law signed by the President and becomes effective January 1. Merritt said the increase will average 10 per cent for 915,000 wartime veterans and 859,000 widows on VA pension rolls and 89,000 parents drawing Dependency and Indemnity Compensation. Increased pension payments will also go to 842,000 children of veterans. PENSIONS are paid by the VA on the basis of need to veterans permanently and totally disabled from nonservice causes and to widows and children of veterans who died of nonservice-connected disabilities. Dependency and Indemnity Compensation payments are made to widows, unmarried children under 18, and certain parents of veterans and servicemen who died of service-connected disabilities. The new law increased DIC rates only for parents, Merritt said.

STUDENT COUNCIL

At the F.H. Student Council meeting held Dec. 11 new money-making projects were discussed. A bake sale will be held in the near future and after Christmas there will be a pancake flip.

The members also discussed going caroling to collect money for Secret Santa, which is a charitable organization which buys Christmas gifts for underprivileged families.

The Christmas tree which is in the Student Center was donated by the head cook, Martha Mellen. Decorations were purchased by students.

CHOIR

The Franklin Heights choir and mixed ensembles both traveled to the Neil House and sang Christmas music Dec. 13. The Franklin Heights choir presents its annual Christmas concert Dec. 20 in the Franklin Heights auditorium. The admission is 75 cents for students and $1 for adults. The Senior Choir will present a Christmas assembly for the student body Dec. 2.

MIXED ENSEMBLES

The Franklin Heights Mixed Ensemble has given four Christmas concerts. They sang at the Hilltop Y.M.C.A., Lazarus downtown, Southern Hotel and at the December PTA meeting.

A few of the songs they have sung are "We Need A Little Christmas," "Videntes Stellam," "Christmas Song," and "Fum, Fum, Fum."

JAZZ BAND

Carl Sally and his Jazz Rock Band played at FH Dec. 12. Their program combined several musical styles, providing an interesting variety of sounds. This was another in the continuing series sponsored by FH instrumental music director John Grashel to bring different styles of band music to the student body.

West Grad

Named PR Director

West Columbus-Mary Kimball Norris has been appointed Director of Public Relations at Grant Hospital, according to Donald H. Ayers, executive director.

Mrs. Norris will be responsible for all matters concerning public relations, internally and externally.

A native of Columbus, she graduated from West High School in 1966, and Ohio State University in 1970 with a B.S. in Health Economics. Prior to her employment with Grant she was the Program Associate for the Columbus TB Society (now the Central Ohio Lung Association).

She is a member of the American Society for Hospital Public Relations, American Women in Radio and Television and the International Association of Business Communicators.

MARY NORRIS

ON DUTY

West Columbus-Sergeant Donald V. Wolf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Wolf, 1732 Rosemont Ave., has arrived for duty at Goose AB, Labrador.

Sergeant Wolf, an aircraft maintenance specialist, is assigned to a unit of the Strategic Air Command. He previously served at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio. The sergeant, a 1970 graduate of Bishop Ready High School, attended the Ohio State University.

Hilltop Community Council Elects Officers

WEST COLUMBUS-The Hilltop Community Council had its election of officers at the Thursday meeting. Those elected were (left to right) Lois Neff, recording secretary; Kay Canna, corresponding secretary; Billie Keith, vice president; and Homer Burke, president. Not present when the picture was taken was Richard Jones, treasurer. The new year begins for the new officers Jan. 19 at 8 p.m. at Westgate Recreation Center.

Ashburn Players Present Play

West Columbus-The Ashburn Youth Players will, in keeping with the season, present its annual Christmas play, "The Christmas Spirit," Thursday, Dec. 20, at 7:30 p.m.

The cast includes Toni Redman as the "Spirit of Christmas," Cynthia Preston as "Florida," Rosalind Tymes as Maria, Karen Summers as Jayne, Kim

Williams as mother and Keith Summers as father. The Girl's Club is making Christmas decorations. Special Christmas candy bags will be given to the children.

The play demonstrates two expressions of the way people celebrate Christmas. One is with greed and self-centered activity. The other is closer to the true and real meaning of Christmas.

Former Hilltopper, 84, Has Busy Year On TV

By ELSIE V. WEAVER
Editor, Spectator East
West Columbus—Glenwood Methodist Church and the Hilltop knew her for many years as a lively, active club worker, a choir member who often sang soprano solos, and an actress in church plays in which she usually played the comic.

Merle Earle, 84, is still lively, still active in church clubs and dramatics and lodge work, still sings and acts, but now she is a full-fledged member of Actors' Equity in Hollywood and commands scale pay for serious acting in movies and TV programs, singing modeling and playing parts in TV commercials. She still is sometimes the comic.

Since that first magazine ad picture for Radio and Camera, she helped sell Shell gasoline, played in two movies, "Norwood" and "Gaily, Gaily," both of which have been shown in Columbus, appeared on scores of TV programs and in a long list of TV commercials.

'Common Cause' Offers Speakers

Columbus—The Common Cause unit for Congressional Districts 12 and 15 has established a Speakers' Bureau to disseminate information on Common Cause goals and activities to community organizations.

Local members will speak to interested groups on the history and organization of Common Cause or on one of several specific topics which represent the current focus of Common Cause activities.

At this time, speakers will discuss campaign reform, passage of the Equal Rights Amendment, or the organization of Common Cause.

Organizations desiring speakers on any of these three topics may contact Evelyn Gauthier, Coordinator of the Speakers' Bureau, at 422-5786 or 457-3767.

cadet training program. This selection, finance matters and building projects were the main topics of the Dec. 18 regular meeting of the Board.

The seven teachers selected for the cadet training program are: Beverly Fatig, East High science and mathematics teacher; Richard Fein, Walnut Ridge history and special education teacher; Iris B. Fields, Johnson Park English teacher; Dr. Jack T. Landes, Linden-McKinley science teacher; William Lude, Fairfax physical education teacher; David L. Samuel, Central High history teacher; and Donald W. Taylor Barrett Junior High English and social studies teacher.

These seven were chosen from a field of 15 applicants by a committee of school personnel. They will begin a training program in January to prepare them for future assignments as principals and assistant principals in junior and senior high schools.

IN BUILDING ACTION taken by the Board preliminary drawings for an addition and related improvements to Avondale Elementary School were approved. The drawings were assessed by the Avondale Advisory Committee on Educational Program and Facilities.

The 4,500-square foot addition of Avondale will provide a new multi-purpose room which will accommodate the now deficient physical education program. The existing kitchen will be converted into a library work room.

A $175,000 budget has been allotted for the entire project.

In building action taken by the Board preliminary drawings for an addition and related improvements to Woodcrest Elementary School were approved. The drawings were assessed by the Woodcrest Advisory Committee on Educational Program and Facilities.

A new library-learning center, teacher work room, reading room, two classrooms, three small counseling areas, expanded restroom facilities and outdoor storage space for equipment and tools are included in the 4,900-square foot addition.

REMODELING AT Woodcrest will provide space for equipment for a future hot lunch program. Budget for the Woodcrest project is $245,000.

Awarded by the Board were contracts for improved facilities for Yorktown Junior High. Lincoln Construction was awarded the contract for general construction and electrical work, worth $170,384 while the R.M. Giehl, Inc. Company will handle the plumbing priced at $69,000.

Total contract costs are $239,384. The two companies were awarded the contracts since they were the lowest bidders.

The Board voted to reject bids for remodeling and addition work to Oakmont Elementary School. The lowest bids were 22 per cent over the proposed budget. The drawings and specifications will now be revised and the project will be rebid.

Many routine year end finance closings were passed by the Board along with routine personnel changes and appointments.

MEMBERS OF THE Central High School Choir were on hand for the meeting and sang Christmas Carols before the meeting and North High Choir director James McDonald presented each Board member with a copy of the new Christmas album that the North Choir has just put out.

In the last official act passed by the Board in 1973 it was decided that the first Board meeting of 1974 will be held Jan. 8 at 4 p.m.

Columbus Schools Remain On Original Schedule

Columbus—There will be no change in the holiday vacation schedule nor in the daily hours of operation of the Columbus Public Schools, Superintendent Dr. John Ellis said Thursday.

Ellis' announcement came after extensive staff study, of the energy crisis and the impending switch to Daylight Savings Time. The announcement was a confirmation of repeated indications that no changes would be made in the duration of the holiday vacation and the daily schedule "would have resulted in confusion, inconvenience to many families and disruption to many aspects of community life."

Ellis noted that daylight hours will begin to increase gradually after the holidays. He said, "No sooner would we become accustomed to new daily schedule than we would have to begin to prepare for a return to the regular schedule."

Columbus schools will resume operations on Wednesday, January 2.

Memorial Picture Presented

WEST COLUMBUS—In memory of former student Scott Hammers, the Wayne Elementary students, parents and teachers have purchased a painting which will be displayed at the school. The painting is entitled "Happy Days" by Eugene Iverd. Scott was a third grader at Wayne when he was fatally injured in a traffic accident in May, 1972. Shown receiving the picture are his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Hammers, his brother, Michael and his third grade teacher, Mrs. Patty Ervin. The presentation was made at the school's Christmas program Dec. 18.

Metropolitan Educational Council Energy Report Released

The Metropolitan Educational Council has issued its committee report for the conservation of energy. The report follows: The Committee sees as its primary responsibility the development of recommendations that would assist school districts of the Metropolitan Educational Council to conserve energy during the energy crisis. However, the committee emphasizes the fact that schools first major concern must be to maintain complete educational programs in all of our educational facilities.

This should not be confused with the fact that everyone must use every resource available to conserve all the energy possible even though there might seem to be an abundance at this particular point in time. There are other institutions which have a lower energy priority status than schools. They need energy as well.

The committee is of the belief that by using the proper methods, energy can be conserved and at the same time complete educational programs can be conducted and others might not be deprived of energy.

IT WAS IMMEDIATELY determined that some long range goals should be established with suggested intermediate steps to be taken toward meeting said goals. Short range goals such as keeping schools in operation and conserving energy through this winter period were discussed. For purposes of clarification long range is defined to be three to eight years or until such time when one might reasonably expect our country to be in a position to produce sufficient energy to satisfy needs. Short range is viewed to be that period of time encompassing the present school year.

The committee is of the opinion that all school buildings cannot follow all the recommendations. The type of construction, the age of the facility and the various usage of the facility all will play a big part in how energy can be conserved in a particular

The recommendations as set forth here are only the first in a series this committee hopes will be beneficial to schools. For this reason, this report is submitted in three specific parts: (1) Things individual schools can do immediately, (2) Individual school district considerations, and (3) Long range goals to be considered.

Things Individual Schools Can Do Immediately

FOLLOW SUGGESTED State Department of Education Guidelines with some modification at local level.

Repair or replace broken windows immediately.

Check with local fire marshalls in an effort to reduce number of entrances used during arrival and departures.

Encourage staff and students to form carpools. Local publicity and assistance should be given this effort.

Individual School District

School closing to be a local consideration. Many factors have to be considered before approving the closing of schools. These factors will vary from district to district and seldom will they be the same in all districts at the same time. Some of the factors are:

Severe temperatures - chill factor; oil heat - supply factor; students walking greater distances in severe weather; transportation - heavy snow, ice, other road conditions.

If those schools using fuel oil are forced to close due to fuel shortage, consideration should be given to moving students to another building.

Schools using natural gas should contact the gas company and request help in analyzing local heating conditions. It is possible the installation of turbulators should be considered in some gas installations. It has been estimated that as much as a 10 per cent savings on fuel bills and fuel consumption can be realized with the installation of turbulators.

School districts should seek the assistance of consulting engineers familiar with particular building construction and heating plants regarding suggested operating procedures.

Since Christmas and New Year's Day fall on Tuesdays, it is strongly urged that all facilities, including offices, be closed at least on the 24th and 31st of December. Buildings could then be left at minimum temperatures for at least a four day period. It is the understanding of this committee that some school districts also are closing all facilities, including offices, Dec. 28 and Jan. 2.

Review vehicle usage - buses, trucks, tractors, driver education cars, etc.

Use buses for field trips, athletic events, etc. to fullest capacity without endangering the safety of the pupil. Could one bus served the same purpose that two or more are performing at the present time?

Cars and trucks get more miles per gallon than buses, therefore, use bulk gasoline for the transportation of pupils and obtain credit cards for use by other vehicles at local stations.

Review field and activity trip policies. Example: Do all primary grades need to go to the zoo every year? Can the same educational advantage be obtained by conducting field trips within our own community?

Continue planning for gas rationing.

Long Range Goals Give consideration to the coordination of school calendars. It is understood this was explored several years ago. However, it is felt that under the present circumstances many factors have been changed. This will be discussed at the next meeting.

Buses operating only when all schools are open. At the present time, there are some days buses are being operated for only private schools and some days for public schools.

Public relations factor - Why are some schools opened and others closed?

Possibilities of coordinating workshops and in-service training sessions.

It is recommended that this goal be spearheaded by the Metropolitan Educational Council.

Work more closely with consulting engineers to gain maximum efficiency in areas of lighting and heating.

Explore the possibilities and feasibility of inter-district bus routing to correct overlapping in many areas.

Study school calendars as they relate to the total year-possibility of a four day week and school during summer months, etc.

Review possible school activity changes such as:

Afternoon athletic events instead of evening when field light have to be in use- football, track, baseball, etc.

More school activities during the school week - basketball, art shows, plays, intramurals, science fairs, etc. thus eliminating weekend opening of school facilities. The possibility of not transporting anyone except actual participants to school activities. For example: spectators, bands, drill teams, etc.

Maurice Jones, Committee Chairman, has consulted with the State Department of Education and has been informed that there are no provisions in the present statutes that will permit schools to have less than 175 days of instruction. The only provisions at this time for having less than 175 days are that they shall be made up.

Members of the committee are Chairman, Maurice Jones, Superintendent, Jefferson Local Schools; Charles Hall, Assistant Superintendent, Columbus City Schools; Robert Lukens, Assistant Superintendent, London City Schools; James Schott, Assistant Superintendent, Upper Arlington City Schools; Willard Grissell, Superintendent, Washington Local Schools; and E. B. Martin, Jr., Executive Director, Metropolitan Educational Council.

commercial for Mountain State Bank co-location in Denver, Colo., made an industrial film for Phillips 66, made a second appearance on "The Waltons" (shown in late November in Columbus), and all summer enjoyed the reruns (and residuals) from her well-known role in the Kool-Aid commercial, where she pours Kool-Aid for an elderly man and several youngsters on a porch.

Her 1973 acting was pleasantly interrupted by a trip to Athens, Greece, Turkey, some of the Mediterranean Islands, Israel, and Lebanon. She and her group were able to leave the area before war broke out there. She especially enjoyed the Holy Land.

When she returned home, she had two jobs waiting for her—a public service film for the Mormon Church and a commercial for Mattel Toys.

She has been on the Carol Burnett Show and made a print for Hallmark Cards. On Oct. 26 she flew to San Francisco and did modeling in an airplane over the city for five hours for a Chicago advertising company. She also recently worked on a "Movie of The Week," named "Christie Love." She does not know when it will be shown. As she says in her Christmas letter, "Looking back, I can truthfully say for an old lady 84 years old, it has been a remarkable year." We are inclined to agree with her. With typical religious fervor and concern for others, she closes, "With a prayer and a hope for your Good Health and Happiness for the New Year. May God Bless you abundantly." That's Merle Earle! I should know; she's my very favorite aunt.

Squadron 802 Holds

Awards Dinner

Dec. 1 marked the 32 anniversary of the Civil Air Patrol. In recognition of this, The Columbus Frank A. Heselton Squadron 802 held their annual Parent-Cadet Dinner Sunday, Dec. 16.

Guest speakers at the dinner were Maj. Angelo Campanella and Lt. Richard Curran.

The male and female drill teams gave drill exhibitions and cadet T-Sgt. Mark Wright repelled down a wall of the armory to demonstrate some of the training cadets receive before coming a member of the squadrons Land Rescue Team. The Awards Ceremony finished up the agenda.

Many cadets received advancement in rank or recruiter ribbons. Three senior members also received notable awards. Chaplain Martin was promoted to Captain and Lt. Carol "Momi" Swank and Lt. Phil E. Smith both received their Observer Wings. Lt. Swank fulfilled all of her qualifications for this award on an actual search and rescue mission last November. She flew, as a passenger, four days from morning to dusk, stopping only to refuel the plane and eat, scanning the ground for a missing private plane.

The dinner gives parents a chance to meet their son's or daughter's officers, friends and other parents. It also gives them a chance to see what the squadron has done during the year and what its future plans are.

Tuesday, Dec. 18, squadron members volunteered to give up their meeting to wrap Christmas presents at the Crippled Children's Center, 565 Children's Dr. West. The presents will be given to the children at the center.

Sqdn. 802 meets Tuesday nights from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at the National Guard Armory, 4094 Sullivant Ave. Guests are always welcome.

Golden Age News And Notes

"TALK ABOUT potential energy resources," said David C. Growley, enthusiastic first Executive Director of the new Ohio Commission on Aging, "One of our greatest reservoirs lies in the 1,400,000 Senior Citizens of Ohio. Think of what they can give to us and what they can give to each other."

Under the Older Americans Act, we have all these fine programs in nutrition, volunteerism, educational re-entry, and re-employment in the labor market. They are all set up and on-going in Ohio. We are here to provide them with a hopeful new visibility."

THE OHIO Commission on Aging came of age November 23, 1973. It was born out of the former Division on Aging which was one of the six sections of the Department of Mental Health and Retardation. The Commission was promulgated by act of the Legislature July 27, 1973 and signed into existence August 24, by Governor John J. Gilligan.

Appointed by Governor Gilligan and accountable solely to him, Director Crowley will serve as special advisor to the Governor for the needs, problems, and services required by the elderly of Ohio.

From his office at 34 N. High Street, Crowley and his associate Ken Mahan, the experienced assistant coordinator of the former Division on Aging, sketched an outline of what they hope to do for the Aging in Ohio. As they see their task, it is first of all one of coordination insuring that all the programs in one category are unified and are more effective. Then comes the promotion and it must be state wide. It must enable everyone not only to know what is available but also what he can give as well as receive.

"I AM mindful of one of my friends who graduated with me in Social Work," continued Mr. Crowley. "He was 58 years old and had retired from an executive position in industry three years previously. Now he is in his first year of function as a social worker and boy is he good."

Hot Punch Program Planned For Elderly

Ten central feeding sites are now open where senior citizens from Franklin County may get a hot, nutritionally planned noon luncheon Monday through Friday.

This program is being operated by the Community Health and Nursing Service, Jean Jones, Director.

Working with the program is the Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization, Don Ferrel, Coordinator. It was funded by Title VII funds under the Older Americans Act.

Any Senior Citizen, 60 years of age or older, and a resident of Franklin County, is eligible to receive this program. The sites now open are 1100 E. Broad St. Senior Citizens Recreation Center; Sawyer Towers Senior Citizens Recreation Center, 975 Caldwell Pl.; Union Grove Baptist Church, 266 N. Champion; Poindexter Towers, 1253 Mt. Vernon Ave.; First A.M.E. Zion Church, Bryden and S. 18th Street; Aldersgate United Methodist Church, 385 Miller Ave.; First Congregational Church, 444 E. Broad Street; St. John The Evangelist Parish Hall, 648 S. Ohio Ave.; Third Ave. United Methodist Church, 1066 N. High St.; and Linton Gardens Senior Citizens Recreation Center, 2365 Mock Road. According to Mrs. Jones several additional sites will be opened during the month of January.

Meals are free to those attending. A contribution may be made if the participant wishes to contribute.

For information about the program senior citizens are asked to call either Community Health and Nursing, 181 S. Washington Blvd., 461-5745 or the Franklin County Council on Aging, 906 E. Broad Street, 244-2444.

Snowmobile Sites Are Increased

Ohio Natural Resources Director William B. Nye has announced the opening of two new state snowmobile areas in Sandusky and Lucas counties, raising to 10 the number of state-operated areas open to snowmobile enthusiasts.

Gibsonburg Snowmobile Area in Sandusky County and Maumee All Purpose (APV) Area in Lucas County are the new areas open to snowmobiling.

The 160-acre Gibsonburg area is off State Route 300, a mile south of Gibsonburg. Maumee APV Area in Maumee State Forest has four miles of trails. The 550-acre area is off Lucas County roads T and C, south of State Route 24.

The new snowmobile areas are in addition to areas designated by the Ohio Department of Natural Resources last winter in eight Ohio state parks. Those parks are: Buckeye Lake, Fairfield County; Grand Lake St. Marys, Mercer County; West Branch, Portage County; Portage Lakes, Summit County; East Harbor, Ottawa County; Lake Lormie, Augliize County; Indian Lake, Logan County and Punderson, Geauga County. There is no charge to use any state-operated snowmobile areas, but Nye pointed out that snowmobiling on state parks and forest land is permitted only in the designated snowmobile areas.

The four-day event, the first of its kind to be sponsored by 4-H, will include contests, demonstrations, and exhibits by the Franklin County Clubs. According to Jacqueline Le Muth, County Extension Agent, the fair is open to any 4-H club in the county. Clubs interested should call the 4-H office, 469-3595. 4-H COSI Winter Fair ribbons will be given to all participants and awards of Merit Rosettes for Booth Judging Winners. Big Brothers Need You All-Year Round Now

BIG BROTHER Week will be observed throughout the United States January 6 - 12, 1974. The Big Brother Association of Columbus, Inc., 2104 Tuller St., is joining with Big Brothers of America, the National Organization, in observing the week as a means of interesting more men in the work of Big Brothers.

The Association is a United Way Agency whose general purpose is to provide Big Brothers to boys in need of the influence of a man.

The National Agency enables local Big Brother Associations to cooperate more effectively for the general growth and advancement of Big Brother work.

THE COLUMBUS Association has just completed 40 years of Big Brother service to our Community. The organization was started in 1933 by a concerned group of citizens wanting to provide a program to combat the rising delinquent problem among youth in this area.

During the past year 900 men have been active Big Brothers and served 1,220 boys from broken homes. 1,200 Associate Members are needed each year to lend their financial support and strength to back up the work of the professional staff and the volunteer Big Brothers.

The Association operates a summer camp in the Hocking Hills attended last summer by 1,311 campers from Columbus and Franklin County.

A BIG BROTHER is a volunteer who under the guidance of a trained Social Worker accepts the responsibility of looking after a boy who lacks a father image and is without adult male companionship and guidance.

During the past several years the need for Big Brothers in Columbus has constantly increased due to an increase in the number of boys being referred to our agency from churches, schools, the courts, mothers, and friends.

Men of good moral character are needed now to serve as volunteers. There is an urgent need for men in the South, East, West, Southeast, and Southwest sections of our city and County. Boys need your help. Be a Saturday Hero every day of the week. Be a Big Brother.

FOR INFORMATION CONTACT THE Big Brother Association of Columbus, Inc., 2104 Tuller Street, or call 294-4422.

CULMINATING three years of determined endeavor by community-devoted people, the Central Ohio Transit Authority (COTA) will take over ownership and management of the bus lines from the Columbus Transit Company on Tuesday, January 1.

Immediate progressive steps, effective January 1, announced by COTA President Robert Holland, are:

Continuance of the 50 cents fare on any regularly scheduled bus route. The additional "zone" charge on some routes and the extra charge on express buses will be discontinued.

The time privilege for use of transfers will be increased to our hour on weekdays, and two hours Sundays and holidays.

"Good As Gold" cards are available free to persons 65 and over. A card holder may ride a bus for 25 cents weekdays, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., and after 6 p.m., and all hours Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

New complete timetables for all bus routes have been developed and will be available on the buses, COTA offices at 10 W. Long St. and other convenient locations around the city. A new telephone information service will provide route and timetable information when citizens call 228-1776.

Theme of the promotional activities will be "The Transit Revolution" emphasizing the new look to bus service in Central Ohio.

United Way Agencies Receive Share Allotments

UNITED WAY'S 62 health, family, neighborhood and character-building agencies received their share of the $6,365,000 raised in the '73 campaign at the United Way of Franklin County, Inc. Board of Trustees meeting last week.

George W. Waylonis, Jr., chairman of the Budget and Finance Executive Committee, told the UW Board that agency requests for 1974, including special funds, totaled $7,360,215. Total funds available for allocation after allowing for 7 percent anticipated collection losses, amounted to $5,919,500. The approved allocation total exceeds the amount available for allocation in 1973 by $146,700 but falls short of the agencies' needs by more than $1,062,563.

OF THE 62 member agencies, 47 received increases over last year, seven the same amount and eight decreases. Friends in Action and Salesian Boys Club both are budgeted in 1974 as agencies since they will achieve full agency status in January bringing the total of UW agencies to 64. The amount allocated to member agencies, including United Way, totals $5,630,145.

The balance of $289,355 was appropriated to special funds. The $67,355 earmarked for the development and demonstration fund will provide a fund for the future support of new United Way programs.

So far, Hilltop Civic Council has been budgeted for $23,000 and Interfaith Counseling Service for $9,000 in this program.

THE RECOMMENDATIONS of the Budget and Finance Committee, which went to the UW Board for their approval, was based primarily on the recommendations of the eight budget panels. The panels, totally composed of over 100 volunteers, have been meeting with the agencies since October 10.

Waylonis estimates, "Over 2,000 man-hours went into the deliberation of the 1974 UW agency allocations. Allocation recommendations were not made capriciously. Agency requests were reviewed by the panels for relevance, quality, comprehensiveness and non-duplication in the community, and for other possible sources of funding."

Clyde R. Tipton, Jr., '73 campaign chairman, reported to the board that the '73 campaign had raised $6,365,000 representing 93.8 percent of the $6.8 million goal.

TIPTON NOTED, "This is a new level of fund raising in our community. As compared to the $6,165,000 raised last year the giving in Franklin County increased by 3.1 percent. This represents $200,000 in new money."

Tipton continued, "Even with the impact of the generally unpredictable economic and business situation we faced, a number of companies posted significant gains in both corporate and employee giving."

He pointed out that in Industrial A, which consists of industrial companies with 500 or more employees, employee giving increased over last year 50 percent in three firms.

In Commercial A, which is composed of commercial companies with 500 or more employees, giving over last year was up 43 percent in one company. Six other companies in Commercial A increased 25 per cent, 24 percent, 13 percent, two 11 percent, and one 8 percent. "These certainly are not just gains, but significant gains," Tipton emphasized.

OF THE $6,365,000 total, 25 percent represents corporate giving and 75 percent employee and individual giving.

A breakdown of the $200,000 in new money shows that: 40 percent came from Corporate and Commercial A divisions; 10 percent from Public Services; 10 percent from Government; 10 percent from Professional; 10 percent from Industrial B and Commercial B; and the remaining 20 percent was absorbed by the eight other campaign divisions.

Tipton outlined many of the highlights of the 1973 United Way Campaign. He pointed out that the Franklin County Loaned Executive program, since its inception three years ago, has developed into an invaluable part of the campaign effort. The number of loaned executives has increased from 15 in 1971 to 35 this campaign. These men and women were "loaned" to the United Way by 30 local companies for a period of five weeks.

SIGNIFICANT increases in giving are represented by the 11 percent increase over last year in peacemaker gifts and corporate giving ran over 5 percent ahead of last year.

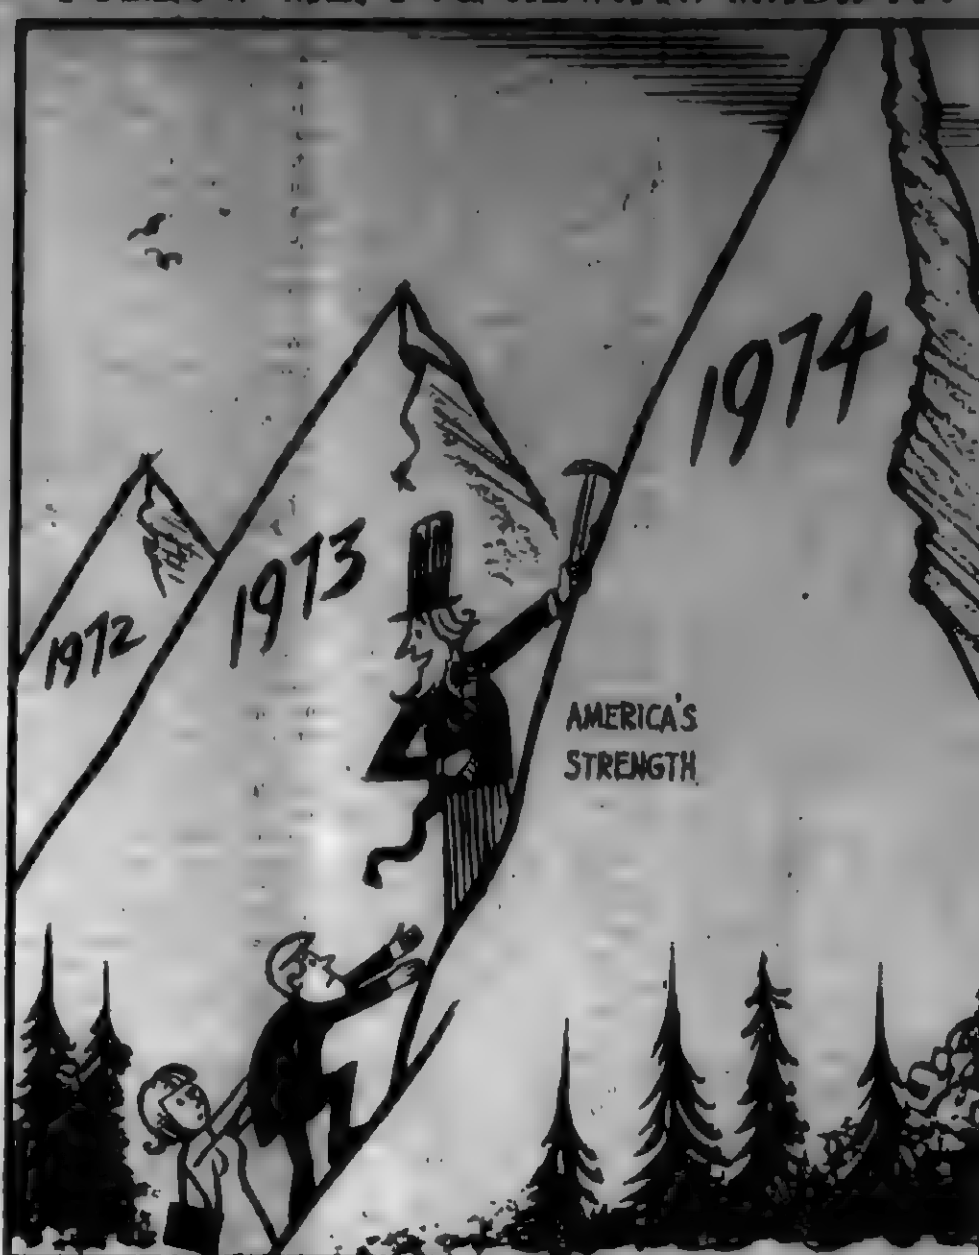

Among other highlights Tipton cited were the support of the Labor Participation Committee, the excellent Speakers and Tours Bureau, the overwhelming number of requests for the '73 campaign film "Turning Point," the back-up of the 62 UW agencies, and the success of the Firm Chairman's Training Seminar including the "Parade of Services" which took the agencies to the solicitors.

Tipton summed up his feelings about the campaign: "I think the $6,365,000 reaffirms the community does believe in the concept of United Way. The community did a good job, but we still have a long way to go."

"We won't be out of business, but we're still not meeting the needs of the community. What we did here in Franklin County this year is important, but we still have a gap. We will be looking hard at where we stumbled and be making plans for the '74 United Way campaign in the days ahead."

Eldon W. Ward, president, presented Tipton with a scrapbook and photo album of the '73 campaign on behalf of the UW Board of Trustees.

FOLLOW ME, I'VE ALWAYS MADE IT!

WIPE THE SLATE CLEAN

When the chips are down, the American family works just a bit harder, and maybe a bit longer, to attain its objectives.

We have just completed a year of crises in many areas. There are many challenges still facing us, but they can be solved through the application of one simple concept: work with confidence.

It is this ability to work which has helped us to be the breadbasket of the world. It has been the ability to discover and invent that has made the moon our newest frontier. It has been the ability to achieve, through mass production, the comforts and conveniences of a modern society which has drastically reduced the number of our poor people.

It has been the desire to provide for our families to the best of our abilities that has triggered more inventions in this generation than the total of those developed since the world began.

As we look into 1974, let's be objective so that we may record new accomplishments together.

Water Film Available To Groups

Rural water and sewer facilities still lag far behind urban ones, that's the message of a new slide film, "Rural Water - The Time Is Now," just released for general distribution by the Commission on Rural Water.

The 17-minute presentation documents the need for improved facilities... discusses the serious health effects under existing conditions... shows why current government programs are inadequate... describes efforts of the Commission and National Demonstration Water Project (NDWP) in helping to alleviate them... and offers suggestions for short and long-term programs that could bring rural facilities up to par with urban ones in a reasonable period of time.

The film is suitable for viewing by both local and national groups who have a stake in improving rural sanitation conditions. It was designed for ease of presentation. The slides are set in a standard Kodak Carousel - and the narration is on a cassette cartridge, with audible "beeps" to signal slide advance. There is no rental charge for a one-time showing.

For more information about the film and an order form, please write the Commission on Rural Water, Box 59, 221 N. La Salle St., Chicago, Ill., 60601.

Make A Dog Happy Get A Dog Licence

The 1974 dog licenses will go on sale at the Humane Society Animal Shelter, 2770 Groveport Pike, and at Sears Northland, 1811 Morse Road, Sears Eastland, 2765 Eastland Mall and Sears Westland, 4111 West Broad Street Saturday, December 1, and will be sold at those addresses seven days a week during normal working hours.

The regular sale period, for which licenses can be purchased without penalty, terminates Monday, January 21.

Licenses will also go on sale at the Franklin County Court House, the Hilliard Municipal Building, 372 Waterworks Drive, Hilliard, and the Grandview Heights Public Library, 1685 West 1st Ave., Monday, December 3, and will be sold at those establishments Mondays through Fridays during normal working hours.

Those not having an application form can still obtain a license easily by mail. All they need do is submit a description of the dog (sex, age, color, breed and whether it is long or short-haired), together with the owner's name and address to the Franklin County Auditor's Office, License Division, Court House, Columbus, Ohio 43215, together with a self-addressed, stamped envelope and the appropriate fee.

All dogs three months or older on January 1, 1974 must be licensed.

Kennel licenses are $10 each through the January 21 deadline, after which there is an additional $5 penalty assessment.

Those purchasing by mail are urged to send no cash; rather, they should remit by money order or check.

There will be a thirty-five cents ($35) service charge, over and above the regular $5 fee, for licenses purchased at the Animal Shelter, the Sears stores or at the Grandview of Hilliard locations.

The offices of County Auditor Arch J. Warren are open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, and there is no service charge for licenses handled through his office.

Check Presented To State Patrol Retirement Board

Colonel Robert M. Charamonte, Superintendent of the Ohio State Highway Patrol, presented a check in the amount of $23,227 to the State Highway Patrol Retirement Board at a meeting of the Retirement Board in Columbus last week.

The check represented funds over and above expenses incurred in putting on a 40th Anniversary party in Columbus for members of the Patrol, retired officers, widows and friends on November 16.

The event attracted nearly 1100 persons for a dinner-dance which had as its theme, "40 Years of Service." Among the notables present were past and present governors, legislators, judges and other public officials who contributed to the State Highway Patrol's growth and recognition as one of the outstanding police agencies in the country.

Superintendent Charamonte explained that the planned surplus of $23,227 represents the difference between costs and receipts from individual registrations and purchase of tables by those in attendance.

The State Auditor's office, at Colonel Charamonte's request, audited the financial records of the affair before the balance of funds was presented to the Retirement Board. The Highway Patrol Retirement System statutes permit the acceptance of rewards, bequests and gifts.

The 40th Anniversary was successful from every standpoint with a great many people giving freely of their time and talents to assure that success, the Colonel added.

St. Agnes School Shares Christmas

West—Columbus—The students of St. Agnes School, 2360 W. Mound St., are very much aware of the meaning of Christmas. Since the spirit of Christmas is one of giving, these boys and girls have been giving of their time and talent.

The sharing has been with senior citizens of the west side area. The first grade made stockings filled with candy canes while the fourth grade visited WeCare Rest

Home and sang carols. The students of grade eight visited McDowell and Worley Rest Homes where they entertained the men and women and presented them with gifts which they had made.

Many classes gave Christmas plays for their parents and for the other classes in the school.

To help instill the true Christmas spirit in preschoolers St. Agnes parish had a birthday celebration for the Christ Child. A Mass was offered Christmas Eve at which only pre-schoolers and their parents could attend. There was a birthday cake for Jesus, and after Mass there were cupcakes and ice cream in the Social Hall for the little ones. Hopefully, this will emphasize the fact that Christmas has a deeper meaning than just Santa Claus and presents.

GYMNASTICS

The week of Jan. 7 begins new registration for gymnastics classes at Westgate Recreation Center. Classes are offered for all skill levels and ages. Registration may be completed at the Center or by phone (274-1915) after 2 p.m. Monday, Jan. 7.

Register early because classes are rapidly filled and closed at that point. Adults are encouraged to participate in the program Tuesday afternoon from 1-3 and Friday evenings 8:30-9:45 p.m. No previous experience or skill is necessary.

A gymnastics show will be held at Westgate Wednesday, Jan. 9, at 7:30 p.m. The gymnasts from Westgate will demonstrate their tumbling skills in this program.

The Westgate Junior and Senior Gymnastics Teams are preparing routines on the various pieces of equipment which they have selected to become proficient. Working the four-inch-wide beam requires extreme confidence and sureness of movement. The routine composition must include tumbling tricks as well as dance moves.

Participating on the team will be Sheila Burke, Sue Colopy, Sue Ingram, Kathy Krick and Angela McCoy.

Bar routines combine the elements of strength and acute coordination. Gymnasts must use the bars in both directions and must include a variety of releases and swinging movements from one bar to another. Bar execution requires extreme precision to produce a successfully smooth flowing routine. Doreen Burke, Roseanna Nickoloff, Brenda Pence and Karen Scales are ready to attempt this challenge.

Jeanna Nickoloff, Shelly Rhodes, Becky Reed and Michelle Wood will experiment in the art of free exercise composition. Free exercise is intricate and demanding not only in its structure and composition, but also in its execution of tumbling and dance moves. The gymnast must possess the qualities of rhythm, strength, flexibility, coordination and appearance. The over popular trampoline will be at the disposal of Roberta Colburn, Sue Ingram and Angela Gorman. Their routines of rebound tumbling require a well developed kinesthetic sense while in the air, coupled with endurance to produce controlled and precise movement.

GOLF LESSONS

Westgate Recreation Center will be offering free golf lessons for adults and children beginning the first week in January and ending the first of March. Instruction will be given by golf pros from one of the city-owned golf courses.

The lessons will be once a week for an hour. Students need to wear gym shoes and may bring their own golf clubs. The golf instructors will provide golf balls and clubs for those who need them.

Anyone who would like to learn to play golf or wants to improve their game may sign up for a lesson today. Lessons will be given Tuesdays, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Wednesdays and Fridays, 1 to 10 p.m. Call the Center to register, 274-1915.

Connors Will Be At Holiday

Bob Connors, popular WBNS radio personality, will appear New Year's Eve at Holiday Inn O.S.U., 328 West Lane Avenue across from St. John Arena.

Connors is well known for his off air appearances as they revolve around the popular theme of "golden oldie" entertainment. As interest in nostalgia has grown, so has the production. Connors shares his unique collection of 45 rpm records and specially produced tapes through a sophisticated sound system.

The Connors memory provoking atmosphere at the Holiday Inn will be further enhanced by a live band playing good old rock and roll.

A special feature of the evening will be a saddle shoe dance contest. Winners in each category will be awarded real honest goodness.

Why does Connors get so involved with his presentations... he says, "The 50's were fun. It's that simple!"

During Winter Months the Columbus Auto Club-AAA says that motorists should exercise special care even if the road ahead appears clear.

Since traffic moves at a normal rate of speed under this condition, braking to avoid an unexpected icy area can be extremely hazardous. Drivers should be especially on guard for icy patches at intersections, hills and

Cage Stars Individual Glitter Helps Season

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Spectator Sports Writer

THOSE AREA stars are shining brighter than ever. Not the stars in the sky, but the stars that are leading those area roundball quintets. And now, while things lighten up for the Christmas break, it's time to check them out. It's a star studded cast this season. Loden central basketball district and perhaps, shining brightest of all, is Whitehall's super-Ram Terry Burris.

Burris tossed in 21 points in vain last weekend as the Ram's Ohio Capital Conference win stain was ended by Gahanna 78-71. Tall Terry, 6-6, has been firing at a 25 plus points per game clip so far, in this not so young season leading the Rams to their first place OCC tie-up.

COONSIDERED a major college prospect, Burris has basketball as well as track coaches drooling for his post-high services. Burris cleared the seven foot mark in the high jump last year earning him national prominence.

Reynoldsburg sports a standout of its own in stringy Ed Williams. Long Ed was instrumental in the Raiders' one point win over Westerville, scoring an usual while also clearing the boards 18 times.

And smoothest of all the smoothies may just be Eastmoor's soft-touch high-arching jump-shot specialist Brian Sterizer. Big Brian popped for 24 in the Warriors' impressive 82-58 embarrassing of South. OTHER shining floor leaders last week had Ron Williams leading the West charge over Mifflin, while scrappy Mike Gilliland sparked Hartley's conquest of Wehrle.

Mark Abramson poured in 21 in a Bexley victory over Hilliard and Larry First was sterling (34 points) despite a Franklin Heights loss to Hamilton Township.

OTHER AREA action found Ready slimmering St. Charles, Westland trimming Worthington and Central dimming Walnut Ridge.

So Santa's Christmas break shows Mohawk leading the City, Bexley a surprise first-place in the Mid-Elit, Hartley and Watterson in a share in the Central Catholic League and Whitehall and Mt. Vernon co-top the OCC.

And while no one knows for sure how their tangled schoolboy roundball races will finish, one thing is for sure-the stars, will shine for ever.

Recreational Vehicle Show At Fairgrounds In January

THE MANY facets of owning and operating recreational vehicles will be widely demonstrated and discussed at the All America Camping and Recreational Vehicle Show January 2-6 at the Ohio Expositions Center.

More than 300 of the latest models of camping and recreational vehicles, including motor homes, travel trailers and truck campers, will be displayed. The huge showing of campers and related accessories is being sponsored by member-dealers of the Central Ohio Chapter of Ohio Recreational Vehicle Dealers.

ITS QUITE likely, however, the big interest of the show will be the word from campground operators and association experts who will be on hand to discuss with owners and prospective buyers how to get the most from their recreational vehicles during the uncertainties of the energy situation.

"Our dealers and exhibitors will have the answers and many helpful tips," said Gene Keener, executive director of the Ohio Recreational Vehicle Association, producer of the show.

"WE KNOW for sure," continued Keener, "that in spite of the energy problems, people will continue to seek and enjoy outdoor recreation." Keener points out there are some 350 privately-owned and 43 state operated campgrounds in Ohio available for the enjoyment of outdoor recreation-minded Ohioans.

Many of these are situated near sports and recreation areas having numerous winter and summer activities, and most are within a "thankful of gas" range from the Central Ohio area.

KEENER'S association is strongly suggesting that vehicle owners place their campers motor homes permanently, or at least for the duration of the energy shortage, at a favorite campground, and use the vehicle as a meeting place for family and friends.

"The recreational vehicle can be the family's headquarters for recreation during the energy shortage," Keener added.

animals can cause. In most instances an ounce of prevention keeping animals out is much more desirable than a pound of cure trying to remove one that becomes established.

An inspection of the outside of the house for holes, no matter how small, is the first order of business. Look for holes around the foundation, under the porch ventilation openings in roof peaks and under and around eaves. All holes, regardless of size, should be covered with one quarter inch hardware cloth, available at hardware stores.

Raccoons, squirrels and mice can squeeze through extremely small openings for their size, and in time chew them into larger passageways.

Last but not least, cover the chimney with hardware cloth and secure it firmly in place. Not only birds use chimneys but squirrels and raccoons find them handy entrance ways and will remove a loosely placed cover.

OHIOANS must reconsider their driving habits during the present fuel shortage, says Natural Resources Director William B. Nye.

"Many of us have become so used to our cars, that we've forgotten our legs, perhaps a walk to the grocery or a bicycle ride there, would be worth the few minutes more it might take to get there and back."

Nuisance Animals There are times when the compatibility of man and animal becomes a little strained and until one has had a raccoon in the basement, a squirrel nest in roof or wall insulation, birds in the chimney or chipmunks undermining a prized tulip garden, it may be hard to appreciate the problems

Hunting Opportunity For Avid Sportsman Many hunters hang up their guns when the Holidays arrive and, for most the hunting is over until next season. Although the pressure drops off about fifty per cent, there is still time for the avid sportsman to run his dog and get some shooting in.

The split pheasant season re-opened December 31 running through January 1 on private land and through January 25 on public hunting areas. January 26 marks the end of rabbit and quail season on private and public land and February 23 ends the grouse season on public land but runs through December 22 on public hunting areas.

Raccoon hunting ends January 31. Deer bow season ends January 5.

With the crops in, the rabbits, pheasants and quail will be concentrating in the remaining cover.

Remember to show respect and consideration for the land owners by asking permission before you hunt.

Ball Gets Slap-Happied

THE HAWKS of Hartley got past Bishop Ready in a Central Catholic league clash over the holidays. Here's some of the action as a Hawk at left slaps the ball away from the surprised Ready cager. It was a momentary victory for the Hawks ending Ready's 10-game CCL winning streak.

Film Slated

The Ohio Historical Center will continue its free film series this weekend with a portrait of one of America's greatest screen lovers. "The Legend of Valentino" makes use of behind the scenes footage and excerpts from his famous films to show the magic of Rudolph Valentino.

The film will be shown free of charge in the Center's auditorium at 2 and 3 p.m. this Saturday and Sunday. The center is located on I-71 just north of the Ohio State Fairgrounds.

It's Really Spectacular

Salt Fork State Park Has Everything

EDITOR'S NOTE: Ohio has 62 state parks, but most Ohioans are familiar with only a few of the parks and the opportunities for outdoor recreation that they offer. This is one of a series of stories designed to make Ohioans more aware of what their state parks have to offer.

SALT FORK State Park in Guernsey County is one of the premier recreation areas in America.

Salt Fork, largest of Ohio's highly regarded system of state parks, was expected to be popular when it was officially opened in May, 1970.

And it was.

Then, in May, 1972, Governor John J. Gilligan opened the park's 148-room lodge and 84 deluxe housekeeping cabins, and the park's popularity skyrocketed.

In 1972, some 900,000 people visited the park. This year, the figure stands at nearly 1.6 million.

"Salt Fork State Park truly is one of the finest facilities in the nation," said Natural Resources Director William B. Nye. "It took nearly 17 years and almost $20 million to develop, but Salt Fork can be pointed to with pride by all Ohio citizens."

THE PARK, not far from the world's largest highway interchange, the junction of I-70 and I-77, is easily accessible from nearly anywhere in Ohio.

The main entrance is on U.S. Route 22, seven miles from Cambridge, 88 miles from Columbus, 86 miles from Akron, 56 miles from Wheeling, W. Va., and 60 miles from Marietta.

Natural Resources Department officials expect Salt Fork to become even more popular in the near future as Ohioans take a closer look at how far they want to travel for a vacation in light of the shortage of gasoline.

OHIOANS as well as travelers from other parts of the country delight in the recreational opportunities offered at Salt Fork.

Last May, park visitor response cards were placed in Ohio's state parks. The visitors were requested to comment about the parks on a detachable postcard addressed to Governor Gilligan at the Statehouse in Columbus.

Some of the most glowing reports were from visitors at Salt Fork:

"We have traveled to parks all over the United States and Canada and this area is one of the most beautiful we've ever seen," said a visitor from San Marcos, Calif.

"WE WISH Pennsylvania had such excellent facilities," noted a Pittsburgh visitor.

The response that pleased park manager Robert McAndrews the most was one that read: "This is the best kept park we've ever stayed in."

McAndrews, who oversees a full-time staff of 50 employees, is enthusiastic about Salt Fork.

"OUR MAIN beach is the largest inland beach in Ohio," he said. "We had 8,000 swimmers last July 4." The beach measures 2,500 feet in length, nearly a half-mile.

The beach, though, is just a dot along the 74 miles of shoreline of 2,952-acre Salt Fork Lake. There are four boat ramp sites plus a marina, which includes 350 boat slips, two four-lane launching ramps and fuel facilities.

In all, Salt Fork State Park and the adjacent Salt Fork Wildlife Area encompass 23,143 acres.

"It takes a lot of work to maintain the park, but the staff here is tremendous," said McAndrews. "The employees take pride in their park."

McAndrews is proud of Salt Fork's mounted ranger staff of three full-time rangers, Willard McCauley, David Seerest and Donald Vincent, plus Karen Kline, who spends part of her time as a secretary and dispatcher in the park office.

"We are able to cover a lot of ground using horses, including some areas that can't be reached by trucks or boats," McAndrews said.

"WE USED the mounted patrols through the month of November this year because of the fuel shortage."

The mounted rangers are popular with park visitors and are finding their services in demand for parades and other events in and around Guernsey County.

Other features of the park pointed to with pride by McAndrews are the facilities for the handicapped. These facilities include special campsites, special-made picnic tables, restroom facilities and a hard-surface nature trail. Designed for wheel chairs, the half-mile trail has interpretive signs posted along the route.

A SPECIAL trail for the blind will be opened at Salt Fork next spring. It will be a gravel walkway, marked with numbered signs that will correspond with information recorded on tape. Several tapes and tape recorders will be available at the park office.

In addition to Salt Fork State Park Lodge and the 84 cabins, Salt Fork has a 212-unit Class A camping area. All are open year-round.

The lodge has a dining room, coffee shop, snack bar, gift shop, lounge and lobby areas, indoor games area, arts and crafts area and a meeting room with accommodations for 25 to 300 people.

THE CABINS are near the lodge and each has four rooms, a bath, a screened-in porch and an all-electric kitchen equipped with cooking and eating utensils. Four twin beds, a hide-a-bed and all the necessary linen and bedding provide comfortable sleeping for six people.

For the enjoyment of lodge and cabin guests, there are indoor and outdoor swimming pools, tennis, volleyball and shuffleboard courts, a 400-foot swimming beach, and boat launching and docking facilities.

Boaters flock to Salt Fork Lake during the summer months. Boats with unlimited horsepower are permitted. Combined speed-ski zones are marked by buoys.

FISHING is excellent on the lake, which is well stocked with largemouth bass, crappie, bluegill, walleye, muskellunge, catfish, sucker and carp.

Game and non-game species of wildlife flourish on the wildlife area. Deer are plentiful, as are other game species, including rabbit, squirrel, grouse, quail, woodchuck, raccoon, muskrat, mink, beaver and waterfowl.

SALT FORK has several miles of well-marked hiking trails and scenic bridge trails.

A park naturalist is on duty during the summer to conduct programs of nature study. The programs include slide talks, motion pictures, campfire programs, hikes, and a junior naturalist program for youths 9 to 14 years of age.

Salt Fork is said to have gotten its name from a salt well used by Indians who roamed the area before white settlers arrived in the early 1800s. The well was near the southeastern corner of what is now Salt Fork State Park.

Modern development at Salt Fork began in 1955 when the Ohio Legislature provided $250,000 to the division of water of the Department of Natural Resources for "Guernsey-Salt Fork Watershed Development."

A STUDY completed in 1957 determined that construction of Salt Fork Reservoir was feasible. Purchases of farmland and woodland that would be inundated by the reservoir began in April, 1960.

The reservoir was constructed in two phases, and was completed in September, 1968.

When the park opened, facilities included entrance and interior roads, parking lots, beach and bathhouse complex, camping areas and a marina.

TO INSURE adequate service facilities for future development, a water treatment plant, water storage tank and three sewage treatment plants were constructed.

The park's development came to fruition in May, 1972, with the opening of the vacation lodge and cabin complex, including roads, parking lots, boat launching ramp, and 18-hole golf course and pro shop and water and sanitary facilities.

The lodge and cabin complex and the related facilities cost $10,230,765 to build, for a total Salt Fork development cost of $18,121,906.

As the park becomes more popular, additional development has been planned. A new service building is near completion, and McAndrews said three new picnic areas will be ready next summer.

"WE THINK Salt Fork is the showcase of the state parks system," said McAndrews. "Not many would dispute that claim."

Supplemental Security Income Reports Filed

Two-hundred and thirty-four people in the Franklin County have applied for supplemental security income payments, the Federal program starting in January that will establish a nationally uniform income floor for people with little or no income who are 65 or over, or blind, or disabled.

Social Security offices are taking applications now from people who aren't getting State or local public assistance payments but who think they may be eligible for supplemental security income, according to James B. Ilencik, social security district manager in Columbus.

"People who aren't getting State or local assistance payments should apply now for supplemental security income so their applications can be processed before the program begins in January," Ilencik said.

People don't need to apply for supplemental security income payments if they get State or local assistance payments because they're 65 or over, or blind, or disabled, according to Ilencik.

"Eligible people getting State or local payments for December will continue to get payments in January when the Federal program starts," he said.

The amount of the monthly check people will get will depend on how much other income they might have. "People with no other income at all will have a basic cash income of at least $130 a month for one person and $195 for a couple," Ilencik said.

"People with other income may get reduced supplemental security income checks."

Federal supplemental security income payments will be made by the Social Security Administration, but the program will be financed by Federal general tax revenues—not by social security contributions. The Columbus social security office is at 170 North High St. The phone number is 469-8550.

The Columbus Ballet Company presents

'The Nutcracker'

Preparations are now under way for the Columbus Ballet Company production of The Nutcracker. It will be held December 20-23 with matinees at 2 p.m. and evening performances at 8 p.m. at the Ohio Theater.

This is the annual production of the Columbus Ballet Company. The Historical Alexander Benoit set, mounted by the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, will again be used, but many new properties and costumes are being added.

Changes are also being made in the choreography, set by the company's artistic director, Tatjana Alkindleva-Smith. Special guest artists for this production will be Veronica Tennant and Sergio Stefanich of the National Ballet of Canada.

This is a true holiday treat for all central Ohio. The two stars will dance the roles of the Sugar Plum Fairy and Nutcracker Prince.

Tickets are $3.50 Lege and Center Section of the Orchestra, $2.50 Front Balcony and Side Sections of the Orchestra and $2 Upper Balcony.

The cast is comprised of ballet students from Central Ohio, after strenuous try-outs to be in the company. Helping plan the event which will attract 12,000 people are these women of the Columbus Ballet: Mrs. Raymond W. Bethel, Mrs. Kenneth L. Bishop, Mrs. Eleanor A. Geipi, Mrs. Nat Greenberg, Mrs. John Haldi, Mrs. George Heer, Mrs. Byron Ireland, Mrs. John Stevens, Mrs. MalvinSchottenstein, Mrs. Stanley Schwartz, Mrs. Evan Whallon, Mrs. Richard M. Wolfe, Mrs. Barry Zacks, Mrs. David Gage, and Mrs. Roger Redick.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or reserved by calling 469-1045 through Dec. 20.

OSU Research Shows Need For Master Truck Terminal

THE NUMBER of trucks making small freight deliveries in large cities could be cut by approximately 80 percent through a method studied by Ohio State University researchers.

The result would be less congestion, fuel savings, and slightly cleaner air.

THE METHOD proposes a consolidated freight terminal to receive, sort, and send shipments in fewer trucks than currently in use.

Shipments of a thousand pounds and less represent most of the deliveries and pick-ups in a city, the researchers said.

THEIR STUDY showed that if Columbus, a typical large city, had a consolidated freight terminal in addition to its 76 private terminals, the number of trucks downtown could be reduced from 660 to some 70 or 80, said Dr. James F. Robeson, chief investigator and professor and chairman of marketing.

Cooperating in the study are Dr. Bernard J. LaLonde, who is the James A. Riley Professor of Transportation and Business Logistics; Dr. Dennis R. McDermott, assistant professor of MGT MARKETING AT Syracuse University, and two doctoral candidates.

WHILE THEY know of no consolidated general freight terminals currently in existence, there are one-product terminals. Also, England, France, and Holland are studying consolidated terminals for urban areas, they added.

"Because of the energy crisis, air pollution, and traffic congestion," said Dr. LaLonde, "we need to find a better way to deliver goods in urban areas. Consumers and users end up paying for inefficient delivery. That's a major reason it costs more to live in New York City."

The $60,000 study, still continuing, is funded by the Urban Mass Transportation Administration of the U.S. Department of Transportation.

FOR PART OF the study, university students conducted a cordon-crossing survey in which general freight trucks were counted and classified as they entered Columbus' central business district, Dr. Robeson said.

They interviewed drivers of about half the general freight trucks and distributed forms to others, 20 percent of whom completed them. The study excluded trucks delivering foods as well as postal and parcel service trucks that specialize in small deliveries, he said.

THIS PART of the study showed that 660 vehicles carried general freight shipments of a thousand pounds and less into Columbus every day. About half the trucks were 26-foot delivery trucks while one-fourth were pick-up or panel trucks, and one-fourth were semi-trailer combinations.

THE RESEARCHERS found the trucks were usually only one-third full, traveled at an average speed of 5.2 miles per hour in the city, and emitted 460 pounds of carbon monoxide, 106 pounds of hydrocarbons, and 36 pounds of nitrogen oxide. However, these emissions were equal to only about five percent of the total emissions from vehicles, Dr. Robeson said.

Of the total time the vehicle was in use, 35 percent of the time was spent in transit, 40 percent was unloading time, eight percent was loading time, and 25 percent was spent lining up at the dock. These figures are in line with other studies in this field, he said.

"WE THEN utilized computer to determine whether a consolidated terminal might be feasible," Dr. Robeson said. "The simulation model we developed indicates that substantial economic benefits might be realized through implementing the consolidated terminal concept."

But, the terminal construction and operating costs also must be taken into consideration as soon as they are determined.

SUCH A terminal, handling only goods that can be mingled and excluding perishable items, would lead to the easing of congestion in traffic and at loading docks, and improve the efficiency of small freight shipping, the researchers said.

Other phases of the study to be completed by July 1, 1974, are design of a consolidated terminal and consideration of where it might be best located in Columbus. Research methods in the study could be adapted for other studies, they said.

"THE MAJOR problem concerning freight consolidation involves implementation," Dr. Robeson said. "A number of Interstate Commerce Commission rulings would have to be changed and there would be major problems in coordinating paperwork and shipment flows. In addition, there are attitude problems—anything this innovative is highly questioned."

To present their preliminary findings and gather reactions, particularly from trucking company officials, the researchers held a seminar at Ohio State in August. The officials of about 20 trucking companies as well as state and federal transportation specialists and others said they agreed that the concept of a consolidated terminal was interesting and might prove feasible, but much additional research was still required, Dr. LaLonde said.

"THE TRUCKING companies have large investments in their trucks and terminals," he said. "While they don't want to lose these investments, they realize they must look into such future alternatives as consolidated terminals. They are now beginning to face problems of restrictions on the hours that deliveries can be made in some cities."

Columbus Convention Bureau Makes City Beautiful Awards

Eleven properties in Columbus are recipients of "City Beautiful" plaques awarded by Columbus Convention Bureau and its affiliate organization, The Helmsmen, in recognition of beautification of their places of operation. Awards were presented by Roy A. Stage, Bureau President, at a meeting December 12, at the Neil House.

In making the presentations Stage commented that "Recognition of the fine appearance of buildings housing commercial, government, religious and club operations is long overdue."

The extra effort these people have made to add beauty to our city benefits residents and visitors alike and from the Convention Bureau viewpoint they are also making a highly valuable contribution of our city's convention and visitor industry and we appreciate it. We are hopeful that these awards will set a trend that will spread citywide in years ahead."

Test of the award follows: "On behalf of all residents of Columbus, Ohio, this certificate is given in appreciation of the excellent appearance of your property and its surroundings."

"This tangible evidence of your vital interest in continued beautification of your place of operation adds immeasurably to the desirability of our city as a place to live, work and visit. Please know that your contribution is recognized and is deeply appreciated as evidenced by this certificate, presented by Columbus Convention and Visitors Bureau and the Helmsmen."

A three man committee composed of Leland Brubaker of Brubaker and Brandt, as Chairman, Leland McClelland, Artist and Heber Corn, Marketing Manager, Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Company, made the selection of 1973 winners in the early fall.

In announcing this year's winners, committee members commented "There are additional candidates throughout greater Columbus and we are hopeful that these properties will continue their programs of beautification and that the project will be contagious with all sectors doing their share in beautifying their land and buildings. Columbus Convention Bureau plans similar awards each year."

Awards were presented to the following properties:

Buckeye Federal Savings and Loan Association, 2150 East Broad Street, Ralph Kunze, President;

Buckeye Union Insurance Company, 1111 East Broad Street, Donald R. Haverick, President;

Chemical Abstracts Service, 2540 Glenkangy River Road, Dale Baker, Director, Columbus Center, 100 East Broad Street, John W. Galtbreath.

At The Forks This Week

The Ohio State University Cooperative Extension Service in cooperation with the Metropolitan Parks is sponsoring a 1-day seminar on beekeeping Friday, December 28, at Blacklick Woods Beech-Maple Lodge.

Subjects to be covered are beekeeping; equipment; queens, pollen and nectar requirements; diseases and pests; package bees; swarm control; honey handling; and proper colony management.

The program is for amateur beekeepers, teachers, naturalists, students or anyone else interested in bees.

You must pre-register by calling 882-1796. The fee of $2.00 covers registration and lunch.

Reservations are now being accepted for the winter session of the Junior Naturalist program. This program of outdoor learning, fun, and adventure is for area children aged nine or older. Nature preserves, plants, animals, and ecology are the main topics. The winter session meets the four Saturday mornings of January.

The program will be held both at Beech-Maple Lodge at Blacklick Woods and the Nature Barn at Sharon Woods. The $3 fee covers the cost of the textbook and the arm patch awarded those completing the program.

Call 882-1796 for registration or information.

Blendon Woods: An owl walk is set to begin at 5 p.m. Saturday, January 5, from the Visitor Center. Following an introductory program on the eight owl found in Ohio, the group will move outside. Naturalist Nym Fry will play tape recordings to attempt to make the resident owl answer or to lure them in close enough to see.

The Walden Wildlife Refuge remains open daily 3 to 5 p.m. and weekends 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. for the observation of migrating waterfowl. Naturalists are on duty and telescopes are provided. This past week two very rare northern birds—an old squaw duck and a Richardson's goose—were present on Thoreau Pond.

Kiwanis Nets $14,990

West Columbus—The Hilltop Kiwanis Club annual Christmas newspaper sale Dec. 12, netted $14,250 at the auction at a Lincoln Lodge luncheon. Shown above are high bidders Sam Alford, Buckeye Federal; Carlton Hartley for Alan Ortilp, planned communities and Madison Press; George Tyler, Danite Sign Co.; and Dr. Albert Truxel, for Captains Cove Marina. Herman Coffman of Coffman Optical had the high bid on Herman the lamb which has served as a special incentive to sell ads for the paper. The Club received $4,500 in donations during the street sale. With the ads sold for the paper, the Club took in a total of $14,990. The money will be used for projects which benefit the community.

Two Officers Receive Chiefs Commendation

Columbus—Commendations were presented to two police officers by Chief of Police, Earl Burden Dec. 24.

Sergeant Lawrence Bigler and Patrolman Paul Phalen were given commendations for the apprehension of an armed subject at the Owens Illinois Plant on Jenkins Ave.

On Oct. 29 this subject entered the plant and was holding several hostages in the personnel office. A third officer entered and while engaging the subject in conversation the hostages were able to slip out of the room. As the subject relaxed during the conversation, Sergeant Bigler and Patrolman Phalen were able to get close enough to disarm him. The commendations by the Chief cite the above officers "for their calm, cool and professional manner displayed in a situation that could have resulted in injury or loss of life."

Lloyd Clark Retires After 37 Years

WEST COLUMBUS—The mailmen at the Hilltop station said goodbye to Lloyd Clark as he retired after 37 and a half years. Clark joined the postal system June 24, 1936. He was promoted to assistant manager of the Hilltop station November, 1960 and to manager of the station in February, 1971. Clark has lived all of his life on the Hilltop and currently lives at 3609 Palmiste. He is a member of the Hilltop Friends Church, 3750 Sullivant Ave., and the Hilltop Kiwanis Club. He is planning a vacation in Hawaii after the holidays. Joe Bennett, assistant manager of station operations, is shown congratulating Clark at the end of his postal career. (Photo by Kathy Devaney)

Residents Concerned About High School Delay

By KATHY DEVANEY

West Columbus—The community leaders and parents who worked on the Briggs Rd.-Eureka Avenue High School Project for 10-11 months are concerned about the continuing delay in the approval of the preliminary drawings—first step in the process of building a school.

The preliminary drawings were returned to the architect for more work after a superintendent's cabinet meeting Nov. 21. The plans were to be presented at the Dec. 4 meeting of the board of education.

Members of the committee were told questions were raised about the "limited number of windows, how an overflow crowd sitting in the commons area could see the stage and how the theater area would be divided."

Will Volkmar is "thoroughly disgusted."

"I FEEL WE did nothing but waste time in hard effort and planning. There's nothing spectacular about the plans. It looks as if they just opened a drawer, pulled out some plans and said this is what you wanted. It is nothing like what we wanted. I think they should forget the whole thing and just extend West."

He feels citizens were involved so when problems develop when the school is opened, they will get the blame from the public.

"If the community can't have what it wants the money should be used to expand the existing facility," he said. "With every delay the costs go up and up. The more material costs the less we will have in the school."

The people on the committee honestly and sincerely thought they were doing something helpful, he said.

Margie Port doesn't understand the delay either but she doesn't want to say the committee and she wasted their time.

"I DON'T WANT to feel it was a waste of time. If I thought that from the beginning like some did, I wouldn't have gone to all those meetings. But if the delays continue, I will think it was a waste of time," she said.

She will give the benefit of the doubt, hoping the plans will come up for consideration in January—one year after the first committee meeting.

Harry Grashel, like other committee members, has been getting a lot of calls and people asking about it when he is out in the community. "They say it seems to have been dropped."

"It looks like the west side is going to be left out in the cold again. I noticed in the papers that additions have been approved for other high schools which are newer than West. We still have the same old high school. I understand material shortages, but the voters were told the west side high school was one of the priorities for the bond issue," he said.

Nancy Truitt is very unhappy with the delay and very discouraged.

"SOME THINGS WE weren't happy with in the plans but we compromised and all in all it was a good incorporation of ideas. This postponement means another year of work. It just goes on and on. I feel they're foot-dragging."

"If the school system wants an operating levy next year, the west side will boo them out of town," she said.

Lois Neff said, "I feel that with the declining enrollment at West, unless the State Board can assure taking in areas south of Clime, there doesn't seem to be much of a need for a new high school. I would be in favor of putting the money into West. My biggest gripe is for all the work we did, we didn't get anything we said we wanted on the original educational specifications. We're getting a token which is nothing like what we worked on."

As background the following is what the committee did in the first two months (which appeared in the Spectator):

THE ADVISORY committee on educational program and facilities for the new Briggs Road-Eureka Avenue Senior High School wish to keep the community informed of the progress made toward the school.

At the first meeting held Jan. 25 at Hilltop Junior High participants were introduced followed by a discussion of information such as "Building Program-Phase I"; Dr. Ellis' charge to the committee; the general description and budget for the school; a checklist for educational specifications; ideas from award winning schools; and a west area city map.

The group met with the architect who will have a representative at every meeting to work with the committee.

Five sub-committees were formulated on the basis of studies.

THEY INCLUDE: social studies (history government, geography), language arts (English, foreign language, journalism), math-science (math, algebra, geometry, biology, physics, chemistry), fine and performing arts (vocal music, instrumental music, art, drama, physical), and practical arts-vocational education (industrial arts, wood, metal, drafting, home ec., business education).

At the second meeting at Hilltop Feb. 1 members heard Warren Beers, special assistant to the superintendent and Dr. Howard Merriman, in charge of the development of the building program.

They talked to the group about site location, projected growth and practical problems. After alternatives were considered this group decided on the Briggs-Eureka site as the location.

The group also heard from Richard Weber, instruction coordinator at West High School who talked about the present curriculum at West.

THEY ALSO HEARD from Richard Mague, senior counselor at West, who spoke about the community and student needs in relation to the new senior high school.

At the third meeting Feb. 7 at Hilltop sub-groups met for one hour to discuss goals for each area—philosophy, objectives, activities, equipment, furniture needs, space relationships, space needs, etc.

After a break the sub-groups met with departmental directors from the educational center who shared expertise in their field, including latest trends.

Feb. 14 and 15 groups toured the new Dublin High School and they toured Westland High School and viewed a film called "To Build a School House."

AT THE FEBRUARY meeting of the Hilltop Community Council Charles E. Pollock, chairman of the advisory committee, said the school had been budgeted for $3.4 million and would be designed for 800 students and be expandable to 1,600 in the future. The committee was composed of 10 professional people and 16 lay people who met weekly to design the program and how the building would be used.

Senior Citizens To Get Reduced COTA Bus Rate

Columbus—Columbus senior citizens may register for half fare bus tickets throughout the month of January, according to Robert J. Holland, president of the Central Ohio Transit Authority (COTA).

Anyone 65 or older may apply for their photo identification card weekdays 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. They must have a Medicare card, driver's license, birth certificate or other document proving their age.

Senior citizens may begin riding buses for half price all day Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, and between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. and after 6 p.m. weekdays, as soon as they have their card, according to Central Ohio Transit Authority officials.

Application sites in the West area are: McDowell Senior Citizen's Center, 275 McDowell St., from Jan. 1 through 31, and at St. John's Lutheran Church, 2745 W. Broad St., Jan. 18-31.

In February, a permanent application center will be established by COTA, says Henry Schwartz, director of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program. They will help at several locations.

The Franklin County Council on Aging and the Columbus Foundation are financing initial production and distribution of the cards.

For further information call COTA headquarters, 238-1776.

Worried About '75 Budget

Ellis Presents '74 Appropriation Measure

Columbus—Superintendent Dr. John Ellis submitted the school administration's proposed 1974 Appropriation Measure to the Columbus Board of Education meeting as a Committee of the Whole, Thursday, Dec. 27.

The Measure totals $101,761,280 and represents an increase of 7.1 per cent over 1973 expenditures, according to Ellis.

Ellis said, "1974 should be a good fiscal year for the Columbus Public Schools. We have sufficient money to operate with a prudent budget."

He added, "We must watch expenditures carefully. The needs far exceed dollars available, so our 1974 appropriations reflect thoughtfully planned expenditures and operating within means available."

"STUDENT ENROLLMENTS are declining and some staff reductions are possible, but we will maintain present staffing ratios rather than increase class sizes. Program improvements will continue in 1974. Many highly desirable requests have been refused, however, because funds are not available."

Ellis said the Appropriation Measure was designed to achieve three major objectives: to maintain sound instructional programs and services at all grade levels, to staff and supply new facilities as they are completed during 1974, and to keep faith with agreements made between the Board and employee organizations.

While pronouncing the schools in sound financial health for 1974, Ellis repeated his warning that the outlook for 1975 is uncertain.

Ellis said, "Additional income should be acquired. The most logical and desirable source of additional funding is from the state."

"A new state biennium, or financial cycle, will begin July, 1975. The state income tax was widely promoted as a major source of support for education, and I believe state appropriations for education should be substantially increased."

"The question of a local tax levy is always raised when budget discussions occur. We have not had an additional local school operating levy approved in Columbus since 1968. Very few school districts in Ohio go six years without an additional levy as we are doing."

ELLIS SAID, "The legislature has been very helpful during the past two years, and there's no reason to believe our senators and representatives won't be attentive to our emerging situation."

Rapid increase in prices were cited by Ellis as a source of future concern. He said, "An American history textbook, for example, will increase from $6.75 to $8.00 or 18.5 per cent. A math textbook will increase from $4.65 to $6.35, or 37 per cent. Some basic items will increase even more. Fortunately not everything will increase at such rates, but the general problem of price increases is severe."

Ellis cited other uncertainties in the future and referred specifically to salary schedules. He said:

"The Board agreement with the Columbus Education Association (CEA) states that salary negotiations will begin in November, 1974, for salaries that are to become effective Jan. 1, 1975. This process must be given careful attention so that we are fair to the teachers and remain fiscally solvent.

"Salaries for classified personnel were negotiated under a two-year contract which calls for a 4 per cent increase July 1, 1974. This agreement expires July 1, 1975."

Ellis said, "I'd like to be able to say that the 1974 Appropriation Measure will provide the substantial program expansions and improvements required by young people growing up in this major urban center. But it doesn't. Program recommendations of Cabinet members have been trimmed to fit the financial resources available."

"WE HAVE ACCEPTED the challenge to improve the quality of our schools," Ellis said. "But I want it clearly understood that these improvements must be made primarily by people now on the job. Fortunately the dedication of Columbus personnel is outstanding and I have every confidence they will continue their splendid performance."

Ellis said increased State support and prudent fiscal management were responsible for the carry-over balances that will enable the schools to operate in 1974.

He cited financial projections compiled by Clerk-Treasurer William Guy to illustrate the significance of the 1973 year-end balance in funding the schools during 1974. Ellis said:

"When the books are closed Dec. 31, 1973, we estimate that our balance will (Continued on page 1) that our balance will be $7,770,000. We estimate that revenue from all other sources in 1974 will amount to $97,896,000 making total estimated 1974 funds available $105,666,000.

Since proposed appropriations for 1974 amount to $101,761,000, our year-end balance for 1974 will be down to $3,905,000. Thus, we'll be using nearly $4-million of our 1973 balance to fund 1974 operations.

Ellis continued, "It is obvious that the Columbus Public Schools simply do not have enough recurring income, in a time of spiraling prices, to maintain existing programs and services through 1975."

ELLIS SAID THE school district has been tightening its belt throughout 1973. "The 1973-74 has been a saving of $1,180,000 to contribute to the year-end balance," he reported.

"We'll continue to scrutinize expenditures carefully in 1974 in the hope that we can accumulate a larger balance to carry into 1975," he added.

Budget Director Myron Kirkpatrick provided the following highlights from the 1974 Appropriation Measure:

-Proposed expenditures for instruction - which includes such items as the salaries of instructional personnel, textbooks, library materials and teaching aids - represent an increase of $3,948,000 over 1973 expenditures. Salaries are expected to rise by four per cent, and "staffing levels will continue to be adjusted in response to actual and anticipated enrollment declines."

-Proposed expenditures for fixed charges - which includes such items as retirement contributions, workmen's compensation and insurance - represent an increase of $621,000 over 1973 expenditures.

-Proposed expenditures for plant operations - which includes such items as the salaries of custodians and the cost of utilities - represent an increase of $1,158,000 over 1973 expenditures.

PROPOSED EXPENDITURES for plant maintenance-which includes such items as the salaries of craftsmen and building repairs-represent an increase of $326,000 over 1973 expenditures.

-Proposed expenditures for administration - which includes such items as the salaries of district-wide instructional and supportive personnel and office supplies - represent an increase of $366,000 over 1973 expenditures.

-Proposed expenditures for pupil transportation - which includes such items as the salaries of drivers, motorized equipment, and gasoline and parts - represent an increase of $585,000 over 1973 expenditures.

-Proposed expenditures for capital outlay - which includes permanent building improvements and instructional equipment - represent an increase of $201,000 over 1973 expenditures.

Kirkpatrick said the Appropriation Measure also will include "a slim $500,000 reserve" for unanticipated expenses; $321,000 for the Board's share of anticipated Federal (NDEA Title III and Vocational) funds; and an increase of $154,000 in the health services budget, primarily to cover the State-mandated placement of nurses on the teachers' salary schedule.

KIRKPATRICK STATED that "the Board and administration will continue to spend funds prudently in 1974, and actual expenditures will be held as much below the 1974 appropriation level as possible."

Kirkpatrick noted mounting shortages, rising prices and growing uncertainties in the national economy and said, "This appropriation measure reflects our best insight into 1974 at this time."

Kirkpatrick said a new budgeting and accounting system, called POBAS, was instituted January 1. POBAS stands for program-oriented budgeting and accounting system. Installation of the system is part of a five-year plan to modernize and improve financial planning and management in the Columbus Public Schools.

"It represents a major step in the move toward department and school-level budgetary responsibility," Kirkpatrick said.

Ellis said he will ask the Board to act on the Appropriation Measure at its organization meeting Jan. 8.

WINTER DRIVING

Winter weather may soon turn Ohio roads into danger zones, warns the Ohio Department of Highway Safety. The first and best defense against snowy, icy and slushy roads is to slow down. Keep your car in top mechanical condition. Brakes should work well; windshield wiper blades should be replaced if necessary. Snow tires and chains offer better traction in deep snow or ice. Studded tires are legal in Ohio from Nov. 15 to March 15. Avoid sudden changes of speed that could cause a skid. If a skid develops, turn the front wheels in the direction of the skid; brake gently, or not at all, until the car is under control. A properly equipped car and careful, slow driving can lessen the dangers of cold weather driving and the road conditions winter produces.

The Bureau of Motor Vehicles (BMV) has implemented a total switch to photo driver licenses as of January 2 according to Frederick A. Vierow, Deputy Director of the Ohio Department of Highway Safety.

"Issuance of all Ohio driver licenses will be conducted by 205 specially-equipped deputy registrar agencies strategically located to serve every part of the state," Vierow said.

"Since each of these agencies will be furnished with an 'instant process' camera unit, designated deputies will be able to produce finished photolicense in minutes and issue them directly over the counter," he commented.

Renewal licenses will be issued over the counter as of now. First licenses and duplicates will continue to be verified in Columbus and then mailed out until July, 1974, when each field agency will be linked to the state's central driver license record bank via a special computer terminal. Once the terminals are operational, deputies will be able to verify applications on the spot and issue first licenses over the counter.

BMV officials emphasize that all currently valid paper and plastic licenses will remain valid until their scheduled expiration dates. Over the next four years, as these "old" licenses expire and motorists apply for renewals, they will receive photo licenses. All driver license fees will remain the same.

"Besides helping law enforcement officers nab unsafe and unlicensed drivers before they add to the highway death toll, Ohio's new color photo driver license will make check-cashing and credit purchases easier for the citizen and safer for the businessman," Vierow said. "The photo license should put a serious crimp in the plans of credit card thieves, bad-check artists and habitual traffic violators who have been successfully practicing their illegal activities by using forged or stolen driver licenses."

Postage Increase Held Off Till Mar. 2

Columbus Postmaster Ralph E. Haffenden has announced that the proposed postage rate increase for Jan. 1, has been postponed until March 2.

Current domestic and international postage rates now in effect will remain in effect until March 2.

VA Questionnaires Should Be Promptly Filled Out

The Veterans Administration has a suggestion for the 1.1 million veterans, widows and parents who received income questionnaires with their November 1st pension checks.

Complete and return the questionnaires promptly, the agency advises. To date, only 600,000 have been returned. S.W. Melidonian, director of the VA Center in Philadelphia where all the returns are coded, explained the reason for this suggestion is that past experience shows many questionnaires are lost, misplaced, forgotten or otherwise delayed if they are not returned promptly.

When this happens, VA's determination of amounts due pensioners during the upcoming year is hampered, since the questionnaires provide information essential for this computation. If the questionnaires are not returned by the January 15 deadline, or not at all, some pensioners may receive later checks, smaller checks, or no checks at all. Melidonian stressed.

The VA questionnaires were mailed to veterans and widows drawing pension under the "old" and "new" pension laws, as well as to parents on dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC). DIC payments are based on service-connected deaths of veterans on or after Jan. 1, 1957.

The annual questionnaires also went to veterans drawing disability compensation for service-connected injuries rated 50 per cent or more disabling who claim parents as dependents. In addition, parents who receive death compensation benefits as a result of service-connected deaths of veterans before Jan. 1, 1957, received questionnaires, Melidonian pointed out.

Eastmoor Grad Is Card Cager

Eastmoor High School graduate Kim McCuskey is a member of the 1973-74 Otterbein College Basketball team.

During his freshman season, McCuskey helped Coach Jack Mehl's "Junior Otters" to a 18-2 mark. While attending Eastmoor High, McCuskey played basketball and baseball, leading the Warrior baseballers to the state sectional championship.

According to Head Coach Dick Reynolds, the 6-2 McCuskey is a "good shooter" and should see some action this season as a backup guard. The Fighting Cardinals return four starters and six lettermen from last year's squad that finished with a 18-6 mark and shared the Ohio Conference basketball crown.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McCuskey, Kim's parents, reside at 542 Eastmoor Blvd., Columbus.

Woody Booker Motivates Himself And Many Others

THERE IS always someone who needs help more than you, no matter how bad off you thing you are.

This is the attitude which motivates a great many people to help their fellow man, in one way or another, whether by financial support or by volunteering one's time and energy, even when there may be very little available.

IT'S THE attitude of Harold "Woody" Booker, paralyzed from the waist down, that there are many people who are in worse trouble than he. Almost 2,000 people in Ohio alone, for instance, who became blind in 1973—because of disease, neglect, accident or ignorance.

Woody Booker is a paraplegic as the result of an accident in June of 1972. At 32, he can only move from bed to wheelchair. Woody has been living at Scioto Crest for almost a year now, but he hasn't been idle.

EVEN WITH his own struggle constantly at hand, Woody has been helping to fight needless blindness by working, voluntarily, with the Ohio Society for the Prevention of Blindness. He has already done a great deal of time-consuming, tedious work—tip coding thousands of envelopes, sorting materials, alphabetizing hundreds of names—work that has helped spread the word of the Society so that others may not have to struggle for a new life.

THROUGH THE efforts of Mrs. Donna R. Yaklevich, a rehabilitation counselor with the Ohio Rehabilitation Service Commission, Woody will be undertaking, within the next few months, two to three years of vocational rehabilitation, a project he has already begun on his own through his work with the Ohio Society for the Prevention of Blindness. In three years, with training and guidance, he will be semi-independent and living a life he can call his own again.

The Ohio Society for the Prevention of Blindness has shown its gratitude by presenting Woody with a Certificate of Appreciation for his help.

Because of dedicated individuals and groups like him throughout the state, the Ohio Society was able to reach more than 300,000 residents of Ohio in 1973, with pre-school vision and glaucoma screening programs, films and educational programs, speakers and industrial eye safety programs.

Woody feels pretty lucky himself. He may not be able to use his legs, but he can see. That's why he knows that no matter how bad off you think you might be, there is always someone who needs help more than you.

WOODY BOOKER speaks from the experience of life.

Birds Add Landscape Color; Feeding Keeps Them There

BIRDS CAN add color, sound and life to an otherwise bleak winter landscape, says Ohio Natural Resources Director William B. Nye, and with just a minimum of effort you can brighten up your backyard and help the birds find hard-to-get winter food.

Birds can be of great value and provide hours of enjoyment to residents in the city or the country. But, to fully enjoy their benefits, a little time must be taken to care for these colorful creatures.

AN EASY WAY to feed birds is to place the food on the ground. This will attract ground feeding birds such as doves, juncos and towhees.

But, to attract a mixture of birds, a simple above-the-ground feeding station can be used. Platform feeders bring the birds up to an eye level where they are easier to see, a window-shelf feeder allows close-up observation of birds from your side of the window and hopper feeders offer the advantage of holding several day's supply of food.

ALL THESE above-the-ground feeders and more are available commercially and many feeders can be constructed from discarded household goods. Used bleach jugs, glass jars or metal cans make excellent bird feeders with just a little modification.

Chickadees, wrens, nuthatches and woodpeckers find suet in feeders tacked to the side of a tree practically irresistible. An easy way to feed suet is to place large chunks in a mesh bag (the kind that vegetables come in), and attach it to a tree trunk out of the reach of neighborhood dogs.

"MANY BIRDS have specialized food habits and unless these are met, the birds won't be present at the feeder," said Nye.

Nutmeats are preferred foods for cardinals, catbirds, chickadees, crossbills, goldfinches and titmice. Dry seeds such as corn, weeds and grasses are eaten by bobwhites, grackles, jays, pheasants, redpolls, jacks, sparrows of all kinds and thrashers. Berries and fruit are important food to bluebirds, flickers, mockingbirds, robins and thrushes.

"BIRDS ALSO eat many of the foods we eat," he said. "Apples, American cheese, cornbread, dried currents and raisins and peanuts and peanut butter are widely eaten and provide birds with an excellent source of energy."

By varying the kinds of food, it is possible to attract preferred species of birds. Also, it is possible to control the types of birds visiting the feeder by the kind of feeder used and the manner in which the feeder is erected.

A swinging feeder, suspended from a tree limb or a clothes line, will discourage house sparrows and bluejays, both of which dominate the feeding stations if permitted.

"If you decide to feed birds this winter," said Nye, "don't interrupt or stop the feeding because the birds will depend on you for much of their winter food."

ONCE WINTER feeding is started, it should be continued until late spring, Nye said.

He pointed out that feeding birds doesn't have to cost any more than you want it to. Just a few seeds and a small home-made feeder will repay you many times in the pleasure and interest it brings.

A bird feeder will attract a large number and variety of birds if properly maintained. This offers an excellent opportunity for close-up observation and photography by amateur or experienced bird watchers.

A DEPARTMENT of Natural Resources publication, "Attracting Birds in Ohio," describes their aesthetic and biological value, habits of species found in Ohio and winter feeding methods. It also has diagrams to help in construction of bird feeders and bird houses. The booklet is available from the Publications Center, Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Columbus, Ohio 43224.

Patrol Assists Motorists

Ohio State Highway Patrol officers assisted over 5,300 disabled motorists over the Christmas holiday weekend, Colonel Robert M. Chiaramonte, Patrol superintendent, has announced.

"Our assistance rendered total was more than double the number of arrests made," the Colonel said. "Final statistics show a 28 percent increase in the number of disabled motorists helped in 1973 over the 1972 Christmas weekend figures."

Colonel Chiaramonte went on to say that providing service to the motorists traveling our highways is a priority objective of the Patrol.

"Despite the cold, rainy, and icy weather conditions, decreased speed appears to have had a reducing effect on the number of fatal accidents which helped to make the holiday safer than expected," Colonel Chiaramonte said.

GAS-SAVING TIP

Turn off electrical accessories in your car before starting the engine, says the Ohio Department of Highway Safety. Make sure lights, radio, heater and defroster are off before you start your car. The engine will start quicker and use less fuel.

Fasten Your Seat Belts

When you wear a seat belt, the odds are with you, says the Ohio Department of Highway Safety. Safety belts prevent little accidents from becoming big ones. By wearing a safety belt you can double—or better—your chance of survival if you are involved in a collision.

Nationwide Adds $50,000 To Children's

THE NATIONWIDE Insurance Companies recently presented a check for $50,000 to the Children's Hospital Building Fund as part of the Companies' $250,000 pledge to help finance construction of the Hospital's new main building.

Dean W. Jeffers, general chairman and chief executive officer of Nationwide Insurance Organizations, and John E. Fisher, president and general manager of Nationwide Insurance Companies, presented the check.

Dr. Sherwood L. Fawcett, president of the Children's Hospital Board of Trustees, and James H. McIntosh, chairman of the Total Resources Committee, represented the Hospital at the presentation.

Dr. Fawcett is president of Battelle Memorial Institute and McIntosh serves as president of the Midland Mutual Life Insurance Company.

IN MAKING the presentation, Jeffers stressed the importance of the Hospital's building project to the community. "We have one of the best and largest children's hospitals in the country here in Columbus," he said.

"In a typical year the Hospital will serve more than 170,000 children, the great majority of them from the Columbus area. Nationwide's world headquarters is located here. We actively support this community and we feel helping Children's Hospital with its expansion program is an excellent way of doing this."

THE HOSPITAL'S six-story addition, which will eventually become the facility's new main building, will provide much-needed space for both patient care facilities and important supportive services.

Included among the areas on the first two floors of this structure will be a new emergency room entrance and facilities; main entrance and lobby; larger laboratory, cardiology and radiology department; two operating room theaters; 60 beds for infant care and a 12-bed intensive care unit for older patients.

The upper floors will provide space for patient units of 40 beds each.

CONSTRUCTION of the new building is now underway with the estimated completion date set for January, 1976. The Building Fund was established to help finance this construction, which is expected to cost about $9.7 million for the first phase of the project. This phase will include completion of much of the first four floors of the building and shelling-in of the remainder, following priorities that were established by the Hospital's administrative and medical staffs.

The rest of the building will be completed as additional funding permits at an estimated cost of about $5.0 million.

WITH THE Nationwide gift, the Building Fund has $1.4 million in cash and pledges toward its $2.4 million goal. Other funding for the first phase of this project is coming from a $3.5 million mortgage loan and about $3.8 million of hospital resources, including income from the sale of property and from unrestricted gifts and bequests.

"We certainly appreciate the confidence Nationwide is showing in our Hospital and the community we serve through this generous contribution," Dr. Fawcett said. "Contributions such as this are extremely important because they will enable us to complete more of our new building as soon as possible, thus giving us more finished space to meet the constantly increasing needs for child health care services."

Dr. Fawcett said that information regarding gifts to the Hospital's Building Fund could be obtained by calling or writing the Children's Hospital Development Department, 561 South 17th Street, Columbus 43205.

DEAN W. JEFFERS, second from right, general chairman and chief executive officer of Nationwide Insurance Organizations, holds a $50,000 check for the Children's Hospital Building Fund as part of Nationwide Insurance Companies' $250,000 pledge to help finance construction of the Hospital's new main building. Participating in the check presentation ceremony are, from the left, John E. Fisher, president and general manager of Nationwide Insurance Companies; James H. McIntosh, chairman of the Children's Hospital Total Resources Committee; Jeffers; and Dr. Sherwood L. Fawcett, president of the Children's Hospital Board of Trustees.

THIS IS AN architect's rendering of the new six-story addition to Children's Hospital that will eventually serve as the hospital's new main building. The building will be connected to the southwest corner of the south wing of the existing Hospital, which is pictured at the right of the rendering. The new main entrance for the Hospital is shown on the left side of the new facility, while the new emergency room entrance is pictured in approximately the same position on the right side of the building. Construction is now underway, with the estimated completion date set for January, 1976.

Action On The Runway

ALBERT NIPON'S signature shows in this youthful, feminine dress with ease and movement in the circle skirt and balloon sleeves...checked cotton veil with a touch of delicate lace.

MORTY SUSSMAN chose yards of vaporous platinum chiffon to make a woman more alluring and feminine...the bare top discreetly covered with short fly-away top.

'IN' fashion with Tess Stern

ADELE SIMPSON designed this smashing short white jersey glamour dress with white silk fringe set on at the hips...to swing and sway.

SWINGING, SOFT AND SEXY is the Spring fashion message. During the American Designers' Showings in New York, the models were having the time of their lives as they pranced on stage, turned and spun in a big circle of pleats. Everywhere you looked there was a pretty dress abloom with soft colors and fabrics...brimmed hats, shorter hair, sandals and lighter platform shoes. From all indications it's going to be a great Spring!

THE RETURN of the pretty dress is the big Spring story...super soft and on the move. What seems like a suit is more often a dress and jacket...wrapped-and-tied or diagonal cut. The straight shirt dress and the dress with the stitched hipline are giving way to the more voluminous skirt...cut on the bias with flaring hem or entirely pleated.

WATCH FOR the comeback of the glamour dress...soft, bare and short. The dress springs up again and again in soft knits, gauze, voile, crepe de chine, shantung, sensuous jersey and silk. Fly-away abbreviated tops above flared skirts; the big blouses; the short alpdress for evening...often with its own coverup...newest in black chiffon topped by a sheer jacket, are some of the favorites. The layered chiffons in colors brought standing ovations from the audience.

FOR LONG EVENINGS the emphasis is on femininity. Romantic chiffons...printed, ruffled or wrapped...inspired by nightgowns, bed jackets and pyjamas...look like sleepwear but they're meant to go out. Sequins used as a solid surface over chiffon or net are other subtleties.

AS TO hemlines, designers give women a free choice...from mid-thigh to ankle...the choice is entirely yours!

The bride chose for her wedding a formal bridal gown of silk organza and velvet lace fashioned with a fitted bodice, portrait neckline and long Juliet sleeves. The slightly gathered A-line skirt fell softly from the empire and was complimented with a chapel length train that attached at the empire.

The bodice and skirt had heavy lace motifs. A band of lace with ribbon threaded through it was around the waistline, down each side of the skirt and around the hem of the gown and train.

Her chapel length silk illusion veil was held in place with a Juliet bridal bouquet of matching lace.

Her flowers were a dainty cascade of white sweetheart roses, mini-carnations and statice with a touch of pale pink.

Mrs. John Avant, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Sharon Heffner, Susan Frisk and Mrs. William Wilson.

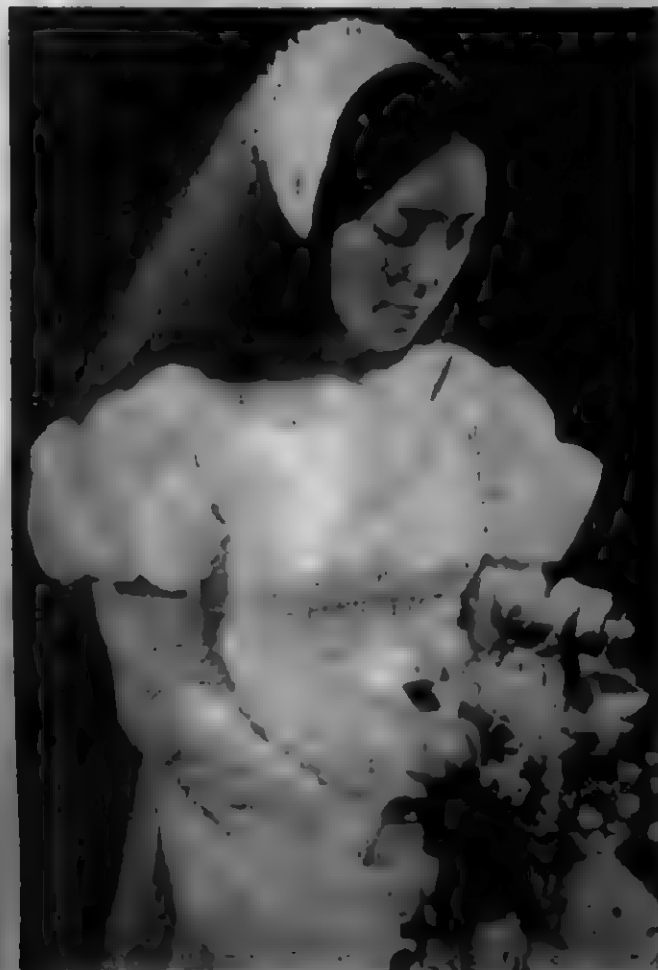

The attendants wore gowns of lavender and ivory satin with fitted bodices, wide open collar of ivory satin and long fitted sleeves with ivory satin cuffs. The gowns had a set in waistband at the empire and A-line skirts.

Their flowers were a cascade of pale pink roses and mini-carnations with purple statice.

Ralph Schmeizner served as best man. Ushers were John Avant, brother of the bride, Jeff Leathers, William Eberly, Ronald Denbow and William Wilson.

CARRYING GAS IN CARS

The storing and carrying of gasoline in cars is like transporting liquid bombs, warns the Ohio Department of Highway Safety. The explosive power of one gallon of gasoline can be compared to the explosive force of 16 sticks of dynamite. Gasoline vapors tend to expand and even sparks from the car ignition or shorts in the tail or brake lights can ignite the vapors causing a fire bomb.

Wyman, noted for his work with the Otterbein Concert Choir, will be assisted by Wybo Van Bieme as orchestra director; Jan Walters, costumes; and the choreography of Jean Whallon.

In the musical, John Sorel (Allen Roese) must flee, leaving his wife Magda (Pats Lowe), their baby and his mother (Jill Leasure). Though Magda hopes to join her husband, she is stymied by the baffling paper work of The Consul, and as she frantically tries to get the papers to leave, first her baby, and then John's mother dies. Realizing that John will try to come back for her even at the risk of his life, Magda sends word through The Consul that he must not, but John returns despite her pleas.

With heart-breaking sorrow, John discovers his beloved wife has killed herself to keep him from the secret police.

Students And Disabled Benefit From Pre-School

A PRE-SCHOOL program for mentally retarded children at Ohio State University combines several features that make it an excellent learning opportunity for the children, for university students, and for in-service training of teachers in the field. THE PROGRAM'S emphasis is on assessing the development of the children, forming rules in dealing with them to bring about changes, and collecting data frequently on their progress.

"A mentally retarded child usually has a list of deficits including areas such as language development or ability to walk," says Dr. Lee Parks, director of the pre-school located at the university's Nisonger Center for Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities.

NISONGER Center brings together students and faculty from various disciplines to help the mentally retarded, he said.

In particular, the pre-school program gives university students in psychology, physical education, education, and other disciplines an opportunity to undertake special projects. In one project, psychology graduate students are developing and will implement a behavior change program, he said.

"AFTER evaluating a child's development in various areas, we form rules so that everyone who works with a certain child knows what to emphasize with him," Dr. Parks said.

The child's progress is frequently evaluated because "if something we're doing is ineffective, we want to know as soon as possible."

"It is especially important to take frequent measurements of delayed children so that we don't waste a lot of time using a technique that doesn't work."

HE ADDED: "The two teachers are always striving to find ways to learn that are attractive to the children, that are fun."

Through the teachers, volunteers, and university students, a great deal of individual attention is given to each child, said Jean Berkwitz, coordinator of the program. "We've had a number of successes," she said.

"An autistic four-year-old in the program last year did not walk and reacted to almost everything with screams and cries."

We helped him to walk and changed his behavior to a point where he was more acceptable to his family."

IN ITS SECOND year, the program has 18 children, ages 3 to 7, who are at different levels of development ranging from mildly to severely retarded and including one normal child, Dr. Parks said.

"We selected children to form a heterogeneous group because the more delayed children usually benefit from exposure to children more advanced than they are, particularly in self-help skills such as fastening their own jackets," he said.

MINGLING normal and delayed children is a trend in education, he said. Research in the field indicates there is no adverse effect on normal children.

Children attend either a morning or afternoon session, which features a play period, adaptive physical education, creative arts, games and toys to develop fine motor abilities, language skills, and routine activities such as toilet training, Mrs. Berkwitz said.

DR. PARKS and other staff members are conducting research to determine whether the curriculum fits the needs of children at different levels of development.

Pre-school teachers employed by the Franklin County Mental Health and Retardation Board take part in training at the pre-school.

FLINGING a rope in a physical education session is Jon, who attends a pre-school for mentally retarded children at Ohio State University. Vehicle Show At Center

Here is a little different type of entertainment to begin 1974. It sounds like fun and should be interesting.

The first exclusively camping and recreational vehicle show in Central Ohio is now going on at the Ohio Exposition Center, Columbus. The show is a public showing of all types of campers, travel trailers, motor homes and related camping accessories is being held in the fairgrounds' multi-purpose building.

Theme of the five-day show is "Go camping, save energy". Highlighted among the show's exhibits and displays are features on how to get the most use and enjoyment with recreational vehicles in these times of uncertainties caused by the energy shortages.

The 25 Central Ohio dealers-members of the Ohio Recreational Vehicle Association are sponsors of the show and are exhibiting the latest in camping equipment. Other exhibitors include representation of many privately-owned Ohio campgrounds and Ohio state parks.

According to Gene Keener, executive director of the sponsoring organization, the show is presented to introduce new models of recreational vehicles and equipment and to provide information of the latest innovations in operational economics.

Says Keener, "those who presently own such vehicles and prospective buyers will gain much valuable information about camping and recreational vehicle use by attending this show". The show closes at 10 p.m. Sunday, January 6.

Variations on the theme are to describe the many uses owners may make of their recreational vehicles in spite of fuel and travel limitations. National and factory experts will be on hand to advise visitors as to the most economical use of their particular outfit.

Show hours are from noon to 10 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, and 4 p.m. to 10 p.m. Thursday and Friday. Admission prices are $1.75 for adults and $.75 for children.

LABOR PAIN

The first eight-hour day law was passed by Congress in 1906 but applied only to laborers, workmen and mechanics employed by or on behalf of the United States Government, according to "Important Events in American Labor History, 1776-1971," published by the U.S. Labor Department.

USE CAR EFFICIENCY

Motorists should get the most efficient use from their car, says the Ohio Department of Highway Safety. Plan your driving so one trip takes the place of two by planning car pools to take children to school or driving to and from work.

Students Complete Training For Workers With Alcoholics

Thirty-four "students" successfully completed the first semester of the Ohio Dominican College "Training Program for Workers with Alcoholics" and received certificates for their study from Wade Franklin, president of the Columbus Area Council on Alcoholism.

The on-going program is the first of its kind in Ohio and possibly in the country. It is designed to improve treatment practices, to better coordinate efforts and agencies and to increase the knowledge of present and future personnel working with alcoholics. The aim of the program is to lower the present patient-client dropout rate and ultimately reduce the community-wide problems which are related to alcoholism.

The "in-service" training is funded under a grant from Title I of the Higher Education Act of 1965, and by the Alcoholism Unit of the Ohio Department of Health. Some 15 other public and private agencies dealing with the problems of alcoholism provide in-kind contributions to assist in the program. Tom Kirkpatrick, M.A., director of the Ohio Dominican special program, explained.

The "graduates," twenty of whom will continue in the second semester of the program while another group of approximately 25 are engaged in the first 15-week sessions, include present and future employees of such agencies as: police and probation departments, alcoholism programs, suicide prevention agencies, the Salvation Army, and mental health and family service organizations. They attended a full-day session each week, during the course.

In Our Time

NO U.S. PORT CAN HANDLE TODAY'S SUPER TANKERS...

EXAMPLE--ON HER WAY TO AMERICAN WATERS, THE 275,000 TON "CONOCO AMERICA" DELIVERED MORE THAN 2 MILLION BARRELS OF OIL, ENOUGH TO SERVE THE REQUIREMENTS OF A CITY LIKE WASHINGTON, D.C. OR MILWAUKEE OR SAN FRANCISCO FOR A MONTH. THE TANKER WAS UNLOADED AT ST. CROIX, VIRGIN ISLANDS, BUT ONLY AFTER ONE-THIRD OF HER CARGO HAD TRANSFERRED ONTO BARGES AT SEA. NO SHIP THIS SIZE CAN ENTER A U.S. MAINLAND PORT WITHOUT TRANSFERRING HALF THE CARGO AT SEA...

IF IT COULD, TRANSPORTATION COSTS ON THIS CARGO WOULD BE REDUCED AS MUCH AS $50,000.

TO SERVE FUTURE REQUIREMENTS THE U.S. WILL HAVE TO IMPORT OIL ON A VERY LARGE SCALE. THE NEED FOR DEEP WATER PORTS AND OFFSHORE TERMINALS IS CRITICAL. SUPER TANKERS HELP KEEP COSTS DOWN, REDUCE HARBOR CONGESTION, MINIMIZE OIL HANDLING, AND SPEED TURNAROUND. THIS MEANS A SAFER ENVIRONMENT.

BILLY BROWN

featuring SAMANTHA LEE

APPEARING NIGHTLY - WESTERN MOTELS

LINCOLN LODGE 4950 W BROAD

Billy Brown who has been performing at the Lincoln Lodge 4950 W. Broad, for a one man act Billy Brown has to be about the best in Columbus.

His performance sprinkled with earthy jokes and banter with the audience, and his recollection of many Country and Blue songs written in the last 30 years.

In 1959 Billy Brown did the original recording of "He'll Have To Go," on Columbia Records. It rose to No. 1 in many cities but according to Brown at this time Jim Reeves also recorded it in the same style and Reeves recording became one of the biggest Country Hits ever.

Billy Brown of Country Western Singer and Banjoist from Florida has been engaged for a six week contract at Lincoln Lodge.

He is drawing the largest crowds to the Lounge since it started with the Billy Brown Show entertaining with the up-town Country Western Sound. Brown's newest record has just been released on Big M Records. "Thank You Darling" and "Country Boy" Brown performance features versatility, personality and ad-lib humor in addition to a repertoire which includes yodeling, impersonations of Johnny Cash, Elvis Presley, Gene Autry, Eddie Arnold, Charlie Rich and Willie Brown. He sings "Cool Clear Water" in the style of various singers.

For an enjoyable and relaxing evening filled with pleasant fun, the Lounge at Lincoln Lodge is recommended.

Marriott Inn Is The Best

Well, I started off the New Year right, by stopping in at the Marriott Inn Motel for dinner the other evening.

The Marriott Inn has always been one of my very favorite dining spots Around Town. Now, in my opinion, it is even better. You see, they have an all new menu, with many items reduced in prices, believe it or not. There are no price increases at all on the new menu.

After a couple of cocktails, I began my meal with their famous Escargots. Now, here is a favorable dish that you'll remember for a long time. It's taste is almost heavenly.

From here I went on to one of the best Caesar Salads I have eaten in Columbus. Kevin, a personable young fellow, prepared it at my table. He did a splendid job, mixing just the right touches of garlic, fresh ground pepper, a special salad dressing, cheese lemon and secret herbs and spices to produce a taste treat that was out of this world.

Then came the entree, consisting of Chicken Breast Cacciatore. Talk about something delicious. You haven't lived until you've passed this between your lips. The special sauce was something I'll remember and talk about for a long time to

As I said earlier, The Marriott Inn Motel has always been one of my favorites spots for dining. But, this new menu is terrific, especially if you enjoy gourmet food. There is a gourmet section on the menu containing Chateaubriand, Steak Diane, Sliced Beef Tenderloin, veal variously and the Caesar Salad. All of these items are prepared at your table. Of course, the menu is full of delicious steaks and seafood dishes, along with one of my favorites, Roast Prime Rib of Beef.

I finished my meal with Irish Coffee, also prepared at the table. This was simply yummy. Just wait until you see the large desert selections, with such things as chocolate Mousse, cheese cake and many more.

So, take my advice, and be sure to put the Marriott Inn Motel on your dining menu. I know that you will thank me for a dining experience you'll savor for days afterwards.

Billy Brown At Lodge

Billy Brown, one of the greatest one man shows to come down the pike is currently entertaining the people during cocktail hour at Lincoln Lodge. Beginning next week, Billy Brown, along with vivacious Samantha Lee on vocals, open in the Lounge with a dynamite show that promises to be one of the best to hit the stage at Lincoln Lodge.

Brown's performance is sprinkled with earthy jokes and humorous banter with the audience, plus an assortment of Country and Blues songs that goes all the way from today way back to thirty years ago.

In 1959, Billy Brown did the original recording of "He'll Have To Go," on Columbia Records. The disk rose to the top spots on the charts in many cities. However, Jim Reeves also waxed the same tune, and stole the thunder from Brown.

Besides being a first rate singer, Brown also accompanies himself on guitar and dishes out impersonations of Johnny Cash, Elvis Presley, Gene Arnold, Gene Autry and Charlie Rich.

Take his versatility, personality and ad-lib humor, add a fine voice, mix in the sexy singing of Samantha Lee, and you have a duo that's hard to beat. It all happens at Lincoln Lodge, beginning next week. Plan on stopping in. I'll be there, that's for sure.

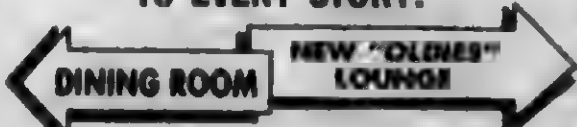

OPENING NEXT WEEK AT Lincoln Lodge is singer and humorist Billy Brown, along with attractive vocalist Samantha Lee. This explosive duo will be at Lincoln Lodge for an extended engagement.

Reynoldsburg vs Worthington

THE NAME OF THE GAME in basketball is rebound quite often and these Worthington (in white) and Reynoldsburg cagers tried to scuffle each other for the ball that is still in the air. The Raiders surprised the Cards, 45-38, on the Cards court. Cards are Mark Kline (40) and Don Brough (50) while at left is the Raiders Charles Ratcliff (43) and behind Kline is Bob Beasley. (Reynoldsburg-Worthington photos by Ray Adams.)

Whitehall vs Westland

CLOSE DEFENSIVE play by Whitehall's Rams kept the Westland Cougars boxed in quite often in the game won by Whitehall, 73-64, an OCC clash. Here, Westland's Roger Schwaigert looks for an opening to pass the ball to George Hakes (44) as the Rams Steve Marinello (33) closes in as does Jerry Montgomery (25).

Reynoldsburg vs Worthington

SOMEWHERE above Worthington's Steve Cuffe (30) is a ball that is ready to come off the backboard after a missed shot. Waiting for therebound are Reynoldsburg Raiders Tony Myers (13), Mark Mahaffey (23) and Ed Williams (33). The Raiders won, 45-38.

Basketball Bounces Catch Many Off-Guard

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Spectator Sports Writer

THE basketballs were taking some awfully weird bounces last week, benefiting some area teams and damaging others, not to mention the occasional whistles whose sounds have been echoing the air.

Free throws dominated the final statistics in more than a few games over the holiday break as St. Charles found out Saturday night at Wehrle canning seven more baskets than the home team but losing by three, the evident edge coming from the charity stripe.

But Wehrle was the victim on the night before as the Wolves were on even terms from the field at New Albany only to find themselves 19 points down on the scoreboard at the game's end.

EASTMOOR fans were yelling "homer," referring to the men in the striped shirts at Newark Saturday as the Warriors fought back from a 13 point deficit to tie the game, fall back behind, and then pull within two at :32 on a Steve Manning three point play.

Tim Kauffman then grabbed a loose ball rebound at :22 near the out of bounds line, one official calling Kauffman out of bounds and the other saying Kauffman was fouled by a Newark defender.

When order was finally restored Newark was awarded the ball ending Eastmoor's comeback hopes.

LEAGUE-WISE over the break Mt. Vernon slipped into the Ohio Capital Conference lead compliments of a Worthington wupping of Whitehall. Whitehall is now one game back of the Yellow Jackets heading into the second OCC round.

Well, those holiday tune-ups, or whatever you want to call them are over now and it's back to the real thing. (It counts now fellows.)

AND THERE'S no telling who'll be on top when it's all over, only one way to find out, let's tip off the second half of the season men.

Don't think next week's action won't be keen as Eastmoor visits Linden, West goes to Whetstone, Walnut Ridge travels to Marion-Franklin and Central hosts East; all in Friday night City League action.

Worthington will host Delaware while Westland rides to Westerville and Reynoldsburg to Whitehall in Friday's OCC action.

ELSEWHERE Hartley and

Watson face off in their first placed battle of the Central Catholic League while Wehrle thumps to Ready and DeSales trucks to St. Charles in other OCC action.

Elsewhere first place Bexley goes to Grove City in a Mid-Eighter while a high Metro League tilt finds Tesyn Valley at Franklin Heights.

SATURDAY'S action is full in the CL where Eastmoor welcomes Central, West invites South, Brookhaven travels east to Walnut Ridge and Marion-Franklin hitchhikes to East.

JUST ABOUT the time Hartley's Mike Gilliland (22) got the range and was going in for a layup West's Bob Truelove (14) had other ideas and slapped the ball away in a fine defensive move. (Hartley-West photos by Craig Weaver.)

Ice Fishing Season Not Far Away

MANY ice fishermen are all set for the '74 ice fishing season. The following cold facts are provided in hopes that a safe ice cover is soon formed on our lakes and streams.

Two inches of ice will support one man on foot; three inches will support a group of people in single file; and seven and one-half inches will support a car or truck (two gross ton).

New ice is stronger than old ice, and ice formed by direct freezing of lake water is stronger than ice formed from melting snow.

Riber and stream ice is about 15 per cent weaker than lake or pond ice.

Slush ice is about one-half as strong as clear blue ice. Removal of snow from the ice surface will increase its thickness during subsequent freezes.

Ice thickness is not always an accurate measure as to strength or safety.

ANGLERS are urged to observe these guidelines to safety on the ice, especially during this late season when safety could be outweighed by long awaited good ice fishing.

Ice Fishing Regulations

Throughout the state, it shall be unlawful for any person to use an ice fishing shelter which does not have exhibited on the outside of the structure the name and address of the owner or user in legible letters in the English language. An ice fishing shelter is something taken to or used upon a frozen body of water as protection cover from the weather.

In the inland fishing district it shall be unlawful for a person to cut or fish through a hole in the ice which has a diameter that exceeds twelve inches.

Throughout the state, it shall be unlawful for any person to use more than six tip-ups while fishing through the ice. A "tip-up" is a device consisting of a hook and line attached to a spring or other device which is capable of raising a small flag or other signalling device when a fish is biting or is hooked. "Tip-ups" must display the name and address of the owner.

THE LAST thing to remember before leaving the ice is to dispose of empty bait containers, sandwich wrappers or coffee cups. Take this trash to the nearest container furnished for this purpose or take it back home.

Until next week enjoy the great outdoors and the gift of nature that is yours and mine

WHITEHALL's Jerry Montgomery (25) sent this jumper up for a two pointer in Whitehall's 73-64 win over Westland in an OCC clash at Westland last Saturday. Westland Winner Of Eastmoor Meet

By Sandy Schwartz
Spectator Sports Writer

Sporting but one first place finisher, Westland made good use of consolation rounds to amass 86 points in capturing the Eastmoor Invitational Wrestling Tournament last weekend.

Cougar matman Roger EEscolas was the lone Westland grappler to earn top honors, man-handling Olentangy's Ed Frapasso 14-2 in the 98 pound championship round.

Northland, Olentangy and Brookhaven followed Westland, and host Eastmoor placed fifth with 60 1/2 points as three Warriors advanced to the championship round.

Two of these Warriors, Todd Cohen and Sam Peppers, were tourney champs, Cohen in the 119 pound class, Peppers in the 112. Cohen declared returning state runner-up Brian Meade from Olentangy 12-8 in the tourney's feature match while Peppers outpointed Mt. Vernon toughie Lee Simon (64).

REYNOLDSBURG, a couple notches back of Eastmoor with 60 points, had Bill Wilcoxon and Paul Wade advanced to the finals before facing defeat. Franklin Heights ended 10th with 44 points as Randy Gageas of Franklin Heights championed the 132 pound weight class.

Although Bexley could only muster 38 1/2 points it boasted one of the meet's outstanding wrestlers in 105 pound mighty mite Rocky Wing. Wing romped to the finals, all wins via pins, and then helped highlight the final round by pinning Wilcoxon in 1:06 of the first period.

Navy Launches New Assault Ship

GI Bill Eligibility Has Time Limits

The first of the Navy's new LHA amphibious assault ships, was launched December in Pascagoula, Mississippi.

The ship, named USS TARAWA (LHA1), is designed to carry a complete Marine Corps battalion landing team, with all their landing craft, helicopters, trucks, tanks, supplies and ammunition, and land them ashore. It will have the communications and control facilities to direct all sea, land and air aspects of an amphibious operation. The 820 foot LHA's will have a full load displacement of approximately 30,300 tons, making them the second largest U.S. combatant ships afloat.

TARAWA's flight deck is large enough to handle nine helicopters simultaneously, and she can ballast down to discharge landing craft from her well deck. Powered by two boilers, the largest ever manufactured in the United States, the ship will be capable of speeds over 30 knots.

Five ships will make up the LHA class of amphibious warfare ships.

POST-KOREAN veterans are down to about their last semester of eligibility under the GI Bill, but an extra year remains for those interested in farm cooperative training, apprenticeship or on-the-job training, and those qualified for advanced flight training. L.M. Merritt, director of the VA Regional Office in Cleveland says that the standard eligibility period for GI Bill training for all veterans is eight years after separation from military service. However, post-Korean veterans—those with service from Feb. 1, 1955 through May 31, 1966—were not eligible until the current GI Bill became effective June 1, 1966.

As a result, the eight-year period for this group of veterans expires May 31, 1974, for all but several forms of GI Bill education training. ADDITIONAL educational benefits were added to the GI Bill in 1967, thus the extension of the expiration date to 1975 for these benefits.

MERRITT explained that eligible veterans may qualify for flight training only when it is generally accepted as necessary to attain a recognized vocational objective. This can be in the field of aviation or where it is recognized as ancillary to the pursuit of another vocation.

Applicants for flight training must possess a valid private pilot's license and meet medical requirements for a commercial pilot's license, the director added.

The delay in providing post-Korean veterans entitlement for GI Bill training is seen as the primary reason why only 34 per cent of this group has taken advantage of its education benefits.

COMPARATIVELY, 47 per cent of servicemen separated after enactment of the current GI Bill have enrolled in educational training under provisions of the bill.

"Some of the post-Korean veterans had been out of the service for as long as 11 years before the GI Bill gave them their entitlement," Merritt added. "By that time many found it impossible to take advantage of the GI Bill because of family or other responsibilities."

AGE ALSO deterred many post-Korean veterans from pursuing school enrollment. The average post-Korean veteran is 15 years older than his Vietnam-era counterpart.

CARBON MONOXIDE

When driving in a closed car, be alert for drowsiness, light-headedness or headache. Those are the first symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning, says the Ohio Department of Highway Safety. Stop immediately, get some fresh air, then drive with windows open to the nearest garage.

Your Ohio Laws by Attorney General Bill Brown

What are your rights as an employee if you are injured or disabled as the result of an occupational accident or disease? Before 1911 you had none. When an employee was injured on the job, it was just too bad. He was either at the mercy of his employer or dependent upon charity.

Fortunately, this practice changed with the adoption of the Ohio Workmen's Compensation Act in 1911. The purpose of this law is to provide payment and compensation to injured employees. Every employer who has three or more workers regularly engaged in the same business is required by law to provide disability protection for his employees.

On July 1, 1974, every employer who has one or more employees will be required to provide disability protection. This is an important provision of the new law that will affect most of us. It means that babysitters, cooks, maids, gardeners, handymen—all those defined as "casual workers"—must be covered by Workmen's Compensation. To qualify for coverage you only have to make $50 in a three month period of any year.

It is the responsibility of the Attorney General of Ohio to enforce workmen's compensation laws so that if you are injured and file a complaint, either the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation or the employer compensates you for your injury.

An employer can provide protection in two ways. He can pay directly into the state Workmen's Compensation Fund, and all compensation to his employees is paid by the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation. Or he may choose the self-insurer method and pay compensation to the injured worker.

Workmen's Compensation covers any worker injured in the course of his work because of an event or accident arising out of his work; any worker disabled by an occupational disease in the course of his employment; the dependents of workmen killed in the course of employment where death resulted from an injury or disability received on the job.

A worker is entitled to workmen's compensation even if the accident that disabled him was caused by his own fault as long as the injury was not purposely self-inflicted or the result of "horseplay" with fellow workers.

If you are injured on the job keep the following tips in mind:

1) Make sure you take the names of all witnesses and get signed statements from them. This is especially important in cases where your claim may be contested.

2) Note any unusual conditions or circumstances, such as oil on the floor, loose wiring, faulty machinery and so on, which may have contributed to the accident.

3) Always report any injury immediately to your employer or to the first aid station or company physician if one is available.

4) Never sign any papers or release which you do not fully understand. A worker cannot waive or sign away his right to compensation and any agreement to surrender workmen's compensation benefits will not be recognized. However, a signed release could cause unnecessary delay or trouble in processing your claim.

If you are injured while working for an employer who fails to comply with the law by not subscribing to the state fund or self-insuring his workers, then you should file a claim with the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation for referral to the Attorney General's Office.

The Workmen's Compensation Act and recent amendments represent one more step in the right direction towards improving social justice and legal responsibility in commerce and industry.

Mohican, 20 miles east of Mansfield, has a full range of recreational activities including camping, hiking, picnicking, horseback riding and fishing. The park will be further enhanced in early 1974 when the 96-room Mohican State Park Lodge will open. (Ohio Department of Natural Resources Photo)

Park Of The Month

Mohican State Park Has A Vestige Of Wilderness

EDITOR'S NOTE: Ohio has 62 state parks, but most Ohioans are familiar with only a few of the parks and the opportunities for outdoor recreation that they offer. This is one of a series of stories designed to make Ohioans more aware of what their state parks have to offer.

Mohican State Park is a little vestige of wilderness right on the edge of the northeastern Ohio megalopolis and its six million people.

Located among the cool, forested hills of the Appalachian Plateau 20 miles south-east of Mansfield, 45 miles southwest of Akron, 65 miles south of Cleveland and 70 miles northeast of Columbus, the park is a quiet oasis for campers, hikers, historians and natural history buffs.

MOHICAN is surrounded with people. But despite its proximity to almost two-thirds of Ohio's population, the park has remained remarkably "wild," said Natural Resources Director William B. Nye.

Visitors can walk along secluded forest paths, picnic in quiet groves of towering pines or delve into Ohio's rich folklore in one of the most beautiful parks in the state," he said. "And it's all not much more than an hour's drive away from five of the state's major metropolitan areas."

Author Louis Bromfield lives nearby at Malabar Farm and he called the Mohican area the "Edge of Paradise," Nye said.

Mohican State Park is on State Routes 3 and 97 in Ashland County southwest of the picturesque village of Loudonville, known as one of the 10 prettiest towns in Ohio.

THE 1,294-ACRE park has just about everything—camping, cabins, picnicking, horseback riding, hiking, fishing and even a full-scale replica of a covered bridge. Visitors can climb to the top of a forest fire tower in the park and be treated to a spectacular view of the countryside.

The park's attraction as a vacation spot will be further enhanced in early 1974 when the 96-room Mohican State Park Lodge will open. It will provide year-round accommodations not only for park visitors but also for skiing enthusiasts using privately owned slopes nearby.

SURROUNDING the park are 4,000 acres of forest comprising Mohican and Memorial state forests. Horse and hiking trails wind through Mohican State Forest. The Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs maintains a shrine dedicated to Ohio's war dead in Memorial state forest off State Route 97.

Mohican State Park borders 890-acre Pleasant Hill Lake, a favorite spot for power boaters, water skiers and fishermen.

THE CLEAR FORK of the Mohican River, the most popular river in Ohio with amateur canoeists, flows through the park. The river is known for its excellent bass fishing.

Visitors to Mohican also can visit Malabar Farm, the home of author Louis Bromfield, northwest of the park. The farm is now run by the Ohio departments of Natural Resources and Agriculture as a model of good conservation and farming practices. Visitors can tour Bromfield's 32-room home and enjoy a delicious home cooked meal at the nearby Malabar Inn.

Joe Dobbins, Mohican State Park manager, said the swimming pool is the main attraction of the park's 133-site Class A campground. The campground has complete shower and laundry facilities and each campsite has electricity.

THE PARK'S 25 housekeeping cabins are in a beautiful, cool glade near the Clear Fork River and are available all year. The cabins are rented for $25 for one day, $21 per day for two or more days, or $110 per week.

They are fully furnished and complete with bedding, linen, dishes and cooking utensils. Reservations by the week are given preference from Memorial Day to Labor Day.

Dobbins said the park and the associated forest are well-liked by naturalists.

"Both Canadian and southern Ohio plants grow in the area in one of the most unusual and varied collections of flora found anywhere in the state," he said.

OHIO'S largest native stand of white pine grows in Mohican and Canadian hemlock trees cover the cool hillside sloping to the Clear Fork. Mountain maple, Canada yew, club moss, British soldier lichen and reindeer moss are among the many extraordinary plants found in the park.

In 1967, the Clear Fork Gorge was named a National Natural Landmark by the U.S. Interior Department.

Dobbins said park visitors can take the self-guided Mohican Nature Trail and see hooded and Kentucky warblers, various club mosses and lichens, pileated woodpeckers, catbirds and many other plants and animals.

The Mohican area has a rich history of folklore, Dobbins said.

THE REGION was a favorite hunting ground for the Delaware Indians and legend has it that the James gang hid among the hills to escape the law.

A stagecoach trail in the early 1800s wound along the Clear Fork. Park visitors can still find the ruins of an old stagecoach inn in the park.

John Chapman, alias Johnny Appleseed, tended his orchards near Mohican and it is said he carved his initials in the wall of Lyons Falls in the northwest corner of the park. The falls figures prominently in Mohican folklore.

Photo Selected

Warren E. Motis of Motis Photographic Center, Inc. has had one of his award-winning photographs selected for publication in the December 1973 issue of The Professional Photographer, official journal of the Professional Photographers of America, Inc. The photograph entitled "Serenity" was originally selected by the Professional Photographers of America, Inc. for display in the 62nd International Exhibition of Professional Photographers in Denver last August. Over 600 winning photographs were on exhibit at the exhibition, but only 11 of these have been selected for publication in the magazine.

LABOR FACTS

DRIVING SPEED

The U.S. Department of Labor's Employment Standards Administration has issued regulations requiring farm employers, as well as labor contractors, to assure that farm laborers are paid the minimum wage.

Driving speed affects mileage, says the Ohio Department of Highway Safety. If you reduce speed from 60 mph to 50 mph, you can save 10 per cent or more in fuel consumption.

To Get Gates On Wilson

WEST COLUMBUS—Rick Mulledy keeps traffic moving at the Wilson Road railroad crossing near Fisher Rd. The lights go on when a train is at Hague so slow moving trains cause a longer line of cars than necessary. School buses and gasoline trucks won't cross railroad tracks when the lights are flashing, so Rick keeps the traffic going until it is necessary to have it stop. Penn Central is now installing gates which should be in operation by the end of January. There are now flagmen at the crossing 24 hours a day, seven days a week. (Photo by Elsie Weaver)

Local Police Spend 852 Hours In School

By KATHY DEVANEY

West Columbus—An undergraduate at Ohio State University must have 196 hours of credit in order to graduate. A Columbus Police Officer is required to take 852 hours before being sworn in, as well as spending 200 hours in on-the-job training.

The first half of training at the Police Academy, 2600 McKinley Ave., is strict military—a totally controlled atmosphere with the cadets under very close supervision, according to Sgt. Larry Mead, who heads the Cadet Division which is in charge of the cadets. Courtesy and discipline are also emphasized in this first 10-week period. The classroom atmosphere remains intact but outside of class cadets are strictly controlled.

The second phase the Academy uses the guidance method approach. The atmosphere is toned down and cadets take over the operation of the class outside the classroom for the final 12 weeks of training. The men become responsible for all formations (roll call, physical training, raising the flag). The responsibility for this is rotated so everyone in the class is put in a command position and is responsible for discipline and getting the class where it is supposed to be, he said.

"THIS METHOD attempts to get them ready to move from the strict, controlled, military setting of the academy to street duty. The Police Department is a semi-military organization which means discipline is not as strict but we have to instill self-discipline. The strict discipline makes them decide whether they really want to be a police officer," Mead said. The men are observed while they are in a command position on their judgment, attitude, tact and ability to deal with others.

Also in this last phase they spend five days on the street in a cruiser as observers to see what it's like and to show them how important the subjects they are learning are. "We can't create these situations in class," Mead said. There are 10 divisions of training presented to the cadets at the Academy. They are intended to present the fundamentals of modern police work and general knowledge to make the officer a competent and professional policeman.

IN POLICE TRAINING one would expect the cadets to take such courses as the history of policing, firearms policy, rules and regulations, arrest, search and seizure, criminal law, legal phrases and definitions, traffic laws, rules of evidence, the Constitution, court appearance, crime prevention, radio communication, ethics, accident reports, narcotics, riot training, anti-guerrilla tactics and firearms instruction.

But some surprising courses might be psychology, sociology, public speaking, obstetrical emergencies, practical English, spelling, boxing, public relations, handling family disturbances, press relations and the need for informants.

The cadet is also introduced to the Red Cross donor program as a way of helping the citizens of his community.

Cadets attend the academy from 6:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. During training they receive patrolman's pay of $4.07 an hour ($8,465.00 a year). After graduation they are assigned to the traffic bureau for five days and for 20 days they are assigned to a coach.

THE COACH is required to evaluate his man on a weekly basis and then make an overall evaluation recommending that the man be put on, receive more coaching or be retrained. The evaluation is eight pages and covers 33 areas of police work. One of the last questions is "Would you be willing to accept this person as a partner?" and this often happens, according to Mead.

No cadet has ever been sent back to the Academy for retraining, but some have been sent back for very specific subjects such as driving, Mead said.

More people are applying for police officers jobs and taking the civil service test because of the salary and fringe benefits according to Mead. But many are being screened out by the strict discipline at the beginning of training. No one has been dismissed from the Academy. All who have left have resigned voluntarily, he said. The attrition rate has averaged 10 per cent over a period of eight years.

THE ACADEMY not only trains new officers.

In-service training is provided for officers who must come back for four hours each year for a refresher course on things that have changed. Classes have been going on since November to explain the new Ohio Revised Code. Classes have been conducted six days a week for the 1,000 officers who have finished the course. The final group will be finished in February (these are men who don't directly enforce the new laws, such as radio operators).

An auxiliary class began Jan. 8. Auxiliary officers receive the same training as cadets only they go two nights a week for eight or nine months.

The second school for detectives begins Jan. 14.

Special training was also given to 12 civilian radio technicians which will free police officers for other duty. Civilian guards are also being added to the jail bureau for the same reason.

The Academy has also trained officers for other governmental entities such as Grove City, Whitehall, Clinton Township, Westerville, Upper Arlington and Wilmington, Ohio.

The teaching staff is supplemented by other officers from divisions within the police department who teach such things as the illegal aspects of vice, juvenile delinquency and traffic patrol procedures. There are also speakers from the FBI and Arson Bureau.

The present Academy, headed by Capt. Robert L. Rudlock, was built in 1965. Prior to 1965 the Academy was in the City Hall annex and prior to that in headquarters.

The first recorded class was in 1940 and they received six weeks training. Since January, 1971 there have been 471 cadets who have entered the school.

members of a class of 48 which began training two weeks ago. They will be at the Academy for a total of 22 weeks of intensive training.

The board introduced a resolution to continue meeting the first and third Monday of each month at the firehouse at 4100 Sullivant Ave. at 7 p.m.

Conservation Efforts Will Help Ease Fuel Shortages

By Arch Booth

As executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Arch Booth serves as a spokesman for American business. The National Chamber federation represents an underlying membership of more than 5,000,000 business firms, organizations and individuals.

EARLY indications show that our voluntary conservation efforts are helping to ease the fuel shortage. We've gotten some breaks, too: The fall weather was milder than usual in many parts of the country. And there seems to be some oil "leaking" through the Arab blockade.

All of this taken together means we may be able to squeak by without resorting to gasoline rationing, though not repeat, not without inconvenience.

HOW MUCH inconvenience? That's an important question. Americans are great at pitching in and sacrificing during a crisis. I suspect the instinct goes all the way back to hard times on the frontier and in the early colonies, when neighbors helped each other. But, we also have a strong aversion to be "taken" — we don't like to be tricked into doing more than our fair share.

The "fair share" guideline for home heating is setting the thermostat at 68 degrees (even lower in the evenings and for office buildings and businesses). But what's a fair share for gasoline usage? Up to now, we have been asked to "cut down" on driving, take the bus, form carpools, etc., but hard figures on how much is enough have been almost as scarce as gasoline on a Sunday.

Why Figures Differ

THE GREAT variation in fuel supply estimates is due to several things. First, petroleum products move around the world in such a complex web that few people, if any, really had a good grasp of the total picture when the Arab boycott began. Second, there's the unpredictability of the weather. And third, there's the unpredictability of the leakage.

So, the best fuel figures you can get will be informed estimates, subject to change with changing conditions. They will not all agree, but most will fall within the same range, and most will indicate the same trends. RIGHT NOW, the best estimates I know of on gasoline supplies show there will be somewhere between 20 percent to 30 percent less gasoline available for private automobile use than we would use under normal circumstances.

THIS SHORTAGE will continue even after the end of the Arab embargo, although the percentages will probably change.

Let's split the difference, then, and say that 25 percent less gasoline usage is the fair share.

The National Chamber is sponsoring a campaign asking everyone — businessmen and consumers — to cut down by that much.

That's not really so tough. Most of us have been in the habit of using our cars wastefully: The classic one-block drive to the store for a pack of cigarettes — or something — comes to mind.

Save Gas, Save Money

BUSINESSMEN can do more of their buying and selling by phone, instead of in person. They can consolidate deliveries, or pool delivery services with other businesses. And they can help employees form carpools, hold gas-saving contests, etc.

As individuals, we can take the bus or a carpool two days a week. Or leave the car in the garage over the weekend and walk or cycle. We can plan our shopping carefully, to do as much as possible in one trip, over the most efficient route. And we can form "social car pools" to pool shopping and recreational trips.

ALL DRIVERS can maximize their gas mileage with a few simple tricks: Keep the engine properly tuned. Bad points, plugs, or timing can waste an enormous amount of gasoline.

Feather-foot it on the accelerator pedal. Quick acceleration and stop-and-go driving waste gas. Smooth is best.

Inflate the tires properly. Soft tires waste

Don't idle your engine for long periods. Not even when cold. It's actually better for the engine to let it warm up under a moderate load.

IT ALL ADDS UP. When it all adds up to 25 percent you'll have done your share.

State Income Tax Form Features A New Format

THE NEW individual income tax form that some four million Ohio taxpayers are currently receiving in the mail features a new format this year, according to Tax Commissioner Robert J. Kosydar.

Kosydar said this year's tax return is very similar to that used by the Internal Revenue Service in that the form and return envelope are included in the instruction booklet which is addressed to the taxpayer.

Last year, Kosydar noted, the individual Ohio Form 1040 instruction booklet and return envelope each were separate and mailed in an envelope to the taxpayer.

KOSYDAR said this year the instruction booklet will carry a preaddressed, gummed label, like the one used by the IRS, which the taxpayer should detach and affix to either the Ohio short or long Form 1040, both of which are part of the booklet.

In order to facilitate processing of the Ohio returns, especially where refunds are due taxpayers, Kosydar suggested the following instructions be followed:

BE SURE to peel off the gummed label on the outside of the instruction booklet and affix it to the proper return; double check the mathematical accuracy of the return; be sure all handwritten figures are legible; attach all wage and tax withholding statements; and be sure the returns are signed.

Kosydar said the signature or signatures on the return are extremely important as no refunds will be made if the return is not signed.

The commissioner also cautioned taxpayers filing 1973 returns to claim no more than six $500 personal exemptions, including the taxpayer or taxpayers, or a maximum deduction of $3,000 for personal exemptions.

ANOTHER POINT made by Kosydar was in the area of credit for joint filers in that each spouse in order to qualify for the credit must have at least $500 in adjusted gross income exclusive of interest, dividends, royalties, rents and capital gains.

If a taxpayer desires to obtain assistance in completing a return or additional information, he or she is asked to contact the nearest district office of the Ohio Department of Taxation, Kosydar said. Locations and telephone numbers of the department's eight district offices are listed on the back of the instruction booklet.

Columbus Zoo Appreciates Help

To the Editor:

In behalf of all of us connected with the Columbus Zoo, I should like to thank you so very much for your solid support in 1973.

Your Zoo had a fine year in 1973...with attendance up and many more people heading our call to "Come See in '73!" A great deal of credit for this goes to you people in the media who have given time and effort to boosting the Zoo.

This year, we are saying "MORE IN '74!"...Go more, see more, care more, help more, learn more, enjoy more and give more...and our new baby giraffe has been named "Seymour" and will be our mascot and symbol for 1974. We hope that you will continue to assist your Zoo this year in urging everyone to "See More in '74!"

Again, thank you and Happy New Year.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Lonnie T. Smith

The Eastmoor High School

You're Telling Us!

The Spectator Newspapers welcome letters from readers, expressing their views on subjects of interest to them — whether initiated by news stories or editorial expression in this newspaper or not. Because of space limitations, we prefer letters which do not exceed 300 words. All letters submitted for publication must be signed with the writer's name and address, although — upon request — the name of the writer can be withheld. Letters should be marked: "To the Editor, Spectator Newspapers, 3421 South Boulevard, Columbus, Ohio 43204" and must be received by Friday noon prior to publication date for possible publication in that week's edition.

East High School Expresses Thanks

To the Editor:

Dear Kathy Devaney:

East High School thanks you and the Spectator Newspaper. It was through your great contribution that East High Alumni and Associates was officially born Dec. 18.

We were able to greet the hundred returning alumni for the pre-Yuletide assembly program Dec. 21. Words cannot express our appreciation for the splendid services.

Will you do us the honor of officially serving on our 77th year celebration committee?

The alumni will grow and mature with the aid of the association.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Charles L. Shaw
East High School Advisor
Multi Media Communications Club.

Thanks From The Seniors

To the Editor:

On behalf of McDowell Center, thank you for your feature editorial on the Senior Citizen Christmas Program. We had a wonderful Christmas season with much participation from members. Newspaper publicity is most valuable in letting people know what our program is. We very much appreciate your help this time.

Thank you again, and a most happy New Year to you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Dan D. Kozielek

How To Submit Your News Item For Publication

IT'S EASIER than apple pie to get your news item in the community news pages of The Spectator Newspapers.

Unlike some other weekly papers The Spectator Newspapers does not assess any kind of a monetary charge for news items and photos.

The steps are very simple:

CALL US FIRST at 274-1155 if you have any questions about the news item you intend to submit.

DEADLINES

The deadline for all news items and photos for possible publication in the following Wednesday issue is the Monday noon prior to that issue. Naturally, we would like your item sooner if possible since, if everyone waits until that Monday noon deadline, it would not be possible to have the type set and the story made ready for the issue.

THE EDITOR reserves the right to edit all articles submitted, however, if we drastically question any part of your article you will be called for clarification.

News items can be mailed to The Spectator Newspapers, 3421 South Boulevard, Columbus, Ohio, 43204, or brought to the office that is in the Great Western Shopping Center.

Our telephone number is 274-1155. If one of the editors is not in when you call, please leave your name and number and your call will be returned as soon as possible.

ALTHOUGH we like to have our news items typewritten it is not necessary. However, please use a sheet of 8 x 11 white paper if at all possible and print the proper names legibly. Please include your name, address and telephone number on your notice in case we need to call you for clarification of any of the information submitted.

For identification purposes news items should be directed to the following persons:

Spectator West - Kathy Devaney. This newspaper covers the areas of West Columbus from about Central High School all the way west to New Rome. It includes school districts of Columbus West, Franklin Heights, Bishop Ready and Westland.

Spectator East - Elsie Weaver. This newspaper covers the area of East Columbus from the Reynoldsburg city limits east to Whitehall and as far southeast as Eastland Joint Vocational Center, then includes all of Whitehall and Bexley and West to about the 800 block of East Broad Street. It includes school districts of Walnut Ridge, Bishop Hartley, Columbus East, Eastmoor, Whitehall, Groveport, St. Charles, Bexley, Eastland Joint Vocational Center, Ohio Dominican and Capital and Franklin Universities.

Reynoldsburg Spectator - Ray Adams. This newspaper covers the community of Reynoldsburg and some of Brice, all of Truro Township, and Reynoldsburg School District, Reynoldsburg students who attend Bishop Hartley High School and St. Pius X Elementary School.

Worthington Spectator - Ray Adams. This newspaper covers the community of Worthington, Otterbein and Wadsworth School Districts and Otterbein College.

WE PREFER NEWS for these papers be directed to the individual editors.

ALL PAPERS ITEMS

If you have an item that you would like to have in all four papers such as an item of a broad nature such as a community festival, a club meeting that includes members from all areas, or the like, direct it to Ray Adams. We will make every effort to print your notice as space permits.

PHOTOS

We prefer to do our own photography. However, if you submit a photo for publication, it must be of a good quality for us to reproduce. We prefer 8 x 10 or 5 x 7 glossy prints. Polaroids are NOT generally of a good enough quality to reproduce in our process. PLEASE - no color photos. And - if you want your news photo returned send a stamped self-addressed envelope.

WEDDINGS AND ENGAGEMENTS

THERE IS NO charge for having your engagement or wedding photo printed in any Spectator Newspaper. We prefer glossy prints either 8 x 10 or 5 x 7 - black and white if possible. We cannot guarantee the reproduction of color prints. Your engagement or wedding photo should be sent to us as soon as the announcement is made. Wedding photos, if possible, should be submitted to us in time for use in the publication following the wedding, or at least no later than a week afterwards.

IF YOU would like one of our engagement or wedding announcement forms please send your name and address to the specified editor of the newspaper as mentioned earlier in this story.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

WE WELCOME letters to the editor that pertain to community items of interest to the various communities involved. All letters must be original, exclusive to The Spectator Newspapers, and the writer must sign name, address and phone number if there should be any reason to clarify any portion of your letter. They should be brief (no more than 250 words, please) and if you wish your name withheld we will consider this request provided that in the letter there is no matter that offends someone directly through language use or innuendoes.

REMEMBER, this is your newspaper to relay information of your club or organization, or to report a happening which you think might be of interest to us.

Thanks, and good news to everyone.

School For Detectives Opens Jan. 14

Columbus—Effective Jan. 14, 1974, the Columbus Division of Police will operate a second in-depth training school for detectives. Chief Earl Burden stated that this program was initiated in July of 1973, and was a great aid in the detective Bureau Training Program. This program follows the departmental policy of constantly upgrading the training and knowledge of Columbus Police Officers. This particular school is designed to provide instruction in the basic skills a police officer needs if he is to become a well-rounded and effectively trained detective.

Classroom training will include three weeks of instruction in such subjects as the collection and preservation of evidence, crime scene photography, search and seizure, surveillance, latent fingerprints, interviews and interrogations and other investigative techniques. The instructors of these subjects will include experienced detective supervisors, as well as special agents of the F.B.I., Secret Service, Alcohol, Tax and Firearms Division, and the Internal Revenue Service.

After completion of the classroom training, the trainees will be rotated among the various detective squads, such as homicide, burglary and checks for a period of five months. While attached to these squads, the trainee will work with a veteran detective coach who will provide individual instruction and actually allow the trainee to conduct detailed criminal investigations.

A written examination will be given each student after the classroom sessions. In addition, each trainee will also be graded on his job performance by his detective coach.

Those officers who successfully complete the entire six-month course will be awarded an official graduation certificate by Chief Burden, and then be considered for permanent assignment as detectives.

In keeping with the spirit of cooperation which exists between the Columbus Police and other law enforcement agencies, Chief Burden has invited local, suburban and county chiefs to send selected officers from their departments to receive this specialized training.

'The Consul' Scheduled At Otterbein College

A musical drama in three acts written for the Broadway theatre rather than the opera house, "The Consul" will be performed at Otterbein's Cowan Hall Jan. 18-19.

"The Consul", winner of the New York Drama Critics' Circle Award as best musical play of the year and the Pulitzer Prize for Music, has been successfully produced throughout Europe and the United States. The action of the drama takes place in Eastern Europe, sometime after World War II, and tells the story of a courageous man and woman and their struggles for freedom. The Consul wants to share every effort of Magda Sorel (Boris Lowe) as she tries frantically to join her husband John (Allen Reese) who has fled to freedom. The Sorel baby and John's mother (Jill Leasure) become ill, and even the Consul's secretary (Marianne Wells) is unable to help.

APPEARING NIGHTLY - WESTERN MOTELS

LINCOLN LODGE 4950 W BROAD

Billy Brown who has been performing at the Lincoln Lodge 4950 W. Broad. For a one man act Billy Brown has been about the best in Columbus.

His performance sprinkled with earthy jokes and banter with the audience, and his recollection of many Country and Blue Songs written in the last 30 years.

In 1959 Billy Brown did the original recording of "Hillbilly To Go" for Columbia Records. It rose to No. 1 in many cities but according to Brown at this time Jim Reeves also recorded it in the same style and Reeves recording became one of the biggest Country Hits ever.

Billy Brown a Country - Western Singer and Guitarist from Florida has been engaged for a six week contract at Lincoln Lodge.

He is drawing the largest crowds to the Lounge since it started with the Billy Brown Show entertaining with the up-town Country - Western Sound. Brown's newest record has just been released on Big M Records. "Thank You Darling" and "Country Boy" Brown performance features versatility, personality and ad-lib humor in addition to a repertoire which includes updating, impersonations of Johnny Cash, Elvis Presley, Gene Autry, Eddie Arnold, Charlie Rich and Walter Brennan. He sings "Cool Clear Water" in the style of various singers.

For an enjoyable and relaxing evening filled with pleasant fun, the Lounge at Lincoln Lodge is recom-

Sammy Davis At State Fair

FLASH... Just received word that Sammy Davis Jr. may be appearing at the Ohio State Fair this year. Davis wants to bring in a complete show for free, with permission to pass the hat among the audience for one of his favorite charities, The National Highway Safety Committee. If these arrangements cannot be worked out, he would be willing to come in for free, with the entire amount turned over to The National Highway Safety Committee. Details are now being worked out and should be firmed up soon.

Michael's Is Exceptional

Michael's, an exceptionally fine restaurant, opened a couple of weeks ago in our area. Located on Hoover Road, in Grove City, Michael's is one of the best in the Columbus area. And, that's saying a mouthful, my friends. You'll say more than that, once you tasted the food. It is great! So is the decor and so is the service.

Michael's is in a building, that used to house another restaurant. There the similarity stops. The place has been completely remodeled, and I do mean completely. It took the new owner, Bill Evans, over four months to revamp the entire interior.

While beautiful, intimate decor that gives a classy atmosphere is enjoyable and is rather conducive to good appetites, it certainly does not guarantee fine food. That's another story. And, believe me, Michael's has a great story.

Chef Jimmy Wilson is an expert. Winning awards at the National Chef's annual convention, Jimmy has the ability to prepare food that is fit for a king. Barbara Evans, no relation to the owner, is the dining room manager and is responsible for the excellent service. This team is just about the best I've seen anywhere.

Wait until you order your meal, and you'll see what I mean. Our waitress, Dee, was the most efficient and courteous I've encountered in many a moon.

After two trips to the salad bar, which features lots of goodies, and a wide choice of dressings, our entree, Surf and Turf was served.

The presentation was tremendous. Just having placed in front of me was like experiencing a Roman Holiday and the Fourth of July all rolled into one. I can't remember being as excited over how beautiful an entree appeared. The taste was equally as dynamic.

Surf and Turf, as you probably know, consists of a filet mignon and a lobster tail. Now, I have eaten Surf and Turf from coast to coast and never did I have one as delicious as this one. Often times the filet is dry. This one was extremely juicy and succulent. The lobster tail was huge and beautifully prepared. As they say a picture is worth a thousand words, the same is true with the flavor of the Surf and Turf. You just have to taste it to fully appreciate the flavor. Fantastic!

Michael's is open Monday through Saturday for lunch and dinner. Prices are reasonable for what you get. Our meal included a baked potato with an abundance of sour cream, the yummiest green beans and lots of hot rolls.

To sum it all up, the food at Michael's is an experience you'll not forget for a long, long time.

Happiness At The Heritage

For those of you who enjoy pretty, pretty music, then I suggest you head to the Heritage Lounge of the Holiday Inn - OSU and listen to the melodious songs of The Middlemen. The duo is comprised of Darrell House on lead guitar and vocals and Steve Earely with the electric bass and vocal harmonies.

Besides playing nice soft music for dining, dancing and cocktails, the vocal stylings of Darrell House is really what makes the duo so darn entertaining. This fellow sings up a storm. Owning a strong voice with very pleasant tonal qualities, Darrell is the type of singer who you can sit and listen to all night long. He is not overpowering. His vocal renditions are rather soothing and relaxing to tired nerves and ears that are used to loud shake 'em up type of presentation. Don't get me wrong, Darrell is a strong stylist. He sounds like Darrell and nobody else. Darrell plays guitar as well as he sings. To say that he's a master of the guitar strings would almost describe his musical talents.

The other half of the duo also turns in some fine work. His vocal harmonizing with Darrell produces some close, close, harmony. It has been a while since I've heard this close and this beautiful vocal harmony work. Steve also does a fine job with electric bass. He seems to know the purpose of the instrument and plays it wisely.

Both Darrell and Steve provide plenty of good musical entertainment. That's the name of the game. I know that you'll enjoy them and be pleasantly entertained. It all happens in the main floor lounge of the new Holiday Inn-OSU from 6 p.m. until 11 p.m. Take my advice, and put The Middlemen on your entertainment menu.

TV-4 Has New Promotion Manager

The promotion department of any television station has an important function. Without them, we wouldn't know what is going on in the TV World. It is their job to prepare the logs for newspapers, place advertisements in papers, as well as on the air to let us know what programs are going to be broadcast and when, and what a particular show is about. The promotion department also prepares news releases, to help keep us informed about various television shows. Another function of the promotion department is to arrange interviews for the press with various stars who appear on the different TV shows so that you may get to know better the people you see on the screen. It is an important part of the broadcasting industry.

I am happy to welcome to our city and to introduce to you, Robert H. Wheat, the new Director of Promotion of WLWC. Bob has recently taken over the duties as promotional director of TV-4. Before coming to Columbus, Bob was Promotion Publicity Assistant at WLW-TV, Avco flag station in Cincinnati. A graduate of the University of Cincinnati, Wheat also holds a Masters Degree in Education from Xavier University in Cincinnati.

Bob promises many new ideas to keep Columbus informed as to what's happening on WLWC. So remember, anytime you see something in the paper or hear a "promo" on the air regarding one of the station's shows or personalities, you can bet that Bob had something to do with it.

To you Bob, you wife, Denise and your son, Robert, on behalf of my readers, we welcome you to Columbus.

Vienna Boys Choir At Mershon In March

The thirtieth North American tour by the Vienna Choir Boys will bring the world-famous youngsters to Mershon Auditorium Monday, March 4, at 8 p.m.

The choir, founded on July 7, 1498, by Imperial Decree of the Holy Roman Emperor Maximilian I, was kept as a performing unit exclusively for the Hapsburg Court until the fall of the Austrian Empire in 1918. Following that time, the historic Choir School had to depend on itself for support, and public concerts were initiated in 1930.

S. Hurok, the noted impresario who has sponsored each of the earlier twenty-nine American tours, first brought the Choir Boys here in 1932. This season the Vienna Choir Boys began its three-month tour of the United States and Canada with six Christmas Week performances in New York's Philharmonic Hall.

A rotating system always leaves one complete choir unit in Vienna to sing at religious services at the Hofmusikkapelle and at St. Stephen's Cathedral, as well as to appear in performances requiring children at the Vienna State Opera. Other units travel around the world, and each boy is given the opportunity to visit as many countries as possible.

Reserved seat ticket sales has begun at the Mershon ticket office where information is available at 422-2354.

Smooth Sail Skating The Newest Winter Sport

WINTER recreation is vital to our health. This year, however, the energy shortage will make it harder for us to pursue our favorite sports. Many will still travel hundreds of miles to a ski resort. Snowmobiling too will continue to go on.

Perhaps it is time to rediscover the joys of ice skating because frozen lakes and rivers are conveniently close.

ICE SKATING can be enjoyed in many forms; hockey, racing, figure skating, and just cruising around. But how many of us know of skate sailing?

Imagine zipping over the ice on skates at 40 mph! All you need in addition to ice skates and a frozen lake is a kite-like sail.

The wind supplies the power, a commodity that the Arabs have yet to control.

THE SAIL consists of a crossed vertical mast and a horizontal boom of equal length, over which is stretched a sailcloth.

Flexible bows in the front and rear maintain the sail's shape and tension. Large plastic windows permit an unimpeded view.

As the sail is supported on the skater's shoulder, it must be light yet strong enough to withstand the force of the wind.

An adult size skate sail has 9 feet long mast and boom, and carries 54 square feet of sail.

SKATE sailing tactics are similar to sailing a boat except the speeds are far greater.

The skater stands on the leeward side of the vertical sail where he is protected from the wind.

The boom rests on his shoulder and the hand nearest the sail grasps the lower part of the mast. As speed increases, he leans against the sail and is supported by the wind.

CHANGING course is accomplished by raising the sail horizontally overhead and bringing it down on the other shoulder. The overhead position also spills the wind for stopping.

Speeds of twice the wind velocity are easily attained and 55 mph has been recorded.

It follows that only the bravest skate sailors venture out when the wind exceeds 25 mph.

A skate sailor in trouble has a simple remedy, he just lets go of the sail and takes care of himself.

THE SPORT is quite safe and breaking through thin ice is the biggest hazard.

Lightweight flotation vests are therefore recommended. Although over 70 years old, skate sailing has been obscure because sails were homemade. Now ready-made sails are available for about $80. The sole manufacturer of skate sails is Waterfun Inc., Box 3442

Ridgeway, Stamford Conn. Skate sailing generates no pollution, no noise, and the wind is free. Why not try it!

Jumbled Races Dot Leagues With Titles At Stake

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Spectator Sports Writer

CLOSER than a one point loss are these high school roundball races and when the smoke cleared after last week's action, the eyes do what they did one week earlier.

While all of the area schoolboy races have a leader, not a real stable one the way things have been juggling around, the second and third place teams continue to threaten.

One new topper, Watterson in the Central Catholic League, dropped Hartley in a thriller last week to claim the top hold (maybe the temporary top hold) on that circuit.

The City is as jumbled as ever with Eastmoor hanging right in there while Mt. Vernon owns a one game spread over Whitehall's Russ Gregg Rams in the Ohio Capital Conference while those two powerhouses continue to dribble towards a first place collision only a couple of weeks away.

Teays Valley is a one game leader over Grandview in the Metro League while Bexley fell into a first place tie with Urbana in the Mid-Eight via a loss to Grove City.

And oh, how rough it will be to pick that top game that you want to see this weekend, how will one make a choice?

Eastmoor has to travel to Marion Franklin where the Devils pose a serious threat to Red Courtney's Warrior fighters while West tries to break the losing habit at Linden, not a real friendly place to win one.

Walnut Ridge possesses the biggest challenge when it hustles on over to Mohawk where the Indians are calling the City League shots. East will try to unslump at Brookhaven, a surprise winner over Walnut Ridge last week.

Worthington will try to rearrange the OCC when it visits Mt. Vernon in that cliché feature while Whitehall preps at Delaware.

Reynoldsburg is at Westland in another OCCer.

THESE features never quit, and the CCL is no place to think they will be a headliner will be a dandy there when Watterson tests its top spot at Reedy and Hartley tries to stay close at home against DeSales. St. Charles will attempt to make it two in a row at thorns against Wehrle.

London will visit Bexley as Gene Millard will try to regroup his Bexley Lions into its first place form of early season.

Last week was a good old handinger for some and, well, not so handinging for others as East stalled twice and Walnut Ridge, split looking cool in a win at Marion Franklin Friday and then looking not so cool in a loss to lowly Brookhaven the next night.

WEST dropped a pair over the weekend also, only its hurt a little more because the losses were so close. Whitestone outshot the Cowboys (can you outshoot a

High School Basketball Schedule FRIDAY

Columbus City: Eastmoor at Marion Franklin, North at Central, West at Linden, Whitestone at South, Walnut Ridge at Mohawk, East at Brookhaven and Northland at Mifflin.

Ohio Capital: Worthington at Mt. Vernon, Gahanna at Westerville, Reynoldsburg at Westland and Whitehall at Delaware.

Central Catholic: Watterson at Reedy, Wehrle at St. Charles and DeSales at Hartley.

Mid-Eight: Groveport at Urbana, Grove City at Millard and London at Bexley.

Metro: Grandview at Hamilton Township, Marysville at Olentangy, West Jefferson at Teays Valley and Franklin Heights at Dublin.

SATURDAY

cowboy?) 63-41 and South whipped 'em 74-70.

Eastmoor was the weekend glitser with a two-point escape up at Linden on Friday and a 55-50 win at home on Saturday as the Warrior frontline subs Rob Hunter, Bill Wilson and Jody Hurt put the hurt to Central's Pirates.

That Hartley Watterson thriller in the CCL saw Watterson flier Tom Doyle spark the Eagles with a 15 point fourth quarter, too much for the grounded Hawks. St. Charles blasted De Sales and Reedy played up to potential in a belting of Wehrle in other CCL outings.

The OCC was routine as Terry Burris led Whitehall into win over Reynoldsburg. Ed Williams leading the losers, and Don Brough was rough and good in the Cardinal winover Delaware.

Westerville cut Westland by four while Gahanna gave

Mt. Vernon a scare before folding by a basket.

Bexley came back but couldn't quite put it all together in its loss at Grove City although Franklin Heights earned praise for its valiant try against leader Teays Valley, despite a 79-76 loss. SHORTS-Grapplers are being tossed around the mats and the top losers (that's not the tosses) in the area to date are Roger Escolas of Westland in the 96 pound class; Rocky Wingol Bexley in the 105 category; Eastmoor's Sam Peppers, 112; Eastmoor's Jeff Mathery, 126; Worthington's Kevin Foley Worthington 155; Dick Reiss and Terry Lynhart Whitehall 167; Steve Heine Worthington 175; Paul Wade Reynoldsburg and Jeff Eldelstein Bexley 185....The above have a combined record of 67-5-1.

Reedy vs Wehrle

IT WAS UP, AND UP, then put it away for Reedy's Bob Cumberlander as he managed to sink this one against Wehrle in the Silver Knights win. Wehrle players watching in vain as the two-pointers in on its way are Jerry Mahan (55) and Steve Ferris (41). (Reedy-Wehrle photos by Craig Weaver.)

Ice Fishing tips
A successful ice fishing trip can depend upon the type of gear and bait used. Different types of gear are used for the various kinds of ice fishing found in Ohio.

When perch fishing in Lake Erie and Sandusky Bay, short stiff rods equipped with or without a simple reel are fished with braided or monofilament line with a spreader attached.

Minnows are the most successful bait, however worms and portions of already caught fish, such as flesh strips, etc., are also Excellent catches of crappies are also made along Lake Erie and Sandusky bay, especially in harbor marinas. Best crappie catches are made using small flasher spoons and light line.

Depending upon the season the baits may be fished from near bottom to many depths sometimes near the surface.

A GOOD suggestion is to move the bait around especially when the fishing is slow.

When panfishing in inland waters, short flexible rods with simple reels or line holders are fished with monofilament line with an ice fly or spoon baited with an insect larva, such as a mouse, wax worm, corn borer, meal worms or other larva tied to the end of the line. Combinations may be fished using only ice flies or the angler may include a small minnow.

Generally, a small bobber is used on the line to permit the bait to be about six inches off the bottom.

IN INLAND waters bluegills make up the highest percentage of fish taken with perch second, while crappies, bass bullheads and channel catfish are also taken.

The most popular inland ice fishing waters located in this area of the state include: Indian Lake, Schoonover Lake, Oxbow Lake, Lost Creek Reservoir, Ferguson Reservoir, Lima Lake, Nettle Lake, Harrison Lake, Fostoria Reservoir No. 3, Resthaven Ponds, Killdeer Ponds, Bucyrus Reservoir No. and No. 2 and Riley Reservoir and the many quarries and farm ponds found in Ohio.

Northern Pike are present in Spencer Lake, Beach City Reservoir, Nimisilla Reservoir and Aquilla Lake.

ICE FISHING presents an ideal method of taking this prize sport fish in Ohio. Tips usually work best when fishing for Northern Pike. Heavy test line of 20-30 lbs. should be used.

The line should be braided so that it can be handled by cold fingers. Nylon leader of 20 lbs. test or a short fire leader should be used to prevent the line from breaking due to fraying.

BEST BAITS to use are live chubs, suckers or shiners about six inches long, hooked below the dorsal fin to ride level. For the first few weeks after ice is on, fish within 20-30 feet from shore over weed beds. Later in the season, move out into deeper water. It is best to use several tip-ups and fish at different depths (remember that the maximum allowable number of tip-ups is six).

When a flag is up, get to your line immediately. Allow the pike to swim off with the bait always before setting the hook as the pike will carry the bait sideways in its mouth before swallowing.

West vs South

DOUBLE TEAMING of West on South's Jim Norman (35) didn't do much good here as Norman took the ball from the grasp of Cowboys Dave Kaiser (44) and Ron Williams (40). South won the City League fray. (West-South photos by Craig Weaver.)

A Unique Enlistment

BY CHANCE, two former shipmates were re-united during an enlistment ceremony in Columbus. Peter Dour, 1000 Loring Rd., Columbus, was enlisted in the Navy's Aviation Officer Program by his former co-pilot, Lt. Robert Bourne, whom he served with aboard a P-3 Orion. Dour was previously in the enlisted ranks of the Navy as a radioman, and in 1970, he and Lt. Bourne were both assigned to VP 35 air squadron, Brunswick Maine. Since that time, Dour returned to civilian life for a brief period to receive a degree in Engineering from Ohio State University, and Lt. Bourne was transferred to Navy Recruiting District, Columbus, to serve as an Officer Programs Officer. It was a pleasant surprise for both men to enlist and be enlisted by a past crew member.

Safety Precautions Needed While You're Ice Skating

ICESKATING, a great winter sport, can be even more fun if a few simple precautions are taken.

One of these precautions is to check ice thickness, advises W.E. Stuckey, Extension safety leader at The Ohio State University. How thick ice should be depends upon the quality as well as the quantity of ice, but for ice free of air bubbles and other imperfections, he recommends the following rule of thumb:

When it is two inches thick, it's safe for only one person. At three inches, ice will support small groups in single file. At four inches or more, it's safe for skating, skiing, sledging and ice fishing.

Stuckey suggests using a shallow-water area such as a pond, lagoon, or small lake for skating, if possible. Ideally, the body of water should not be more than waist deep.

NEVER skate alone, he advises. Stay with a companion and remain in a shallow area or close to shore, especially at night. Also, never build a fire on the ice, never drive a car or truck on the ice, and don't gather on the ice in large groups.

Should you break through the ice, don't panic. Extend both arms along the surface of the ice to spread your weight. Then kick your legs vigorously to lift your body and propel you forward, making it easier to slide onto solid ice.

A ROPE pole, ladder, or wide board should be kept handy at skating areas in case someone should break through. By extending these to him, while he flutters kicks, a rescue can be made.

SBA Approves 813 Loans For $42 Million

Frank D. Ray, Director of the Columbus District Office of the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) has announced that a total of 813 loans for $42,781,381 have been approved in the 46 southern, central and northwestern Columbus District counties during 1973.

Ray said the greatest number of loans were approved in Franklin and Hamilton Counties. Franklin County's 330 loans for $9,336,947 included 137 regular business loans and 193 disaster loans. Business loans in Hamilton County accounted for 55 of the 171 loans totaling $3,248,834.

Ray noted that most small independent businesses are eligible for SBA financial assistance. SBA defines a small business in the retail or service field as having maximum annual receipts of from $1 to $5 million, depending on the industry.

Eligible wholesale firms may have from $5 to $15 million maximum annual receipts, while construction businesses that averaged less than $5 million over a three-year period are also considered small businesses. Manufacturing companies also standards allow from a maximum of 250 to 1500 employees, depending on the industry.

According to Ray, SBA loans are primarily funded by banks with SBA guaranteeing up to 90 percent or $350,000 of the loan.

Crucial Corner

"To care about others gives life meaning...
...if we speak to strangers...
...and listen too...
...if we aren't afraid to show...
...we care."

Peter Seymour
"Anyone who talks about it won't do it." Have you ever heard this expression in relation to suicide? It is a fallacy. The truth is that most people give clues and warnings to those around them before attempting suicide. It has been estimated that 75 percent of all successful suicide victims have forewarned others of their intended doom.

Even during the time a person is suicidal, he is usually extremely ambivalent about living and dying. He sends out cues to those around him, such as: a young person giving away a prized possession, because, "I want to be sure you have this when I'm gone," or someone saying, "No one would ever miss me if I'd die." A person ambivalent about suicide gives out these cues hoping to get responses that will help him make a decision about living or dying.

Once a person has finally decided on suicide his behavior changes. Often he becomes very cheerful after a long period of depression. This happiness can be very deceptive to those close to him. His friends may think he is happy because he has finally decided that things aren't so bad after all. On the contrary, he may be happy because he has finally come out of his period of ambivalence and may have decided that suicide is the answer.

But, even at this point when a person has decided on suicide, he usually still has a flicker of a desire to live within him. This is the time when a friend, relative or concerned neighbor can provide the human contact, genuine interest and warm support in almost all of our lives when things get so bad we think or say that we would be better off dead. So how does one decide whether a loved one's mention of wanting to be dead is an idle comment or a real cry for help from a person who is contemplating suicide? Research and statistics have provided some guidelines for determining the lethality (the probability someone will die by his own hand) of an individual. Some of these are listed here.

One consideration when assessing lethality is the age and the sex of the individual. The probability of a suicide attempt increases with age, up to about 65 or 70 when it begins to decline slightly. Men are more likely to succeed at suicide, while women are more likely to attempt without success. Likewise the young are more likely to attempt and the elderly more likely to succeed at suicide. Every suicide attempt is a serious cry for help.

Another consideration in determining lethality is the suicidal plan. How deadly is the proposed weapon? How available is the proposed weapon? How specific are the details of the suicide plan? For instance, there is a much greater possibility of suicide with an individual who has planned the exact time, place and manner of suicide and who intends to kill himself with the loaded pistol he keeps in his car than with an individual who has no plan but thinks he'll go down to the drugstore some time and buy a bottle of aspirin and take them. Contrary to popular belief, asking a person who has talked of suicide how he plans to do it will not in itself push that person over the brink into a suicide attempt. So don't be afraid to get involved by asking how the person intends to take his life.

Another thing to consider in assessing lethality is what is going on in the individual's life. Has he recently lost his job, become seriously ill or lost a loved one through death or a divorce? In other words, is something happening in the person's life that is especially difficult or stressful for him? If there is, there is a greater possibility that he may be contemplating suicide.

Another consideration is whether the person has attempted suicide in the past. There is a much greater possibility of a suicide attempt in an individual who has attempted in the past.

A final consideration when determining the probability a person will commit suicide are the resources the person has available to him. When a person is stripped of many things which make life bearable to him and help him to get over the bad times, he is much more likely. For instance, a man who always turns to his wife or family for support in stressful times may find himself alone, for one reason or another, at a time when things in his life have really got him down. This man may be more likely to attempt to take his life.

So what do you do when you think someone may be seriously considering suicide? An expression of sincere concern, warmth, interest and support may be all the potentially suicidal person needs to show him that there really is someone who cares about him and maybe his life really is worth living after all. If more is needed, there is always help readily available 24 hours a day, every day, by calling the Southwest Community Mental Health Center at 224-6624 or by calling Suicide Prevention Service at 221-5445, a number which is listed on the inside front cover of the Columbus telephone directory.

Suicide is not a subject to be taken lightly. Suicide is one of the 10 leading causes of death in the U.S. and is the second leading cause of death among college students. And there are approximately six suicide attempts for every successful suicide. Suicide is, indeed, a problem worth our time and attention. What a small risk "becoming involved" with another person is when it may be just the spark that person needs to help him decide to live.

"The worst sin toward our fellow creatures is not to hate them, but to be indifferent to them. That is the essence of inhumanity."

Police Begins Family Crisis Training

Columbus-Director of Public Safety, Bernard T. Chupka announced recently that the Columbus Division of Police in cooperation with the Columbus Area Community Mental Health Center is initiating a Family Crisis Intervention Unit Program.

The principle objective of this $124,000 federally-funded program is to increase police officers' skills in dealing with family crisis situations by familiarizing officers with the community agencies and resources available to them.

The eighteen-month project is divided into three phases: The first phase will last approximately four months and is designed to familiarize the staff of the Columbus Area Community Mental Health Center with the operation of the Division of Police. Phase II is actually an information-gathering process regarding the development of a training program.

Phase II will consist of the training portion of the program and will involve the selection and training of police officers in the handling of family crisis situations.

Phase III will extend through July of 1975 and will permit an in-depth evaluation of the first two phases and will attempt to measure program effectiveness and improvement in family crisis situations.

WINTER DRIVING
The Ohio Department of Highway Safety says driving on icy or snow covered roads requires special techniques: Use a lighter touch on brake or accelerator. Accelerate slowly to avoid spinning the wheels. Avoid situations in which quick stops may be necessary. Pump brakes gently to prevent the car from skidding. If you should go into a skid, turn the steering wheel gently in the direction the vehicle is skidding.

West Students Tour SWCMHC

WEST COLUMBUS—Friday, Jan. 11, over 40 West High School students and their psychology teacher, Mrs. Barbara Warner, toured several of Southwest Mental Health Center's facilities on Columbus' west side. Plans for the tour began in October when the Rev. Howard Doerle, minister of Warren Ave. Nazarene Church and part-time counselor at Southwest, spoke to the class on Transactional Analysis theory. From there the students expressed interest in seeing the ways some of their study topics were put to use in helping people in the community. During the four-hour tour the students met and talked with numerous staff members and toured three of the six offices. After the tour the group had an opportunity to talk with therapists who use Transactional Analysis and to explore further techniques and applications of the theory. One of the two groups is shown above listening to Richard Hardy, director of the Hilltop-Lancaster office.

S-W Board Re-Suspends Two Bus Drivers

By KATHY DEYANNEY
Grove City—The South-Western City School Board again suspended with pay the two bus drivers dismissed for crossing railroad tracks when the gates were down.
Linda Grimm and Harriett Blackburn were dismissed in November as recommended by Superintendent Dr. Martin L. Stahl. The Grove City Civil Service Commission ordered a 60 day suspension without pay and then reinstatement. The commission said firing was too severe a punishment and that the school board had not followed correct procedures.
In a motion by Philip Mooley the board "suspended the two drivers, Linda Grimm and Harriett Blackburn, with pay while the board discusses the matter with legal counsel." The motion was seconded by Kenneth Relyea and unanimously approved by the board.
IN OTHER ACTION Board Clerk Robert A. Jennings complained about the problem of getting money for the district's Head Start Program from CMAAO (Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization).
"We have made numerous phone calls. We get promises but nothing happens. They owe approximately $10,000 for last year's program," Jennings said.

Relyea suggested sending a telegram to the Chicago office saying the district would discontinue the program if payments didn't arrive promptly. The board took no action.

Mrs. Gaynelle Mullins came before the board to see if the district can do anything to adjust school hours so children don't have to wait for the bus or walk to school in the dark.

DR. STAHL said it would cost the district $84,000 to change the starting time of school. The district provides transportation to 21 schools. There are 76 buses in the fleet and there are three opening times for schools.

Mooley suggested parents escort their children to school or stand with them at the bus stop. He also suggested giving the children flashlights and putting reflective tape on their clothing to make them more visible to drivers.
"The problem will solve itself in three or four weeks," Mooley said.

The administration and SWEA (South-Western Education Association) have agreed on the days to make up for the longer Christmas vacation.

THE BOARD APPROVED Friday, Feb. 18, and Friday, June 7, as the dates. The previously scheduled teachers work days will be made up Feb. 23 and June 10.

The board approved the agreement reached between the administration and SWEA's negotiating team for a promotional policies revision, hospitalization and surgical insurance on a single plan, severance pay upon retirement and mileage increase from nine to 12 cents for travel within the district. There was also an increase of $300 in base salary.

A vote by SWEA's membership is expected this afternoon.
The board made a temporary appropriation of $14,380,000 for the 1974 calendar year. The staff is working on PPRS (Planning Program budgeting system) in order to get a more accurate picture of the district's financial needs. A permanent appropriation should be ready by March.

The board made final payment of $2,388.74 to Bruner Corporation for the heating, ventilating, cooling and plumbing contract for the Administrative Services Building.

THE BOARD APPROVED advertising for bids for a truck mechanics and body repair shop subject to final approval of the plans by the board. One-half of the cost of construction will be furnished by the State Department of Education through local sales funds.

The board approved filling for reimbursement under provisions of Public Law 874 for approximately $50,000. This act is based on the idea that one-half of local revenues comes from business and industry and since federal installations are exempt from local real estate tax, the government compensates school districts where 400 or more students' parents work in federal installations.

Prior to the regular board meeting the board held its reorganization meeting.

Jennings administered the oath of office to re-elected members John C. Farnsworth and Dr. William Dean Kaho, and newly elected member Leslie L. Chaurat.

John C. Farnsworth was re-elected president and Dr. Kaho vice-president. THE BOARD WILL continue to meet the second Monday of each month at 8 p.m. at the Administrative Services Building, 400 Kingston Ave., Grove City.

The board heard representatives of South-Western City Chapter, Ohio Association of Public School Employees, seeking recognition of the group as bargaining agents, present evidence that a majority of the classified employees are indeed members of the South-Western City Chapter, OAPSE, and granted recognition of the group with specific points of recognition to be worked out jointly between board negotiators and organization representatives.

Virginia Prentice Elected Board President

Board Approves $101.9 Million Budget For '74

By KATHY SCHWARTZ
Special Staff Writer

Columbus—The Columbus Board of Education approved a $101.9 million budget and elected Mrs. Virginia Prentice to succeed Thomas Moyer as the board president for 1974. Board member Dr. David Hamler was also elected board vice-president at the initial 1974 board meeting held Jan. 8.

The newly adopted budget represents an increase of 7.1 per cent over that of 1973. The major items included in the budget are salaries and benefits, supplies, materials and texts, purchased services and capital outlay. A detailed account of the funds was made available to the board.

Mrs. Prentice, last year's vice-president, was elected by a 3-2 vote. The only dissenting votes were cast for Mrs. Marie Castleman by Dr. Watson Walker and Mrs. Castleman Hamler, meanwhile, was voted in by a clean 6-0 vote, as he abstained from voting.

In Mrs. Prentice's acceptance speech she stressed unity and dedication. She said that each board member "is dedicated to providing the best possible education for each child, of this I am sure, and this we will do."

In a later interview with "The Spectator" Mrs. Prentice said that she felt the board works well together and was united that she didn't think that the board is divided in any way.

"I feel that Columbus is fortunate," she answered when asked about the school situation here. Mrs. Prentice did say that the board must be sure to get the building projects going and, "We must keep the changes in population in mind."

Mrs. Prentice, Dr. Walker and Moyer were sworn in for new four year terms as they won re-election to the board in the recent November election.

William A. Guy, clerk-treasurer for the board, was also sworn in for a four-year term.

One of Moyer's last official actions as president of the board was an announcement that formation of committees to explore ways to obtain additional funds for the Franklin Junior High School and Douglass Elementary Developmental Learning Center will begin.

Moyer said that the Franklin Committee will be headed by Frank Brockmeyer; he also asked Hamler to serve on both committees.

Also on the agenda was the selection of seven teachers for the elementary cadet training program. The seven were unanimously accepted by the board.

The seven are: Donald Gales, sixth grade teacher from Fairwood Elementary; Ronald Jackson, Re-entry Guidance, Title I, Starling Street; Roger Velez, sixth grade teacher, Franklin; Joseph Green, sixth grade teacher, Alpine; Meridith Johnson, reading teacher, Regional Center V; James Voyles, reading teacher at Franklin Junior High; and Margaret Prillerman, curriculum specialist at Alexander Graham Bell.

To qualify for selection the seven nominees took a written exam and were interviewed by a committee that included school administrators, a teacher, a PTA representative and a Columbus citizen. The seven will now begin a training program to prepare them for future assignments as principals and assistant principals in elementary schools.

School Superintendent John Ellis announced receipt of a $5,000 contribution which will be placed in the special fund which is used for educational grants. The contribution is from an anonymous donor who has contributed to this fund for the past 20 years.

The board also agreed to set the first and third Tuesdays of each month as board meeting times, with the exception of January when the second meeting of the month will be held on the fourth Tuesday.

The committee of the whole meeting will be Tuesday, Jan. 18, and Tuesday, Jan. 29, and on the second and fourth Tuesdays in each other month.

Other actions included a board agreement to place the $30 per month compensation rate for each board member in a special fund while other routine personnel appointments and procedures were also included in the agenda.

S-W PTA

Grove City—Southwestern City Council of PTA will meet Tuesday, Jan. 23, at 8 p.m. in Brookpark Middle School, 300 Southwest Blvd., Grove City.

The topic of the program is "We Can All Learn," a family life study given by Mr. Douglas Bailey, Community Services, Franklin County Child Services.

West Franklin

West Franklin Elementary PTA will hold its Parent and Family Life meeting in the school library Thursday, Jan. 17, from 1 p.m. until 2:30 p.m.

Sue Karschner, a former art teacher, will demonstrate several artistic ways to use household items which are usually discarded. Babysitting will be provided.

Federal funds have been received and allocated by the Ohio Historical Site Preservation Board for use by the Franklin County Historical Society towards the purchase of the William Henry Harrison House, 570 W. Broad. Mike McGee, member of the Board and active in the Citizens Committee to save the Harrison House, announced Friday.

The historic Harrison House, built in 1807, was used by General Harrison during the second war of independence (the War of 1812) as his Army Headquarters. It was from here, in old Franklin, that Harrison with his troops and Indian allies marched north to defeat Tecumseh at Tippecanoe, thus saving the Indian Territories and Ohio from the British. Harrison was later elected president of the United States.

McGee stated that total federal funds for historic preservation allocated to Ohio for 1974 are $239,000 of which, $27,500 has been reserved for the grant to the local Historical Society. An additional $10,000 was granted to the Ohio Theatre.

In order to receive the federal funds, McGee said, the County Historical Society must obtain the remaining funds in advance. It is estimated that an additional $50,000 to $60,000 is needed to purchase both the Harrison House and the Franklin Post Office, a nearby two story log building built in 1798. Both buildings on Gift Street are on the National Registry of Historic Sites.

Dan Prugh, director of the County Historical Society, hopes to see both facilities restored and open to the public in time for the American Bicentennial in 1976 - the 200th Anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

The Harrison House has faced destruction to make room for a used car lot.

Cups Filled To The Brim...With Oil, Perhaps?

"UNA NOCHE EN VENEZUELA" (A Night in Venezuela) was magically transferred to Columbus last Saturday night as the Symphony Grand Ball became the loveliest night of the year for the social community. Columbus Mayor Tom Mooney and his charming wife, Jean, found plenty of time to chat with the guest of honor and his wife, Dr. Aguilar and Mrs. Regina Aguilar. Dr. Aguilar is the Venezuelan Ambassador to the United States. Could be that the toast they made was to keep Columbus' cups filled to the brim with oil since Venezuela is the prime producer among our South American neighbors and the Ambassador pointed out in a short talk that the two countries have had "no incidents" in the 150 years of their friendship. Whatever their conversation as they toasted each other it's a good bet that this person to person chat was good for everyone. From left are the Mayor, Mrs. Aguilar, Mrs. Mooney and Dr. Aguilar. A story and photos of the symphony are on Page 4.

Charles Floyd Slagle II

Festival Of Lights Will Be At St. Paul Episcopal

Charles Floyd Slagle II, will be Great Candle Bearer in the Festival of Lights service, commemorating the season of the Epiphany, at 7:30 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 20, at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 787 E. Broad St.

Charles, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Slagle, of Bethel, Connecticut, formerly of 6211 Retton Road, Reynoldsburg has participated in the Festival, for 11 years when, at age 5, he served as a "satellite."

The Slagles just recently moved to Bethel and are returning for the Festival.

The traditional service is reportedly the only known American duplicate of ceremonies at London's Westminster Abbey.

The service originated 94 years ago at St. Paul's after a member of the congregation, the late George C. Dunbar, witnessed the feast in London. He helped organize a replica of the ceremony upon his return home.

Dunbar purchased cassocks and cottas from an ecclesiastical costumer in London which still are being used in the service. He also imported special crosses and banners and later purchased, in France, a gold embroidered cape, lined with red satin, for the priest to wear.

The great candle, which young Slagle will carry, stands for Christ, the Light of the World. Twelve lesser, candles, which are placed in the form of the cross during part of the service, represent the light spread by the 12 Apostles. The candles of the choir, stand for the Christian churches.

The service will be conducted by Father G. Wayne Craig, priest at St. Paul's. Directing the service will be Walter J. Stephens II. He will be assisted by Harold W. Thompson, history and publicity and E. C. Jack Heister, Dwight L. Fullerton, Jr., Alden E. Stillson, Croft S. Merritt and Gregg M. Hamilton, properties.

Those in charge of wardrobe are: Mrs. Earl L. Hamilton, Mrs. Charles F. Slagle, Mrs. Walter J. Stephens II, Mrs. Croft S. Merritt, Mrs. Fred G. Taylor, Mrs. Dwight L. Fullerton, Jr., Mrs. Frederick W. Wirth, Mrs. Sydney Reynolds and Mrs. Charles Jones.

Professor Gordon Wilson, is organist and choirmaster.

Also taking part in the service will be Phillip Wright, first crucifer; Ronald Slagle and James Slagle, first taper bearers; David Hamilton, second crucifer; William Fullerton and Walter Stephens, second taper bearers; Sam Merritt, third crucifer; Keith Heister and Chris Russell, third taper bearers; Robert England, American flag.

The following boys will portray the Apostles: Bruce Neikirk Mark Kraft, Duane McFall, Glenn Kraft, Basil Duncan, Jr., Steve Neikirk, Jeff Baker, William Stephens, Kenneth Kavel, Tim Fullerton, Stanly Woodard and Scott Baker.

Satellites walking with the priest are Bryan Loveless, Ray Skibinski.

Symphony Grand Ball

Una Noche en Venezuela Became The Loveliest Night Of The Year

Story And Photos
By Ray Adams

"Una Noche en Venezuela" was the loveliest night of the year, especially when you are in love with elegance that almost fell over itself in an effort to glimmer a little more than the glitter cascading from the gowns and charm of the Symphony Grand Ball.

Other social affairs have glamour, charm and decor and atmosphere that are at times elegant but, like the Rose Bowl is referred to affectionately, we'll refer to the 11th edition of the Symphony Grand Ball as the "granddaddy of them all."

There might be "no business like show business" but the Symphony Grand Ball is a business all its own, entwined with lovely surroundings, lovely women, charming men and cuisine that is of another world.

There are so many persons who put their little personal touches to this ball last Saturday at the Downtown Sheraton Columbus to make it glimmer that the task is impossible and the list too long - but - perhaps if we give our applause to Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Henderson, the Ball General Chairman and his lovely wife, that they can pass it onto others who are so deserving.

From the moment the cocktail hour started with moodmusic by the Bill Harrington Trio to the moment when the last dancer left the ballroom, still beautiful although empty, the evening was beautiful to behold.

The Venezuelan Ambassador to the United States and his charming wife, Dr. and Mrs. Andres Aguilar, were the guests of honor and after a few moments on the scene fit the atmosphere like a comfortable glove.

Gordon Keith took many bows for the creation of the ballroom and promenade into the heartland of Venezuela.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Henderson (he was the General Chairman) glance at some of the attendees enjoying the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hopper took time to discuss the lobby decorations before going to the promenade for cocktails.

Navy Captain and Mrs. Martin J. Katcher await their guests and admire the scenery before heading to the ballroom.

Venezuelan Ambassador Dr. Andres Aguilar and Mrs. Regina Aguilar, center, posed with Julie Morley and her escort for the evening Venezuelan Government Tourist and Information Council Bureau Dinner Presentation.

One of the spectacular moments came when the white-gloved waiters shouldered huge mounds of orange and cream parfait while led by waiters with flaming swords.

An all too short performance by the Columbus Symphony Orchestra led by Evan Whallon was another highlight. Hearing "Malaguena" was like hearing it for the first time and as the tempo increased one kept looking for a host of flamenco dancers led by Jose Greco to appear.

The business and social community has again contributed to keeping culture in the city that needs this spark to keep the completeness here.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Case, right, enjoyed the ball and here discuss the evening with Mrs. Kenneth Bishop, before departing.

Bob and Sandy Kauth held hands to see if the magic of the Venezuelan atmosphere would continue for the evening. They were right - it did.

The superb talent of Evan Whallon led the Columbus Symphony Orchestra through a short but inspiring program.

By the Venezuelan mural on the promenade Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gatterdam, left, chatted with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Herrmann.

A two-week all expenses paid trip to Venezuela was the prize won by Mr. and Mrs. Harmon W. Beyer. Here, Mrs. Beyer proudly waves the Venezuelan flag presented her as the Ambassador Dr. Aguilar looks on with pride.

HONOR ROLL
At the last principals-counselors meeting the FH honor roll system was changed. Students will be recognized for their scholastic success according to three levels of achievement, done after each grading period.

Level one will consist of those students who achieve all A's and shall be known as the Four Point Club. They will be sent a letter of commendation by their grade level counselor and their names will be listed in the school newspaper, sent to local newspapers and posted on the bulletin boards. They will lunch together at their own expense at a local restaurant on a school day planned by counselors and principal.

Level two will consist of those students who achieve all A's and B's, who will join with the Four Point Club to make up the honor roll. Their names will be posted on the bulletin boards and they will be given certificates at the awards assembly.

Level three will consist of those students who achieve a three point grade average but who have a mark or marks below a C. They may have no F's, U's or I's in order to achieve this distinction. Their names will be posted on the bulletin boards.

SPEECH CONTEST
Shelley Barnes, a Franklin Heights junior, won first place in the school and third place in the district in the "Voice of Democracy" contest. Her speech, entitled "My Responsibility As A Citizen" was three minutes and 30 seconds long. Shelley said she tried to keep it at the level of teenagers.

Dec. 18 the participants were judged at the Northwest V.F.W. Post. There were seven schools represented, one student from each. Out of those seven, five were chosen to compete against another county in which there were also five schools. Dec. 27 the 10 schools were judged at the Westway V.F.W. Post for the district.

Shelley won a $50 bond for her third place victory in the district, and a $25 bond for first place in the school. She plans to use the money toward attending O.S.U. after she is graduated.

FACULTY CHANGES
FHHS has some faculty changes to greet the new year. Mrs. Kossman teaches French and German; Mrs. Judy Farnsworth, formerly in the English department, now teaches in the Occupational Work Experience program; Mrs. McKee has replaced Mrs. Farnsworth; and Mr. Richard Goebble will be the new assistant instructor in the Naval ROTC program.

Judy McCalmont Is Exciting

Monday night, I caught one of the best lounge acts to come down the pike in many a moon. Notice, I didn't call it a quartet or a group, rather an act. That's just what it is. The "It" being the McCalmont Express, featuring lovely Judy McCalmont, at the Holiday Inn-OSU.

Backing up Judy are three very talented musicians including Ross Watkins, a real wizard on the keyboard. He plays the most beautiful electric piano I've ever heard, that has a full, mellow sound. In fact, this is true for the entire group. A sound that is rich and full, with a style that's very relaxed and easy-going. Yes they can come back at you and knock you off your feet with some of their jump tunes. This is true both instrumentally and vocally.

Also in the act is drummer Mark Hunt. Wait until you see and hear him play. I danced over his patterns and tempo changes. Craig Cutcliff is an expert bass man. He certainly is not afraid to jump into a tune and whip out some mighty fine bass work.

While the three men are strong, solid musicians, it is Judy McCalmont that makes things happen at the Holiday Inn-OSU.

Judy has a powerhouse of a voice that will practically knock off your carobes. Her vocal quality is beautiful. She can take a ballad, such as "When Sonny Gets Blue," or "Free Again," and literally give them an ethereal treatment. You can hear a pin drop in the audience. Yet, Judy has the ability to sing up a storm creating an aura of excitement with the swinging songs.

All in all, I think of Judy McCalmont as a beautiful ballad singer. This is where her voice shows all of its colors and shades. As they say one picture is worth a thousand words, the only way to fully appreciate Judy McCalmont is to listen to her sing. When you do, you'll keep listening and listening and listening all night long. Remember the name Judy McCalmont, I feel you will hear a lot more from her in the next year or two.

Meanwhile, drop into the University Lounge of the Holiday Inn-OSU and catch Judy McCalmont in the McCalmont Express. I know they will be one of the best lounge acts to play Columbus in 1974.

Fabulous Meal At Holiday South

I had a fabulous meal the other night, at a place I have been passing by for several years. The Holiday Inn-South. Until the cluster of motels which has developed in the area, I never had much reason to pass by the Holiday Inn-South. Recently, that all has changed, and I have noticed the large number of cars in the parking lot. So, I figured something must be going on, and that I had better investigate.

Things are going on, and in a big, big way. The food is tremendous, the service is superb and there is first rate entertainment in the lounge.

First, let's talk about the food. It is fit for royalty. General manager, or as they are referred to in the Holiday Inn chain, the Innkeeper, is Dee Signaracci. She is one of the most attractive, charming, and most of all, astute G. M. I've run across. Thanks to Dee for the excellent food and service and the over-all success of the operation.

The meal, as I said, was great. After a huge shrimp cocktail, I enjoyed a cup of homemade clam chowder. Not can, no sir, real delicious homemade clam chowder. Last of this world. Next came a large salad, with a Cream garlic dressing, the likes of which you have never tasted before. The salad dressing was so darn good, I could have eaten three salads just for the dressing, even though the one I had was swimming in dressing.

My dining partner selected the New York strip. This was served sizzling, and I do mean sizzling, and it was cooked to perfection. I chose the Lobster Tail, consisting of two mammoth, savoury lobster tails cooked to perfection. I cannot actually describe the flavor. The only way for you to fully understand, is to head for the Holiday Inn-South and try them yourself. We both selected baked potato, with real bacon bits and fresh shrimp.

In all seriousness, The Holiday Inn-South is a must in your dining menu.

The same is true for your entertainment schedule. The Paul Click Show is exciting and entertaining. The night I was there, the lounge was packed and everyone was having a plain old fashioned good time. It was almost like New Year's Eve. But, The Paul Click Show is another story, which you'll read about in a couple of weeks.

I'll be back again and again, because I enjoyed the food and entertainment so much. I know you will too.

Skipping Around Town

George Westermeyer III, is tearing things up at the Grog Shop at Stouffer's University Inn. This fellow is great. His vocal and guitar stylings are highly enjoyable. Take my advice, and give a listen to George Westermeyer III. Very explosive. The Holiday Inn-North continues to please the people with the Jerry and Nick Duo in the lounge. This duo is one of the most intimate ones to come down the highway. Their music is ideal for dancing or soft conversation, as well as very easy listening. The lounge at the Holiday Inn North is a fine place to take that special someone. Jerry also plays for the dinner hour in the restaurant, earlier in the evening. This man is a real master at the organ keyboards. Producing all kinds of sounds, his music never becomes dull. Then when he teams up with Nick at the drums in the Lounge, you have a duo that's hard to beat. For a special place to dine, one that is really unique, don't forget the Dobb's House Restaurant, located in the airport terminal. The food is simply tremendous. The atmosphere is lovely, very quite, elegant. The entertainment is unique. Where else can you go Around Town and watch all the air planes land and take off? That's what you get at the Dobb's House. There is glass from floor to ceiling, giving you a panoramic view of the field. The kids love it, and so

Fabric Farms Offers New Energy, Job Market Ideas

Your spare time can be profitable and enjoyable - especially with the weather bad, the energy crisis upon us and idle hands looking for something to do.

Sewing and creative do-it-yourself home decorating has become the thing these days to fill the fold of idle hours when you are weathered in.

According to Nancy Ewing, manager of the Fabric Farms, 3590 Riverside Dr., people can save while learning a part-time or retirement job.

When doing your own work, Nancy says, you have a wider selection rather than being guided by a sample book.

Mrs. Ewing also pointed out that for the first time pattern companies catering to home decorators offer bedspreads, draperies, table cloths, pillows and sofa patterns.

And, you can use your own ideas instead of standard ready-made and you'll save money and mileage in this one stop shop.

In addition, Mrs. Ewing pointed out, men and women alike are finding it easy to learn home decorating techniques and upholstery. They, in turn, can turn idle hours into profit or savings whether a "do it yourself" or a victim of the tightening job market. Plus - there are creative processes with a great deal of self satisfaction.

The Fabric Farms is a unique store in every sense of the word and offers classes in sewing, upholstery, needlework and others. There are a wide selection of fabrics available.

Call Nancy Ewing, 461-4000, at Fabric Farms, 3590 Riverside Dr., south of the Fishinger Bridge, for further information concerning talents which may lead to profit.

HERE ARE JUST a few of the folks at Fabric Farms, 3590 Riverside Dr., who are enjoying learning new things about beating the energy crisis and tightening job market. Why not join them today?

Last, but not least, Shook Evans, the Food and Beverage Director is one personable young girl. Very qualified, and a barrel of fun. A great combination for that position. For a swinging good time, remember the Marco Polo's Lounge. You'll have a ball here. Coming up in next week's column, review on the new show at the Country Dinner Theatre, starring Hans Conried, a story on the Gourmet Room, the finest

Performing Arts Will Present Films

Though the fuel shortage may curtail foreign travel this winter, it need not interfere with enjoyment of far away places for Central Ohioans.

In a new entertainment venture, the Columbus Association for the Performing Arts will present a series of five midweek travel films at the Ohio Theatre starting January 22.

In order to make the films as widely available as possible, CAPA is offering the series at a reasonable $1.50 for single admissions, $1 for senior citizens, and "five for five" - advance sales of five tickets for $5 usable in any combination.

CAPA executive director Alan McCracken has announced that each program will be presented twice, on Tuesday evening at 8 and Wednesday morning at 10:30. The films will be narrated by the internationally known photographer-travelers themselves. An added feature will be a mini-concert on the Ohio's famed Morton theatre organ preceding each program.

The films and their dates are "There Will Always Be an England," by Dr. Charles Forbes Taylor, on January 22 and 23; "Denmark and Greenland," by Arthur Wilson, February 12 and 13; "Soul of Apan," by Kenneth Wolfgang, February 25 and 27; "Hungary," by Sherilyn Montes, March 26 and 27; and "Rhine Journey in the '70's," by Curtis Nagel, April 9 and 10.
